vice to society by ceasing to flood it with criminals who had enjoyed a fair trial and should not be allowed such facilities for appeal, if the right of appeal at all. This improvement is due, first of all, to the better system on which appeals are now heard. The rule in the Sudder, where weak judges were the majority, was to try on paper the whole case in which a murderer appealed, and to minutely criticise direct and plain evidence of simple matters of fact. Had Lord Mansfield himself been on the Sudder bench he could not, with only the dead record before him, have proved so good a judge of the truthfulness of a witness testifying to such facts as identification of stolen property, and recognition of clubmen or highwaymen, as the lower court. Again, under the criminal procedure code the concurrence of two judges is necessary to the modification or reversal of a sentence. It is no longer possible for the old civilian, who used to sit alone in the Sudder, to say with magnificent vagueness, "I am dissatisfied with, or, I disbelieve the evidence," and so let loose on society some scoundrel who had been the terror of the district. On the other hand, the lower courts are now guided by clear and philosophic codes, and in seven districts of Bengal, and in Assam, the jury system puts the judge in the place of the High Court on matters of fact. To such an extent is this the case, that not one criminal decision of the sessions judges of Nuddea and the metropolitan county, known clumsily as the twenty-four pergunahs, was reversed in 1865.

We should like to see this improvement, however, carried out still farther by the High Court. If it be true that the sessions judges enjoy such codes, and in eight cases the help of the jury system, which is declared to be working well, there should not be so many appeals as 676 in one year, and the proportion of reversals should be still farther reduced, why should the number of criminal appeals have increased and continue yearly to increase, in the proportion of from 396 to 676 in five years? It is a reflection on officers so highly paid as sessions judges that it should still be possible for a convicted highwayman or riotous clubman to say to the High Court that he is dissatisfied with his sentence within sixty days after it has been passed, and to insist on his case being retried even on matters of fact in all but eight districts, and on the law all over Bengal. There has been reform, it is true. The period used to be ninety days, and the High Court is not now bound to go through all or any of the evidence. An experienced judge can tell in five minutes if the case is worth going into. But this improvement is not sufficient. The fact that the Court has the power to call for cases from the lower judges and exercises it is quite sufficient for the ends of justice. The right of criminal appeal to the High Court at least should be altogether abolished. The Court should never be deprived of the power of sanctioning capital sentences; but surely the fact that of eighty-three murderers sentenced to death by the sessions judges in 1865 so many as eighteen were let off with transportation for life, is suspicious of too slight a regard for society on the part of the highest tribunal. Great though the improvement of the High Court on the Sudder be, then we think it may well go farther in this respect.

The source of all reform is good judges, and the High Court has turned its attention to training men for its bench. It has again and again urged on the Bengal Government, with whom all patronage lies, the importance of selecting the best men as sessions judges, and of seeing that magistrates and collectors devote a considerable portion of their time to judicial work. It is a fact that in 1865 the magistrates of Nuddea and the 24-Pergunnahs did not examine one witness, and that in nine other districts they did not examine seven a month. Yet these men are the future sessions and High Court judges. We do not blame the magistrates, for they are overburdened with executive work, but the system which so burdens them, and continues to increase the burden in spite of the remonstrances of the High Court reiterated every year, must be modified if not radically changed. So serious is the evil, that the old question of separating the offices of magistrate and collector has again come up. The true remedy is not that but the wider one of the creation of a separate judicial service.—Friend of India.

SIR CECIL BEADON UPON THE FAMINE.

Sir Cecil Beadon has published a minute in defence of his conduct towards the famine-stricken population of Orissa, which, if it does not help him in clearing his own reputation as a statesman, at all events proves that the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal was not the only man in that province who refused for many months, in spite of the plainest evidence, to believe in the existence of a famine which was destroying his subjects by hundreds of thousands, but that the delusion which led him astray was common alike to the subordinate officials, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Press, which have since fiercely denounced him for his shameful neglect of duty. He affirms, moreover, that in point of fact it is not famine which has chiefly desolated Orissa. The following paragraph conveys the gist of his defence:—"The course of this narrative has shown that the probability of scarcity attracted the attention of Government in October; that from that time prompt and regular information of the prices of food prevailing in each district was published; that in December the most ample provision was made for the employment of the able-bodied poor on public works, Relief Committees were organised in each district for the collection of subscriptions and the relief of the destitute, and the local officers were given full direction to expend money in Government estates for the same purpose that pecuniary aid began to be freely granted from the North-Western Provinces Famine Fund in all the distressed districts from the 21st May, and that from the 30th idem active measures were taken to import rice into Orissa from Calcutta and the Burmese ports to the value of twenty lakhs of rupees. The grievous mortality which has occurred in Cuttack is mainly due not to the drought of 1865, and the consequent scarcity, the effects of which might possibly have been sooner foreseen, and in some great measure prevented, but to the extraordinary inundation of August, 1866, which submerged half the province for several days, destroying much life and property, including all the crops on the ground, and cutting off the helpless population from the reach of relief. This was a calamity which no human foresight or exertion in 1865-66 could have averted or mitigated." Until the result of the Famine Commission's inquiries is known it is impossible for persons at a distance to venture an opinion on the disputed point, whether or not the unexpected floods of last autumn were the main cause of the disasters which we all deplore. But, so far as the action of Sir Cecil Beadon himself is concerned, it is due to him to admit that he shows he did not go to the hills from any cowardly desire to avoid danger or any slothful shrinking from hard work, but solely on account of grievous ill-health; that from the first he was most anxious as to the state of affairs in Orissa; and that he was certainly one of the foremost in discovering the real evil to be not want of money, but actual want of food. Thus, with regard to the charge that he did not act at once on the suggestion of the Calcutta Chamber of Commerce to make an appeal for a public subscription in behalf of the sufferers, he says:—"The Chamber of Commerce, so far from proposing that a General Committee should be formed for that purpose, telegraphed, on the 8th June, that no appeal to the public was likely to succeed at that crisis, or while Government held any balance of the North-West Provinces Famine Fund. What the Chamber did propose was that a Committee should be formed for the disbursement of this balance," which the Lieutenant Governor, as an old official, thought could best be managed by a Government Board. Sir Cecil Beadon also proves, though there is not much satisfaction to be got out of that, that the newspapers went on writing philosophical articles about the law of supply and demand and the duty of Government not to meddle with private trade up to nearly the very time when the Lieutenant Governor himself discovered that a man ruling forty millions of people must be a pedantic blockhead if he allowed men, women, and children to die by the wayside of starvation rather than violate the supposed inexorable law of supply and demand by giving them food to eat. Indeed, it must be recorded to Sir Cecil Beadon's credit that, although this bugbear of interference with private enterprise in a country without roads or free competition overcame him for a time, he was not more than seven months in coming to the conclusion (stated in his letter of 16th May, 1866) that "in a case of this sort the Government is quite justified in supplementing existing means of supply for the sake of relieving a starving population, and the circumstances are so exceptional that the interference of Government is not likely to have any bad effect." That Sir Cecil was even at so late a date far in advance of other Bengal officials in his conception of the true nature of the disease and its proper remedy may be inferred from the following extracts from a letter written by the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces, on the 22nd May, 1866:—"His Honour Sir C. Beadon is aware that the Board have on general grounds a very strong objection either to interfere with the course of trade, or to take any steps that may appear to pledge the Government to the impossible task of supporting the whole population of the distressed districts, and so dry up the springs of private charity, and paralyse the exertions of the people themselves. The Board are very clearly of opinion that the importation of rice into Orissa on Government account would be justifiable only in the extreme case of its being ascertained definitely that the stock of food in the province was insufficient to feed the people, and that food was not likely to be imported through the usual channels. The Board are decidedly averse to putting any pressure upon the local dealers by underselling them or in any other way. Their local experience and means of local information is a far better guide to what is a proper price under all the circumstances than any facts at the command of the public generally, or even of Government officers. No doubt the present high prices are partly due to the possibility of a renewed failure of the crops this year. A legitimate cause may rightly and safely be left to produce its own effect." This is, we should think, the worst instance on record of the evil effect of fixing one's faith by formulas which are not clearly understood. In point of fact, the Board of Revenue said, "The population of Orissa may perish for want of food;" be it so. In this way demand will be brought down to the level of supply, and the supremacy of the principles of political economy will be vindicated. The reply of Mr. Eden, writing in Sir C. Beadon's name on 28th May, ought to be quoted in justice to the Lieutenant Governor. He says:—"It will be seen from the accompanying copy of a telegram from the superintending engineer, Cuttack, dated the 26th instant, that, in that officer's opinion, it is rice that is wanted in Orissa, not money, and I am to request that the Board will be good enough to consider the question of importation with reference to the price of rice and the possibility of importing it at a cheaper rate than it can be purchased on the spot, and not with any reference to the propriety or otherwise of Government interference, or to the fear of underselling local dealers." As we have said, it is impossible with our present imperfect information to determine who was to blame for the depopulation of Orissa. The moral of Sir C. Beadon's narrative is that the lives of the people were sacrificed by blind idolaters of what they conceive to be political economy, and by prejudiced officials who are painfully ignorant of the real circumstances and character of the population among whom they dwell, and whose interests it is their duty to protect.—Bombay Gazette.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE FLOGGING CASE.—Unless the Civil Service is at this moment deluged with the Humphrey family, all members of which are inspired by the same drum-major instinct, we cannot possibly err in identifying Mr. Humphrey of Fureedpore with the Mr. Humphrey of Rajshye, about whom the Session Judge of the district is reported to have made—if Mr. Buckland's story of the circulars on flogging issued by the Bengal Government be true—a most satisfactory report. The civilian judge may have been horrified at the wounds he witnessed, but the head of a great Government who witnessed without a tear the agonies of a million starving wretches perishing without an effort to save them, has certainly more manliness. The law sanctioned those heartless floggings; and if Mr. Humphrey, as appears from the report of the Commissioner of Dacca, could not digest his dinner without one such infliction at least once every other day, he had the full warranty of the law for such an extraordinary stimulant. Twenty stripes to a lad of eighteen for stealing a few guavas pleases the Lieutenant-governor. But the Governor-general appears to have taken a different view of the punishment, for his Excellency has sent for the record of the case; not exactly, we fancy, with a latent wish to invest Mr. Humphrey with the Star of India!—Bengalee. The Hindoo Patriot mentions a not unimportant point in connection with the case. The boy, it seems, is not dead after all:—"In commenting on Mr. Buckland's report on the Fureedpore whipping case in our issue of Jan. 14th, it appears we committed a ludicrous mistake in misreading a single word, and thus misconstruing the sense of the paragraph about the alleged death of the Brahmin boy flogged under Mr. Humphrey's order. On the 20th of December last, it is said, he was seen well and alive. So if the boy is not dead there is an end to the scandal, and we are sincerely sorry that we were the unconscious instrument of making sharp comments on the proceedings of both Mr. Humphrey and Mr. Buckland on what now turns out a groundless story of the Dacca Prokash. Nevertheless, we hope Mr. Humphrey will show less partiality for the cat-o'-nine tails than he seems to cherish. While the magistrates of other districts have scarcely one case of whipping in two months, he is reported to take delight in this brutal punishment every other day."

MR. J. E. BRANDRETH.—The Punjab papers have announced that Mr. J. E. Brandreth, C.S., is to take the place of Colonel Lake, as Financial Commissioner of that province. We have good reason to believe that as Mr. Brandreth prefers whiling away the remaining year of his service at Murree as Commissioner of the Rawul Pindie division, and the Government are by no means anxious to hurry a man who will vacate so soon, it has been determined to appoint Mr. R. H. Davies, now Financial Commissioner in Oude, to the corresponding post in the Punjab, and we believe that a better selection could not have been made. Mr. Davies is now on his way to India, and has been requested to come via Bombay so as to enable him to join his new post with the least possible delay.—Delhi Gazette.

THE ANNUAL DINNER OF THE CALCUTTA TRADES' ASSOCIATION, held in the Town-hall, seems to have been as pleasant and successful as usual. Messrs. J. Mackintosh and J. B. Knight were chairman and croupier. Not the least fluent of the many gentlemen who proposed and replied to toasts was Mr. Justice Phear, who was humorously pathetic over the godowns of the Bonded Warehouse in which the High Court has lately been compelled to find an asylum. "Imagine a structure, a hybrid between a barn and the 'tween decks of a man of war, struggling daily and hourly amidst dust, dirt, and darkness, intensified by noise from the road, diversified by episodes within, sometimes serio-comic, oftener serio-tragic, and that was what was continually going on in the highest ordinary court of this country. This was not quite so opposed to the ordinary ideas of the dignity of the judicial character—for, after dinner, judges are men, as is shown by the following remarks, which had better have been left unsaid:—"He did not mean to say that in England, and even less so in India, a judge's path was strewn with flowers. Whatever they might be as an abstract body, as individuals they were only fallible mortals, and certain fellow citizens were not over inclined to let them forget this fact. Those who got their corns trodden upon—and sometimes other toes were stepped upon than those it suited—people who got their corns stamped upon did not usually reply in language the choicest or with any close regard for its fitness in describing the possible motives and discretion of those to whom they were intended to apply. It thus happened that the holder of a judicial office was fortunate if he possessed a skin as thick as his neighbour."

OUTBREAK OF SMALL-POX IN ORISSA.—The fates are against Orissa. A fearful epidemic of small pox has broken out, and hundreds it is said are being carried away daily. Those who escaped the ravages of the famine and cholera are falling easy prey to the demon of the small-pox. The Government has ordered vaccination, but the disease defies medical art. As a sequence of the late disasters it is believed that about one-fourth of the population will be dependent for food on external supply for three quarters of the current year. But the Government, we are glad to notice, is now quite wide-awake. Orders have already been issued for the importation of grain into the afflicted districts, and the total expenditure on this head, it is estimated, will come to half a million. If a moiety of the energy and vigilance which have now been brought into play had been exercised this time last year, how many lives would have been saved! But then the Government held that it was not the duty of the State to assist the people in their distress.—Hindoo Patriot, Jan. 28.

ARRIVALS AND DEPARTURES.—CALCUTTA, Jan. 27.—The Shannon left yesterday, and the Nile followed to-day, each taking home invalids. The last batch of the 91st Highlanders leave Howrah to-morrow evening for Hazareebagh. Two companies of the 27th foot are en route to the Presidency from Berhampore, and will proceed to Barrackpore and Dum-Dum. The Rev. Mr. Stephenson, from Burmah, has arrived, and is appointed to St. John's Church. I hear that two officers appear before the medical board to-morrow, viz., Lieut.-Colonel R. R. Mainwaring, and Major H. Quin, Deputy-Assistant Quartermaster-General at the Presidency. They will probably go home by the steamer of the 3rd ult. On the 1st the Advocate-General and members of the Bar (twenty-five in number) give a grand ball at the Town-hall. There are, it is said, to be 900 people there, and the party will cost £750.

A CLERICAL CONVERT TO CATHOLICISM.—A Calcutta paper says:—Yesterday morning, Friday, January the 25th, the Feast of the Conversion of St. Paul, the Rev. Henry Wood, clergymen of the Church of England, late of Bishop's College, Calcutta, was received into the bosom of the Catholic Church; he made his profession of faith in the Church of St. Thomas, Middleton-row, after which he was baptized subconditio by the Very Reverend Father Vander Stuyft, Pro-Vicar-Apostolic of Western Bengal. We believe that the rev. gentleman's faith in Anglicanism was first shaken by doubts regarding the validity of Anglican ordinations.

ONE MORE MISTAKE IN ORISSA.—The Friend of India says:—"We fear that there is some danger of another gigantic mistake being committed in Orissa. The intention of the Bengal authorities is to sell the grain imported by Government, and only in exceptional cases to distribute food gratuitously. All who had experience in the last North-West famine know that it so exhausted the resources of the survivors that the peasantry had no money left. The necessity, too, for discriminating between the altogether destitute and the partially poor, thrown by Government on the relief committees against their remonstrances, we believe, makes speedy and sufficient relief impossible, and has already caused the most shameful abuses. Gratuitous distribution should be the rule, not the exception. The cost must not be considered, for Government has a debt to pay to Orissa which it will take long years of good and generous administration to wipe out. But more than this is wanted. The population are heart-broken, besides being naturally apathetic and fatalistic. It is not enough to open relief houses in central stations. Past experience has proved that food must be taken to the very doors of the people. In all previous famines, and still more among the Ooryas, there are whole villages which prefer to die in silence. We have surely learned a lesson as to the crime of not sending more officials to help in relief operations. The Government of India should see that those recently sent are really sufficient to carry out a generous and detailed system of relief. The result of the meeting on Saturday next, and especially of the appeal to England, will doubtless be large subscriptions, but if they are to continue to flow in the givers must be sure that private as well as the public funds are being so spent as to save every life."

MR. MASSEY has been doing a little bit of very proper taxation in the Central Provinces, in his Bill for re-assessing the Pandhari tax. That was a Mahratta impost on all householders and persons not engaged in agriculture. It has been retained by us ever since annexation in the districts of Nagpore, Wurdah, Chandah, Bhundara, Chindwarra, Raepore, Belaspore and Sumbulpore. It formerly existed in the Saugor and Nerbudda districts, and the Act gives the Chief Commissioner power to extend the tax to them. It is assessable only on natives of India who have an income of not less than Rs. 67 and not more than enough to yield Rs. 1,000 a year at 3 per cent. The rate on incomes below Rs. 300 a year is not to exceed two per cent. The old and unobjectionable tax is likely to be made more fertile by Mr. Massey's Bill, while it will not interfere with the proposed Licence-tax, which will fall on other classes generally.

THE AGRA BANK has been fairly resuscitated, and Mr. M. Balfour is expected in India immediately to establish the three Presidency branches. It must doubtless have been a relief to Vice-Chancellor Wood to get this heavy case out of a court already overburdened with similar litigation; but we are not inclined to share in the very sanguine anticipations of the supporters of the new bank, although we believe the creditors to be quite as safe as if the assets had been gradually divided. Mr. Cannan, the liquidator, objected to the assets being taken out of his hands before the liabilities had been met, and expressed a very poor opinion of such outstandings not yet realised as the indigo, tea and silk securities in India. These objections the Vice-Chancellor seemed to think were overruled by the consent of the majority of the creditors. But there is a more serious objection, on the score of commercial morality. No light has yet been thrown on the transactions between the Agra and Masterman's directors when the union was effected. Very ugly rumours were current, and remarks were publicly made regarding that union. After such revelations as those of Overend and Gurney's, it is essential that, if the new bank is to be trusted, all the truth shall be told.—Friend of India.

DISCONTENT IN TIRHOOT.—We have received information of the existence of somewhat serious discontent in the indigo districts of Tirhoot. The ryots have refused to cultivate the lands held by Mr. Gale's factory, and a spirit of dissatisfaction is said to be spreading over the whole province of Behar. The Indigo Commission of 1860 reported in favour of the Tirhoot system of cultivation as compared with that which has expired in Nuddea, and the relations of the planters with the peasantry have always been satisfactory. The grievances of the ryots, whether excited by the inquiries of the Famine Commission, or the failure of their payments due to the closing of the Agra Bank, as they say, are being carefully inquired into. The local officials are said to be men of prudence and tact, and the attention of Government has been at once directed to the difficulty. It is probably true of Tirhoot, as we know it to be of Hooghly, that scarcity has led the ryots to cover their indigo lands with grain.

ILLNESS AND RECOVERY OF COL. PHAYRE.—It was with very great regret that many heard on Saturday last of the illness of His Honour the Chief Commissioner, who was seized with fever in consequence of his exposure to the night air on the deck of the steamer on his return from Maulmain. He was therefore unable to be out when Sir Gaspard Le Marchant landed on Saturday. The Commander-in-Chief called on the Chief Commissioner to enquire after his health on his way up into cantonment after landing from the steamer Madras. All were glad to see the gallant colonel able to be out again, for he was present in attendance at the Custom-house wharf on Monday last, to witness the embarkation of his Excellency, to exchange friendly greetings, and to utter that touching word, "good bye."—Rangoon Times, Jan. 16.

BAD NEWS FROM THE PUNJAB.—There are the most serious apprehensions entertained of a famine. The price of grain has greatly risen, only 19 seers being got for the rupee, and 16 seers of atta for the rupee. This deserves the immediate consideration of Government. The rains still keep off, although the weather always appears to be clouded. Of course artificial pressure is put on to raise the price of every article of food. The present supply of grain is sufficiently abundant, but it is that of last year and the year before that, and is kept in store in order to be sold at a high price when the expected famine sets in.

MAJOR FORLONG'S SUCCESSOR.—We understand that Major F. Alexander, of the staff corps and public works department, who recently came down to the Presidency to officiate for Lieutenant-Colonel Short, of the engineers, goes to Agra as superintending engineer, in succession to Major J. G. Forlong, proceeding to Europe on furlough.—Englishman, Jan. 29.

HORSE AND CATTLE-BREEDING COMPANY.—For the last few days a rumour has been current in Lahore that the great "Horse and Cattle-Breeding and Land Company," generally known as Landell's scheme, of which we have heard so much lately, has exploded. The causes are as yet only whispered, and much as in the interests of progress we should regret it, we fear that there is some truth in this report.—Punjab Times.

CAPTAIN CUNNINGHAM.—An application was made on the 1st February before Justices Edwards and Turner, of the High Court, N.W.P., by Mr. Warner, barrister-at-law, praying that the proceedings taken by the magistrate of Cawnpore for the arrest of Captain Cunningham, Paymaster of the 88th, be sent for and quashed, as Section 34 of the Mutiny Act applies only to deserters. Apart from this a warrant was sent to Delhi on the information alone of Captain Moore, brigade-major, whereby Captain Cunningham was arrested at Delhi. Besides this no evidence, as required by the Act, had been taken in the case; moreover, Captain Cunningham should have been tried by the nearest magistrate, and not have been sent down to Cawnpore and given up to military custody. The Court granted the application so far, in ordering that the records in the case be sent for, and the magistrate be asked why no evidence had been taken.

THE INSPECTOR-GENERAL OF POLICE has preferred a complaint against Mr. Beames, magistrate of Chumpanur, for having made some unjustifiable comments on his conduct in a letter addressed to his subordinate the District Superintendent of Police. The Bengal Government is of opinion that Mr. Beames' views as to the relations between the magistracy and the police are correct, but that the tone of his letter is "extremely objectionable."

INSPECTOR-GENERAL OF IRRIGATION.—It having been resolved by Government to create a special office under the Public Works Department, for the better supervision of measures for the spread of irrigation, Colonel R. Strachey, R.E., has been appointed to the office, with the designation of Inspector-general of Irrigation. This appointment will take effect from the period of Colonel Strachey's return to India.

RETIREMENT OF DR. BOWHILL.—There is another retirement in the administrative department of the medical service, Dr. J. Bowhill, deputy inspector-general of hospitals, Saugor circle, having sent in his papers and taken his pension. This retirement brings Dr. E. B. Thring, officiating deputy inspector-general of hospitals at the Presidency, permanently on the list of that grade.

DIVISIONAL COMMANDS.—There is a plan in contemplation by the home military authorities to increase the number of divisional commands, or of majors-general holding commands, in the three Presidencies of India; and we believe that this change will entail a diminution in the number of brigadiers general, if indeed it will not entirely do away with that grade in this country.

COLONEL W. MAXWELL, at present chief engineer and secretary to the Chief Commissioner to the Central Provinces, will shortly leave those Provinces, and will, in all probability, be succeeded in his appointment by Colonel Pollard, Superintending Engineer of the 1st class in Rajootana.—Pioneer, Feb. 1.

BURMAH.—We are sorry to learn that Colonel T. Ross, the officer commanding H.M. 2-24th Regiment, is seriously ill, and that, in consequence, the temporary command of the corps has devolved on the next senior officer present, Captain Barclay.—Rangoon Gazette, Jan. 1.

THE LAY OF THE LAST LOCALS.

As her Majesty's Government is, I believe, Addicted by nature to chouse and deceive, And say what it really don't mean; Those fellows who've recently gone by the score And trusted its promise and joined the Staff Corps, What regular donkeys they've been!

The chance they have lost, did it ever exist, Of getting the Staff Corps removed from the list; They've lost their full batta, I ween; The pleasure of grumbling; the Parliament jaw; The right, if there was one, of going to law; What regular donkeys they've been!

They've lost the advantage, so valued before, Of having a grievance and being a bore, For a tale that might suit a Marine; They have given up, never recovered to be, The shield of our dearly beloved guarantee; What regular donkeys they've been!

They said that the said guarantee, by-the-bye, Was so vague and elastic, but that's all my eye, That none could tell what it might mean, And they think there's less danger of being betrayed

By the definite pledge that her Majesty made; What regular donkeys they've been!

They think they may trust to that promise, they say That they shan't be capriciously put on Half-pay A thing that remains to be seen; They think that to break the Queen's Warrant would be

Not more easy than breaking the dear Guarantee; What regular donkeys they've been!

The promotion and pay they have gained by the Act Is too good to be true, though it looks like a fact, To men so uncommonly green; It's all Gammon and Bosh, we may safely depend That somehow there must be a book at the end; What regular donkeys they've been!

But long headed, far sighted, fellows like me
Who have weighed and considered the case, don't you see,

The book too distinctly have seen;
So we stick by good honest John Company's rules
And hereafter will laugh at the credulous fools
Who such regular donkeys have been!

Of course, though the notion is really absurd,
If her Majesty's Government should keep its word,

And the thing should turn out all serene,
And not prove a humbug, please goodness it may,
Those fellows would hint it was we and not they
Who such regular donkeys have been!

INVESTITURE OF THE STAR OF INDIA.—The nine gentlemen on whom her Majesty has been pleased to confer the distinction of the Star of India were duly installed by Lord Napier at the Banqueting Hall on the afternoon of Friday, the 1st February. A large company assembled to witness this interesting ceremony, but in consequence of some blundering in issuing the invitations many people did not get their tickets till the same afternoon; others did not get invitations at all; while by some absurd mistake the members of the press, whose duty it was to give a faithful account to the public of all that was to be seen and heard, had seats assigned to them just where it was impossible to see and hear anything. This contretemps is to be regretted, as in other respects the ceremony went off very successfully, and with a little better management on the part of the Governor's aides-de-camp might have been characterised with considerable eclat. The nine gentlemen installed by Lord Napier were, first, H.H. the Maharajah of Travancore, who received the Grand Cross of the Order; Sir Shuruf Ool Omrah, member of Council; Sir Thomas Pycroft, member of Council; and Sir Madava Rao, Dewan of Travancore, who were raised to the second division of the order, or knights commander; the Rajah of Vencatagerry, Mr. W. Robinson, Inspector-General of Police, Dr. W. Mackenzie, C.B., Inspector-General of Hospitals, Mr. E. B. Powell, Director of Public Instruction, and the Hon. Lutchmenarasu Chetty Garu, member of Council, were made Companions of the Order. Exception has been taken, without much reason, we think, to the marked consideration shown by Lord Napier to the Maharajah. It is urged that it was undignified by his Lordship to go the railway station to meet him, that Government-house should not have been placed at his disposal, and that the investiture of his Highness should have been performed with the same publicity as the other cases, and not with comparative privacy in Government-house. The only arguments advanced in favour of these opinions are that such attention has never before been shown by a governor to a native prince, and that Lord Napier has constituted an inconvenient precedent. Neither appears to us to be worth serious consideration. Looking at the remarkably enlightened and successful manner in which the State of Travancore is governed, we cannot but conclude that the Maharajah of Travancore is a very remarkable native prince—in fact, one of the most remarkable in India—and in showing him unusual consideration Lord Napier is, in fact, only observing the well-known English maxim of giving honour to whom honour is due.

ANOTHER UNPOPULAR APPOINTMENT.—The Madras Times says:—Lord Napier has again incurred the displeasure of the whole of the Educational Department by nominating another junior civilian to the post of Acting Inspector of Schools, rendered temporarily vacant by the absence on leave of Mr. H. Bowers. It is difficult to see on what grounds such an appointment can be justified. Mr. Grigg, the nominee in the present case, has the reputation of being an able young assistant to Mr. Forbes, the collector in Ganjam. But surely this is no reason why he should be pitch-forked for a time into the educational service, to the prejudice of every man who is looking for promotion in that department. We cannot but look upon such appointments as this, and the recent one of Mr. Maclean, the last civilian on the list, as calculated to do great mischief in the educational department. How can Lord Napier expect "zeal and energy" among the educational officers, if he ignores their privileges and legitimate aspirations in the way he has done? Mr. Grigg may make a very good inspector of schools, just the same as a chaplain might make a good commander of a regiment, or a doctor a good collector or Mofussil judge; but the chances are that as Mr. Grigg can necessarily know nothing of educational work, he would do much better in his own service. Such an appointment is not only characterised by gross injustice but is eminently absurd.

NAGPORE.—A ROMANCE IN REAL LIFE.—The following is part of a letter in the Central India Times of the 19th January:—An officer of the 1st Royals, stationed at Kamptee, honourably proposed for my relative, who is a daughter of a veteran commissioned officer. All the family approved of the match, but a major of the same corps (1st Royals) tried to persuade the gentleman from marrying. The consequence was, that the lady eloped, and after elopement, application was made in the first instance to the Rev. Mr. Pratt, Chaplain of Nagpore, and subsequently to Rev. Mr. Taylor, Chaplain of Kamptee, and both these gentlemen, after an amount of disingenuous shuffling and evasion, which I was surprised to find exhibited by ministers of the gospel, declined to grant a license. When asked to assign a reason for their refusal, they both said that the proposed union was not in accordance with Colonel Plunkett's wishes. The Rev. Mr. Taylor was earnestly entreated by the officer, the girl's father, and myself to sanctify the union by marrying them, but the rev. gentleman declined to do so on the newly discovered ground, that he did not think the marriage would be productive of happiness to either the officer or the lady; and, moreover, it required the consent of the colonel of the Royals.

JUNIOR CIVIL SERVANTS.—In an order on a despatch from Lord Cranborne, dated London, October 25, 1866, relative to the disposal of young civil servants on their first arrival in India, our local Government has ruled that each junior civil servant will be required, as at present, to report himself on his arrival at this Presidency to the chief secretary to Government, and will be at once appointed assistant to the collector and magistrate. Civil servants will be permitted to remain in Madras one month before proceeding to their destination, and the usual time will be allowed for travelling. The batches of junior civil servants are to be examined on arrival there in the vernacular language which each has studied in England, the standard remaining as before. This change abolishes the board of examiners, and its establishment of moon-shees, and the modified duties will devolve on an examining committee and a secretary.

THE FAMINE IN MADRAS.—On the 7th December last Lord Cranborne addressed another despatch to the Madras Government acknowledging the liberality and promptitude of its measures for relief of the famine, as well as those of the Madras committee. As under the most favourable circumstances there will be classes of the population which will require help for some time to come, the Government is allowed to grant assistance, in the way of loan or otherwise, to those who have lost their cattle. Mr. Ellis, C.B., the Sanitary Commissioner, is still engaged in reporting on the prospects of the coming season in the afflicted districts.

SIR GASPARD LE MARCHANT arrived at Rangoon on the 12th of January, and the same day inspected all the troops in garrison. His Excellency, we hear, was quite pleased with the highly efficient state in which he found the troops and all the departments at Rangoon, and complimented General Duke and the staff on the very satisfactory way in which the public service is conducted in the Pegu division. It is understood that Sir Gaspard Le Marchant will not return to Madras, but that after visiting the Straits Settlements he will land at Negapatam, inspect the garrison at Trichinopoly, and then fly away to his old retreat on the hills. Like the eagle, Sir Gaspard will not wander far from his mountain eyrie.—Madras Times.

THE TESTIMONIAL TO SIR BARTLE FRERE.—

In accordance with a numerously-signed requisition, the Sheriff of Bombay called a meeting in the Town-hall, on the 11th of February, of all those desirous of publicly expressing their respect and esteem for Sir Bartle Frere, previous to his departure from Bombay. This meeting was, as every one expected it would be, largely and influentially attended, the leading members of both the European and native communities being present. The chair was occupied by the Hon. A. J. Hunter, who, in introducing the business of the meeting, remarked that it was not only due to Sir Bartle Frere, but to society and the public interests, that some special recognition should be taken of his Excellency's services as a public servant, a statesman and a ruler. All the speeches were equally laudatory, those of the native gentlemen, whose community is so greatly indebted in many ways to his Excellency, being especially so. It was unanimously resolved at the meeting, that the public services of his Excellency during his whole career in India, his earnest and energetic exertions in originating and promoting works of public improvement, entitled him to the highest respect of the people of Bombay, and deserved grateful recognition and commemoration. The special acknowledgments and gratitude of the inhabitants of the Bombay presidency were also voted to him for his enlightened "appreciation, eloquent and judicious advocacy, constant patronage and liberal support of education, philanthropy, and social improvement in all their forms throughout the west of India." It was also resolved to open a public subscription for the erection of a statue to be placed in the Town-hall of Bombay, and for the presentation to his Excellency of such a personal testimonial as a committee of subscribers may hereafter determine. It is understood that his Excellency will leave Bombay for England about the 28th Feb.

THE MURREES IN ARMS.—The Times of India says:—Among the troublesome tribes which dwell beyond the Sind and Punjab frontiers, the most powerful and turbulent are the Murrees. This tribe, or clan of freebooters, occupies a strip of barren country extending eastwards from the Bolan Pass about one hundred and eighty miles, and southwards from Afghanistan about eighty miles. Their capital is Kahun, about a mile from which is the Pass of Thiffook, where took place, in 1839, the first affray between the Murrees and the British, and where they first made the acquaintance of General Jacob, who was then a captain attached to Major Billamore's expedition. Taught by experience, the Murrees, unless driven to unite with other hill tribes against the English, have preferred making raids upon their neighbours to crossing the British frontier; and until lately they have, nominally at least, been our allies, though in 1849, bribed by Dewan Moolraj of Mooltan, 200 of them made a descent upon Mittunkote, but only to be signally defeated. Since that time they have been on their good behaviour till Jan. 26 last, when they made a descent to the number of 1,200, on Hurrund, a town with a fort and a considerable number of houses, situated on the road from Dhera Gaze Khan to Kutch Gundava, to the south-east of Afghanistan. As, however, the villagers, every one of whom is a fighting man, familiar with the tulwar from youth up, and a detachment of the 5th Punjab Cavalry fell upon the invaders, the Murrees gained nothing but a dear-bought lesson by their raid. About a hundred and fifty of them are said to have been killed, including their leader. On the 29th idem, says the Sindian, a party of the same tribe, about a hundred strong, made a raid on their neighbours the Bhoogties, but a detachment of the Sind Horse, which happened to be passing at time, charged upon them, killing fifteen and capturing a prisoner. The disorganised condition of affairs in Afghanistan is sufficient to account for the unsettled state of the frontier, and though there is no occasion whatever for any general alarm, Sir Henry Green is still out with the 2nd Sind Horse and the Rifles, in order to prevent any further attempts at plunder.

ABYSSINIA.—The Times of India says:—News from Abyssinia was received at Bombay on the 5th instant, by the Coromandel steamer, of the Bombay Marine, with despatches from Colonel Merewether, the resident at Aden. The date from Massowah was Jan. 17, and the news from Mr. Rassam and other gentlemen with him bore date of Dec. 12. Though still in detention and under close surveillance, their position was somewhat less irksome than when the last accounts were received. Captain Cameron and two or three others were confined within the precincts of the port of Magdala; but Mr. Rassam and the rest were allowed a considerable range, though some of them were still wearing light manacles. They were, however, all of them in good health, and Dr. Blane and Lieutenant Prideaux were building themselves a comfortable house. The most important item in the news is the altered position of Theodoros, whose rebellious subjects were fast making head against him, and—withstanding he had recently made a raid on Gondar, where he burnt the churches—the territory owning his sway was reduced to two small provinces. His forces are now only about one-fourth the number he commanded last June, when he received Mr. Rassam in full durbar. Hemmed in on all sides, Theodoros busies himself with mechanical pursuits and experiments in the manufacture of unmanageable ordnance; and doubtless is eagerly looking forward to the arrival of the mechanics and machinery. These are encamped in a healthy situation near Massowah, and will in all probability not be sent on till the captives are actually liberated. News has not yet been received from Mr. Flad's messengers, but this need cause no great uneasiness, as it augurs nothing against the success of his mission, they having in all probability been intercepted by some of the rival factions at present contending for supremacy in Abyssinia. A rumour for some time assiduously circulated in Bombay, was somewhat strengthened by the misinterpretation of a telegram, to the effect that an expedition had by Lord Cranborne been ordered against Theodoros; but this course is now believed by those well-informed as to the disposition of the Home and Indian Governments, to be in the present circumstances as improbable as it would be ill-advised and full of risk and difficulty.

RECENT APPOINTMENTS IN CENTRAL INDIA.

—Those who have watched with any degree of attention—and who in the services has not?—the promotions which have been made by the Government of India during the past few years, must occasionally have observed striking instances of officers, civil and military, having great reason to be thankful that if they were not born, they were at least bred, Punjabees. How many officers could be named who now hold distinguished and lucrative posts for which in the opinion of some they have but little aptitude, and for which it is impossible to believe they would have been selected, had not the lines fallen to them in the Punjab. No one can deny that the Punjab has produced as many and as able officers as any district of like extent in India, and that the Punjab officers as a class are quite abreast of those of the other administrations in energy and enlightenment—vide the Punjab jails; but when they have granted them what is in effect a prescriptive right to walk roughshod over the heads of less fortunate but perhaps equally able men, so as to effectually bar their promotion, it is hardly to be wondered at that the custom, now indeed become a rule, should provoke feelings of discontent even among those who may not be in any way affected by its working. Two cases of promotion intended, we believe, if not actually made, have been brought to our notice under the ugly appellation of "jobs," in which cases the lucky men are great friends of the Viceroy and hail from the country of the five waters. The circumstances are, we believe, as follows:—Colonel Chamberlain, the commandant of the 1st Bengal Cavalry, and a fine officer, cannot get a brigade from the Commander-in-Chief, as Sir William Mansfield will only give commands by seniority. But Colonel Chamberlain must be provided for, and a vacancy in the political agency at Gwalior is so filled as to provide a snug berth for him. Major Hutchinson goes home from Gwalior; and instead of appointing some who from the length and value of their services were entitled to expect as speedy promotion as possible, Colonel Daly, of the Central India Horse, and Political Agent, Western Malwa, is to officiate at the Court of Scindia, Colonel Chamberlain taking his place at Augur, as commandant of the Central India Horse, and Political Agent, Western Malwa. And this is not all. Colonel Meade, the Governor-general's Agent for Central India, goes on leave for three or four months, and Colonel Daly is to officiate for him. How these appointments will be regarded in the political service we need not state.—Times of India.

RAILWAY ROBBERY.—We have gleaned a few particulars of the following case, which is about to form the subject of magisterial investigation at Poona. It appears that Mrs. Colonel Moyle and her niece were to have left Poona for Bombay by the morning train of Tuesday last, but happening to arrive at the station too late for that train, they left by the 2:30 P.M. train. Some of their luggage accompanied them in their carriage and some was placed in the guard's break-van, amongst the latter was a leather portmanteau belonging to the young lady. On the following morning, on the portmanteau being opened, it was discovered that it had been opened and its contents evidently been turned over and some articles abstracted, amongst which were a dressing case, a work-box, and the jewels of a jewel-box; a string of pearls, however, being left untouched. Colonel Moyle communicated the circumstance to Major Henderson, the Acting-Commissioner of Police, but could furnish no particulars as to where the robbery was committed or by whom. The circumstance of a valuable string of pearls having been abandoned, whilst jewels of much less value were taken, led to the conclusion that the robber or robbers were not natives. The chief inspector of the railway police was therefore despatched to Poona to institute inquiries. Soon after his arrival a telegram was despatched to Bombay to arrest the two European guards who were in charge of the train by which Mrs. Colonel Moyle and her niece had travelled. Subsequently, another telegram announced that some of the stolen property had been found in Guard Middleton's house, who was one of the two guards who were in custody. On the culprit being placed before Major Henderson, and the startling news of the telegram communicated to him, he burst into tears, and exclaimed, "My God, what will my father say when he hears of this." He then acknowledged having committed the robbery, adding that, goaded on by want, brought on by being kept in arrears of pay, having received as wages only Rs. 36 within the last three months of his employ on the G.I.P. Railway, in an evil hour he was tempted to commit the deed. The other guard was subsequently released and sent on to Poona by last night's train to undergo a preliminary examination in the magistrate's court there.—Bombay Gazette, Jan. 25.

THINGS AT THEIR WORST IN AFGHANISTAN.—Intelligence of a serious character has been received from Afghanistan. The Ameer Sher

Ali has been completely defeated. He left Candahar on 25th December. At that time everything looked well for his cause. East of Cabul Jellal-ood-deen was in arms for him near Jellalabad. Northwards Fyz Mahomed, also in his interest, had just driven back towards Bameean Azim Khan's son, Surwar Khan. And at Khe-lat-i-Ghilzye, directly south of Cabul, the Ameer's vanguard was holding its own well under Futeh Mahomed. Sher Ali had simply to stand on the defensive and bar the road to Candahar, while Fyz Mahomed from the north-west and Jellal-ood-deen and Uslum Khan from the east closed in on the nearly denuded capital and took him in rear. But he seems to have made the same mistake of over impetuosity that he committed at Sheikhabad in May. On the 16th January he sustained a complete defeat in the neighbourhood of Khe-lat-i-Ghilzye from the Cabul force under the command of Azim Khan and Abdool Ruhman. The Ameer fled from Candahar towards Herat on the 21st January. Mahomed Shureef Khan, who for some time past has been hovering about Quetta, pretending to want a passage through Sindh to Mecca, and in reality intriguing with Azim Khan against the Ameer, advanced from Beloochistan and occupied Candahar the day the Ameer left. As he is for the time on the Cabul party's side, Candahar may be said to be held now by Azim Khan. The result of this decisive upset of the Ameer is that Fyz Mahomed, who had just gained a brilliant success over the Cabul troops and driven them out of the country north of Bameean, will probably have to make terms with Azim Khan. The good fortune which attended Sher Ali in the two first years of his reign seems to have entirely deserted him. It is for the interest of India as well as of Afghanistan that he should recover his lawful position. But we must now come to the conclusion, which has long seemed inevitable, that if that unhappy country is to be pacified some new man must arise who will take it from the Barukzais. At present there is no sign of such a one among the competitors for power, and we must resign ourselves to see Afghanistan weltering in strife, bloodshed and anarchy for some time to come.—Friend of India.

SIR ROBERT NAPIER, accompanied by Sir Henry Green, seems to be carefully inspecting the Sindh frontier. A correspondent of the Sindian states that they went as far as Gundooe. On his return on the 15th January His Excellency was met at Dood-Khoostuck by a detachment of the 5th Punjab Cavalry and two hundred and fifty Muzaree Sowars, under their chief Imaun Buksh, and also a host of other wild chieftains. Near this place the camp was startled by three severe shocks of earthquake at 2 a.m. on the 17th. Large masses of rock and earth were loosened from the hill sides, and rolled down with great noise. Sir Robert Napier was to embark at Mitree for Sukkur, where Lady Napier awaited his arrival.

MEDICAL ALLOWANCES.

Jan. 10.—The following letter, received from the Government of India, in the financial department, is published:—

Government of India, Financial Department.

Dec. 17, 1866.—No. 2,131.—Read the following correspondence regarding the extra allowances which are admissible to medical officers in medical charge of civil stations, who have been allowed to draw the military pay of their rank on the full batta scale laid down in the 10th paragraph of the despatch of the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, No. 152, dated May 16, 1864, in lieu of all civil emoluments on the old scale.

Home department's endorsement No. 1,185, dated May 23, 1866.

Home department's endorsement No. 3,855, dated Aug. 22, 1866.

Home department's endorsement No. 4,178, dated Aug. 31, 1866.

Resolution.—The Gov. gen. in Council observes that the only extra allowance which medical officers in the situation above described are allowed to draw for their various civil medical duties is dispensary allowance, sanction for drawing which was accorded in financial resolution, No. 1,171, dated March 16, 1866.

2. The ground of that decision, viz., that the secretaryship of a dispensary is distinct from the medical duties of a civil surgeon, has been put aside in the scheme of revised civil medical salaries, for in that scheme the medical charge of a jail, of police, of public establishments, &c., and the charge of one or more dispensaries, are treated as the ordinary duties of a civil medical officer.

3. Pending the decision of the Secretary of State for India upon the revised scheme of civil medical salaries, the Gov. gen. in Council will not disturb the decision which was passed in this resolution, dated March 16, but at the same time H.E. cannot allow any title to further extra allowances to be drawn from that decision.

4. Were the claims which are urged on behalf of Surgeon major Wylie, civil surgeon of Ahmedabad, and Surgeon major Saunders, late officiating civil surgeon, Patna, to be admitted, they would receive in the amount of full batta pay under the new warrant, and the several extra allowances attaching to the old scale of pay, a larger amount than they could receive prospectively under the scheme which has been submitted to the Secretary of State.

5. Were extra allowances attaching to the old scale of emoluments to be given in addition to full batta rate of pay under the new warrant, a scale of aggregate emoluments, exceeding in many cases the scale which has been submitted to the Sec. of State, would have immediate effect, and so would cause embarrassment in giving effect to the final decision of the Sec. of State.

6. Pending that decision the Gov. gen. in Council cannot go beyond the order of March 16, 1866.

7. Under that order Dr. Saunders is entitled to the warrant pay of his rank on the full batta rate, and Rs. 60 a month as dispensary allowance. This is Rs. 60 more than was given to Surg. maj. Archer, who in 1865 was deputed to the same charge in Patna under similar circumstances.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MARCH 4.

COUNSEL TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA BILL.

On the second reading of the Counsel to the Secretary of State for India Bill,

Mr. Serjeant GASELEE objected to the Bill. A Committee of the House had found that this office came under the statute of Anne, being a new office under the Crown, the holders of which were incapacitated from sitting in Parliament. He moved that the Bill be read a second time that day six months.

Sir G. BOWYER supported the Bill, and Mr. ROEBUCK characterised it as a Bill against an absurdity.

Mr. COLERIDGE thought there would be an inconvenience in a counsel to a department sitting in the House, he being irremovable, and he should therefore vote for the amendment.

Mr. SELWYN said the Bill was simply to remove an anachronism and an accident. Mr. Wigram, when counsel to the East India Company, was not incapacitated from sitting, and it was only through an omission in the Bill which transferred the Government of India to her Majesty that he was incapacitated.

Sir R. PALMER thought it would be well if there was a general revision of the offices the holders of which were now excluded under the statute of Anne, but he objected to their altering the law to meet one particular case.

Sir J. FERGUSSON suggested that the second reading should be withdrawn, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee, a course to which Mr. SELWYN acceded, and the second reading and amendment were withdrawn accordingly.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MARCH 5.

THE ABYSSINIAN CAPTIVES.

Mr. DARBY GRIFFITH asked the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs whether the British artisans who have been or are about to be taken out by Col. Merewether to Massowah are to be exchanged for the captives now detained in Abyssinia, or are to be sent into that country after the latter are released; and, if so, whether it will not require great care and attention to prevent the transaction from simply resulting in the change of one set of prisoners for another?

Lord STANLEY: Strict orders have been given to Col. Merewether that these artisans are, under no circumstances, to go into the interior of the country until all the prisoners now detained by the King of Abyssinia shall be released. (Hear, hear.) They have gone by their own free choice and upon their own responsibility, and I took care before they went that the position and the whole circumstances of the case should be carefully explained to them. As to the last part of the question, it is a matter of argument rather than of fact. All I can say is that, as the House well knows, the whole question of the release of these captives is surrounded with difficulty—(hear, hear)—and we believe that, although the course we have adopted may be open to some objection, still it is, upon the whole, open to the least objection of any, and presents the best chance of successfully effecting the object which we have in view.

(CHIEFLY PERSIAN),

SELECTED FROM THE LIBRARY OF

DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D.,

AND FOR SALE BY

MESSRS. WM. H. ALLEN AND CO., 13, WATERLOO-PLACE, LONDON.

1. LILAVATI.—A celebrated work on Algebra and Geometry, translated from the Sanskrit into Persian, by FAIZI, one of the most learned men of the Emperor Akbar's Court. It is very clearly written, and illustrated with neatly formed diagrams. It is further interlined in pencil with an English translation. It is a very large folio, neatly bound. The Lilavati is followed by two Arabic Treatises on the same subjects, and in the same distinct hand, altogether, pp. 120, ll. 26. £2. 12s. 6d.

4. AINI AKBARI.—"The Institutes of Akbar," a very full and clear statistical account of the Mogul Empire as it existed under Akbar. It was drawn up under the care of ABU-L-FAZL, the Emperor's Grand Wazir, or Prime Minister. It is written in a beautiful Ta'lik hand, on fine paper, with margins ruled in with red lines. In a note written on the fly leaf, both in Shikasta and in English, it is stated that it was formerly bought for the Nawwab Muhammad Riza Khan for the sum of 500 rupees (£50). It is bound in red leather. Large folio, pp. 702, ll. 25. £12. 12s.

5. AINI AKBARI.—Another copy of the preceding work, in a state of perfect preservation, very finely written on good Indian paper, with margins neatly ruled in red and green. Large folio, Oriental binding, pp. 767, ll. 21. £6. 16s. 6d.

6. RAUZATU-L-AHBAB.—"The Garden of Friends," a full and complete history of the life and actions of the Prophet Muhammad, his companions and their disciples; composed by ATA ULLAH AL SHIRAZI, about A.D. 1494. It is divided into three books; the first containing a full account of the genealogy, life, and miracles, etc., of Muhammad up to the time of his death. The second book gives an account of the companions of the prophet; and the third that of the disciples and followers of the companions. It is written in a clear and distinct hand, fine paper, with ruled margin. A few leaves at the beginning slightly imperfect. Large folio, neatly bound, pp. 903, ll. 27. £2. 12s. 6d.

7. RAUZATU-L-SAFA.—"The Garden of Purity," a well-known and highly-esteemed historical work. This MS. contains only the eighth volume or Geographical Appendix of the Rauzat-ul-Safa. For a fuller account of the whole work vide No. 86, further on. This copy is written in a very fine Ta'lik character, on good Indian paper, very large folio, pp. 96, ll. 25. £1. 5s.

8. TARIKHI TABARI.—"The History of Tabari," originally written in Arabic, by ABU JA'FAR BIN JARIR AL TABARI. The Arabic original, like the works of Livy, is only partially preserved. This is the Persian version by Bal'ami with a continuation down to the Caliphate of Almamun, the son of Harun al Rashid. It is esteemed one of the most authentic of ancient histories. This copy wants a few leaves at the beginning, and most probably at the end, as most copies of the work bring down the history to the reign of Mustarshid Billah, about A.D. 1118. It is written in a very distinct Ta'lik character, on good Indian paper, strongly bound. Large folio, pp. 1074, ll. 27. £3. 10s.

9. MAJALISU-L-MUMININ.—"The Assemblies of the True Believers," a valuable biographical work containing the lives of all the eminent men of the Shi'a or Sufi Sect. It is divided into twelve assemblies or books, the twelfth containing the lives of all such of the Persian Poets as were Sufis, concluding with the poet Lisani who died at Tabriz, A.D. 1534. It is written in a very clear, small, and distinct Nasta'lik character, on fine Indian paper, slightly damaged at the end, apparently by a pistol or musket bullet, but otherwise in the finest condition. Large folio, neatly bound, pp. 693, ll. 33. £4. 14s. 6d.

11. DURRU-L-NASR.—"The Pearl of Prose Composition," a miscellaneous collection of interesting prose extracts, consisting of Tales, Extracts, Historical, Religious, and Moral, transcribed at Surat, in A.D. 1602, very distinctly written on good Indian paper. Large folio, pp. 324, ll. 40, various. £2. 10s.

N.B.—The compiler of this work, in his last sentence, tells us that its title is "Durrul-Nazm." This I believe to be an error for "Durrul-nasr," which title I have accordingly ventured to substitute. There is another work quite similar to it as to paper and binding, entitled "Durrul-Nazm wa-l-Nasr," which shall be noticed under No. 42 further on.

13. TARIKHI TABARI.—"The History of Tabari." This is a modernised version of No. 8, composed by ABU 'ABD ULLAH SALIH in the time of Akbar, by command of the celebrated Uzbek chief 'Abd Ullah Khan, the correspondent of Abu-l-Fazl. This is only the first half of the work concluding the subject at the death of Muhammad. It is beautifully written in the Ta'lik character, on fine strong Indian paper. Appended is an ample Table of Contents, in 14 pages. The text of the work consists of pp. 632, ll. 20, large folio. £2. 12s. 6d.

14. TARIKHI TABARI.—"The History of Tabari." This volume contains the second portion of the work described under No. 8. It begins with the birth of the Prophet Muhammad, and concludes with the Caliphate of Mustarshid Billah, about A.D. 1135. The work is in very fine condition, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character. It is in large folio, with neatly ruled margin, preceded by 15 pages of an Index; in all, pp. 815, ll. 21. £3. 3s.

17. MAHABHARAT.—This MS. contains the first nine books—in other words the first half—of the work. It is written in a tolerable Nasta'lik character, on rather coarse Indian paper. It is well bound, in folio, pp. 524, ll. various, from 20 to 23. £1. 11s. 6d.

18. MAHABHARAT.—This MS. comprises the twelfth and succeeding books of the work. It is written in a fair Ta'lik character on various tinted paper, with ruled margin. The last portion of it is written in a hand different from the first, but very clear and distinct. Large folio, pp. 1274, ll. 21. £3. 13s. 6d.

19. PANCHATANTRA, also called PANCHOPAKHYAN.—"The Five Tales or Treatises." A Marhatti translation of the Sanskrit work entitled "Pancha Tantra." It is written in a bold hand in the Modhi character which is in general use among the Marhatta people in their correspondence and official documents. The paper is apparently European and of very fine quality. This copy was transcribed for the use of the late Jno. Romer, Esq., of the Bombay Civil Service. It would prove a valuable acquisition to a student desirous of learning at once the Marhatta language and the Modhi character. Folio, pp. 243, ll. 12. £1. 11s. 6d.

20. MAJMU'A-E KISAS.—"A Collection of Persian Tales," well written on fine paper, in good preservation, neatly bound in 8vo. pp. 826, ll. 19. £1. 11s. 6d.

21. MAJMU'A-E KISAS.—Part 2 of the above collection uniform with the same in every respect, pp. 798. The two volumes form one work, consisting in all of pp. 1624, ll. 19. Prefixed to this second volume is a Table of Contents of both volumes, drawn up by me in pencil. £1. 11s. 6d.

22. MUNTAKHABAT AZ DAWANIN.—"Selections" of the best Odes from twelve of the most esteemed Persian Diwans, beautifully written on variously tinted paper, with richly ruled margins. To each of the twelve Selections is prefixed a beautifully executed 'Anwan. Some of the margins are slightly worm-eaten, but with very few exceptions, the text, as is generally the case, has escaped uninjured. On the fly leaf at the beginning of the volume I have drawn up a list of the twelve poets from whose works these Selections are made. This copy was transcribed in A.D. 1603. 8vo. pp. 886, ll. 17. £3. 3s.

23. DIWANI FIGHANI.—"The Diwan of Baba Fighani of Shiraz," who died at Mashhad, in A.D. 1519. The MS. is beautifully written on fine and strong Persian paper, with margins richly ruled. It is in perfect preservation throughout; transcribed in A.D. 1609. 8vo. neatly bound in ornamented Oriental binding, pp. 411, ll. 12. £3. 13s. 6d.

26. SAB'A-E AMIR KHUSRU.—"Seven Select Masnavis, by Amir Khusrū, of Delhi." This MS. contains, in addition to the Five Poems detailed in No. 12, Sixth, Kisse Khizr Khan (the first Masnawi in the work), being a romance founded on a passage of the History of India, the subject of which is the Loves of Khizr Khan and the Princess Dawal Rani, composed A.D. 1315; and Seventh, Kiranu-l Sa'dain, the conjunction of the two lucky planets, a Historical Poem, the heroes of which are Nasiru-l-Din and Mu'izzu-l-Din. The work is beautifully written on fine paper in the Ta'lik character, the margins richly ruled, with seven highly finished 'Anwans. 4to. pp. 724, ll. 19. £8. 10s.

27. 'IYARI DANISH.—"The Criterion, or Touchstone of Wisdom," being a Persian version of the Fables of Pilpay, composed in an easy style by ABU-L-FAZL (vide Anwari Suhaili, No. 74). The MS. is in good preservation, written in a fine Ta'lik character on good India paper. 8vo. pp. 726, ll. 15. £2. 2s.

28. HADIKATU-L-HAKIKAT.—"The Garden of Truth." A Masnawi, partly Moral and partly Mystic, by HAKIM SANAI, of Ghazni (v. No. 25). It is divided into ten books, and was completed about A.D. 1140. Sanai is reckoned one of the most learned and profound poets of the Sufi sect, second in merit only to Jalalu-l-Din Rumi (v. No. 38). This MS. is in fine preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character on fine glazed paper, with margins very tastefully ruled. It is interspersed throughout with commentaries in prose, and numerous marginal notes explanatory of the text, transcribed in A.D. 1681. Oriental binding, 8vo. pp. 848, ll. 21. £3. 13s. 6d.

J. H. CAMPION COLES, Esq., Eastbourne.

HEAD MASTER.

The Rev. JAMES RUSSELL WOOD, M.A., Trin. Coll., Cambridge.

OBJECT AND PLAN.

I. The Eastbourne College will be opened in August, 1867.

It will be similar in its main features to those already flourishing at Cheltenham, Clifton, Malvern, and other places. The remarkable healthiness of Eastbourne (as shown by the reports of the Registrar-general), its bracing air, its position on the South Coast, and the immediate proximity of the South Downs, unite to render it singularly adapted for an Educational Establishment.

II. The College will be divided into two departments, so as to meet the requirements both of Pupils intended for the Universities, and also of those preparing for the various Competitive Examinations, Civil and Military.

III. The College enclosure contains twelve acres of ground. The buildings will be carried on as speedily as possible, and until they are ready for occupation, the business of the College will be conducted in commodious houses, which have been secured and fitted expressly for the purpose.

The Plan embraces Boarding-houses, with partitioned Dormitories, and all modern improvements, a Chapel, Gymnasium, Fives Courts, and every appliance for Cricket and other School Sports.

EXHIBITIONS AND SCHOLARSHIPS.

One Exhibition and two Scholarships will be open for Competition to Pupils entering the College in August next (1867).

SHARES AND NOMINATIONS.

I. There are 250 Shares of £10 each, distinguished as Class A, and 100 Shares of £20 each, distinguished as Class B, and the Company have power to issue additional Shares in both Classes.

II. Shares in Class A give to Members holding them the perpetual right of nominating one Pupil to the College in respect of each such Share, and such Shares are transferable.

III. Shares in Class B give to Members holding them the right of nominating one Pupil from time to time during the owner's life only, and are not transferable.

IV. Nominations will also be granted by the Council, subject to the additional Fees for Tuition mentioned below. In all cases the Nominee must be approved by the Council.

The liability of all persons taking or holding Shares is limited to the amount of such Shares, by "The Companies' Act, 1862."

TERMS.

I. The charge for Tuition will be Twenty Guineas a year for Pupils nominated by Proprietors of Shares, and Twenty-six Guineas a year for Pupils nominated by the Council.

II. An extra charge will be made for Instruction in Oriental Languages, Drawing, and Natural Science, and a charge of One Guinea a year for the Chapel Fund, and One Guinea for the maintenance of the Gymnasium.

III. The charge for Boarders, exclusive of the above Fees, but including all other ordinary expenses, will be, in the Head Master's house, for Boys above twelve years of age, Seventy Guineas; under twelve years, Sixty-five Guineas; in the other houses, Sixty and Fifty-five Guineas respectively.

VACATIONS.

I. The College Year will be divided into Three Terms, commencing respectively in January, May, and September.

The College will be opened in August next, for the convenience of Pupils leaving other Schools in June, but Pupils will also be received at the ordinary commencement of the Term, in September. Those who are admitted in August will be charged one-third more than the payment for an ordinary Term.

II. The Vacations will be seven weeks in the Summer, to commence towards the end of July, four weeks at Christmas, and three weeks in April.

Applications for admission of Pupils to the Boarding Houses to be addressed to the Rev. JAMES R. WOOD, 41, Leeterrace, Lee, London, S.E., or under cover to the Secretary.

Applications respecting Shares and Nominations to be made to the Secretary, J. H. CAMPION COLES, Esq., Claremont-house, Eastbourne, from whom every information regarding the College may be obtained.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS

I have over and over again proved the best friend to persons afflicted with ulcerations, bad legs, sores, abscesses, fistulas, and every painful and complicated complaint. Bad legs (old age's great grievance) are thus readily cured without confining the patient to bed, or withdrawing him from the nutritious diet and generous support so imperatively demanded when weakening diseases attack advanced years, or constitutions evincing premature decrepitude.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

The Calcutta mail brings us our usual files of papers, from Calcutta to the 12th, Madras to the 14th, and Bombay to the 20th of February.

The most interesting event which had occurred in Calcutta was the public meeting, presided over by the Viceroy, to concert measures for the relief of further impending distress in Orissa. Sir John Lawrence headed the subscription with £1,000, and eight mercantile firms subscribed £250 each.

In connection with this subject a telegraphic correspondence had been published in Calcutta, from which it appeared that on the 18th of January the Viceroy telegraphed to the Secretary of State for India to this effect:—"I find that the entire failure of the winter crop in large tracts of Orissa, consequent on the inundation of last autumn, makes it necessary that the people of those tracts should be largely supported by charity for the next nine months. There are also upwards of fifteen hundred orphans entirely depending on charity. Under these circumstances it will be a great assistance if subscriptions can be raised in England. It is estimated that £100,000 will be required for purely charitable relief. We cannot hope to obtain here anything like that sum, after the liberal manner in which the Indian community has already subscribed. The above sum is exclusive of a large expenditure by Government in providing employment and in importing grain for sale, the loss on which will fall on Government." To this Lord Cranborne on the 21st returned the following reply:—"Your telegram received and sent to the Lord Mayor. He thinks no subscription could be raised here. I have made inquiries, and think he is right. Distress here from panic, frost, and strikes is terrible, and engrosses public attention."

One of the Calcutta papers has been giving currency to a rumour of a "startling and very significant character," to the effect that "Lord Cranborne had come down in sledge-hammer style on Sir John Lawrence," and had preached him a stern and most discourteous sermon on the duties of his high position. Report made the Secretary of State say, "Sir John Lawrence ought to have kept himself well-informed of what took place in Orissa," and that, instead of receiving and recording the "now known-to-be unreliable assurances" of the local Government, he should have interfered actively and potentially; not even shrinking from the grave responsibility of "superseding the action of the Bengal authorities" by a more effective agency. The story, as may be supposed, is contradicted by another paper.

The Rajah of Nattore had been invested with the insignia of the C.S.I. at Calcutta.

Captain Harward's action for damages against Mr. Pollock, the magistrate of Agra, had resulted in the plaintiff's claim being dismissed with costs.

The Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab was expected at Lahore on the 15th February, after a somewhat prolonged absence of more than three months, during which he has visited Agra, Delhi (with a detour into the skirts of Rajpootana), Saharunpore and Roorkee. His Honour reached Umritsur on the 12th, entertained the society of that station at dinner on the evening of the same day, and resumed his march on the 13th. The people of Lahore complain of these long absences of their Governor, and so do those of Allahabad, but we must confess that so long as the business of Government does not suffer and the "Hakim" is ordinarily accessible to the people on his travels, these peregrinations must be of great benefit to the country.

From Madras we learn that the Legislative Council resumed their Sessions on the 9th instant, when the assent of the Governor-general to several Acts passed last year was notified, and notices were given of new Bills to be brought in; the object of one of which is the incorporation of the town police with that of the Mofussil. It will likewise extend magisterial jurisdiction at the Presidency; and amend and consolidate existing laws relative to police matters.

We regret to learn that there was an unusual increase of cholera at Madras toward the close of last month, but the latest report of the state of public health is decidedly more favourable.

"Another novel and amusing spectacle," says a local paper, "has just been witnessed at Madras, namely, that of laying the foundation stone of the new presidency college, which took place on the evening of the 6th of February, accompanied by all the imposing masonic rites observed on such occasions. The brethren of the craft mustered in great strength, under their District Grand Master, R. W. Brother, A. M. Ritchie, with all the striking emblems and adornments belonging to the different grades of the body, and made such a brilliant display as has not been seen here for a great many years; probably not for generations past. Lady Napier and his Highness the Maharajah of Travancore were present when the stone was laid, and his Excellency the Governor bore the chief part in that operation, after which his lordship was fittingly addressed by the R. W. District Grand Master, and made a very feeling and excellent reply."

For the rest Madras seems to be occupied with races, flower shows, and so forth.

The news from Bombay is mainly confined to the farewell dinner being given to Sir Bartle Frere by the members of the Byculla Club, on the 14th of February. It was a very mild affair, however, Sir Bartle making no demonstration as was expected. The Bombay Gazette says:—"It was not generally supposed that the dinner was intended to be a mere Club dinner; but the Chairman, in his opening speech, though he spoke, as usual, very neatly and gracefully, and touched with nice discrimination the chief features in the character of the guest of the evening, strictly limited himself to what may be called the Club view of the demonstration in honour of Sir Bartle Frere; and the Governor himself, in his reply, seemed to think it a point of etiquette not to depart from the line indicated for him by Mr. Scoble. Our curiosity therefore to know what sort of review Sir Bartle himself would take of the policy of his administration during the five eventful years he has held the reins of Government here remains ungratified, and we are left to judge him by his public acts alone."

The section of the Great Indian Peninsular Railway from Sindee to Nagpore was to be opened on the 20th February.

Telegraphic information has been received by His Excellency the Governor that Mr. Fitzgerald left Suez on the evening of Wednesday, the 13th Feb. He will not, it is expected, reach Bombay until the first week of March, in consequence of an intention he entertains of calling at Massowah on his voyage down the Red Sea.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay mail, which may be expected in London on Friday next.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR OF BENGAL ON HIMSELF.

THE digest of Sir Cecil Beadon's defence, which we quoted in our last number, is far more favourable to his conduct than the impression produced by a perusal of the original document.

It is true, as Sir Cecil says, that regular information of the prices of food in the famine-stricken districts was published; that provision was made for the employment of the able-bodied poor on public works; that relief committees were organised in the several districts; that the local officers were authorised to expend money in Government estates for the alleviation of the distress; that pecuniary aid was granted from the North-West Famine Fund; and that large quantities of rice were exported into Orissa from Calcutta and the Burmese ports. But the question is one of dates, and those furnished by the Lieut.-governor himself show that every really effective measure was forced upon the Government and adopted too late for the emergency. From the beginning of November until the end of March Mr. Barlow, Collector of Pooree, Messrs. Gisborne and Co., Colonel Rundall, and Mr. Boothby, of the East India Irrigation Company, as well as Sir A. Cotton, who wrote to the Secretary of State on the subject, urged the importation of food into Orissa without success. Even the Viceroy consulted Sir Cecil on the subject, and was induced to yield to his representations that such assistance was inexpedient and unnecessary. The ground upon which the refusal was based, as expressed by the Board of Revenue, was the "interference with the laws of political economy" which would be involved. To Sir Arthur Cotton's letter, which was communicated by the Government of India in March, the Lieutenant-governor replied, on the 28th of that month, that, "there is no prospect of a famine in Bengal. The supposed necessity for constructing a large flotilla for the carriage of food to the eastward does not exist. The natural fluctuations of prices has been found sufficient to attract food to the districts in which it was scarcest; and though grain is still very dear, there is no reason to suppose that the stock in the country is insufficient for the consumption of the people." This sounds plausible enough, but the simple fact was that the laws of supply and demand failed altogether, and famine had it all his own way. By the latter end of May it had reached its height, and then, and not till then, did the Bengal Government take direct and efficient means for its mitigation. All the grain that could be procured was sent up to the afflicted districts, and when the Board of Revenue interfered as before in the interests of political economy, it was told to "consider the question of importation with reference to the price of rice, and the possibility of importing it at a cheaper rate than it can be purchased on the spot, and not with any reference to the propriety or otherwise of Government interference, or to the fear of underselling local dealers." This rebuke, made in March instead of in May, would have saved the lives of thousands. As it was, the first efficient measures adopted did not take effect until the 20th of June, by which time the most terrible period of the distress was at an end, and the mortality had begun to decrease of itself.

With regard to money, Sir Cecil Beadon was even more obstinate than with regard to food. The raising of subscriptions was first advocated in the Calcutta papers on the 12th of April, and the Chamber of Commerce, which took the matter in hand soon afterwards, made several appeals for the formation of a committee without effect. A public meeting was held for the same purpose: But it was not until the 9th of August—the famine having been at its height during the latter part of May—that the Lieutenant-governor telegraphed to the Board of Revenue to give every encouragement to the object. How he subsequently made precisely the same mistake in calculating upon the sufficiency of the local subscriptions, and advising Lord Cranborne to refuse the co-operation of the Mansion House Committee, is fresh in the recollection of our readers. Lord Cranborne did not give his authority at the time, but Sir Cecil Beadon, in his speech upon the subject to the Legislative Council, acknowledges himself to be the author of the mischief.

The work of administration was equally neglected. Sir Cecil Beadon tells us that one additional assistant was sent to each of the three districts, and that those already there were invested with higher powers. Also that a special collector was sent to Balasore, three Europeans of the Public Works Department being placed at his disposal for relief operations, and leave given him to entertain, on the spot, any additional establishment he might require. Further, that two extra officers were sent to superintend the Relief Public Works; that the police were strengthened; and that an additional judge and seven native doctors were sent to Balasore. But the personal aid, like the food and the money, came too late, and it had more to do in keeping desperate wretches in order than in aiding the work of relief. Appeals for extra assistance had been previously made without success; an incompetent man was kept for two months without removal, and one month was occupied in providing a successor to a European Deputy who had died in the midst of the horrors of June.

The Lieutenant-Governor's explanation of his main mistake—that with regard to food—is worth giving in his own words. "In Bengal and Behar," he says, "it was not food that was wanting, but money to buy it. But as regards the Orissa district it must be admitted now that it would have been right for the Government to import a large stock of rice in November on public account, and store it in the Province, so that it might have been available for sale and distribution when the pressure arrived. I am free to confess that in deciding not to recommend the adoption of this measure I relied too much both on the resources of the province itself and on the ability of private enterprise to supply a possible deficiency from other quarters, and that I believed that in Orissa (as in Bengal and Behar) the question was one of money rather than of food. Whether the decision at which the Government arrived involved any culpable want of foresight it is not for me to judge. I will only say that my error, if it was an error, was shared not only by every member and officer of the Local Government, but by the Government of India, the public, and the press." The latter assertion is surely unsupported by facts. That Sir Cecil was misled by local subordinates seems not very probable, and it is certain that he forced the Board of Revenue to change its policy as soon as he thought fit, while the Viceroy himself was made to yield to his influence. As for the local press, it would be impossible to read the extracts published in our own columns during the past twelve months without seeing the injustice of the remark.

The most curious characteristic of the document is the complete scale upon which the defence is prepared. Formerly Sir Cecil Beadon used to ignore all criticism not coming from superior authority. Now, he argues the question out with the local and home press upon equal terms, and even goes, with rather undignified pains, into a discussion of his own labours with reference to those of Lord Napier, in reply to the "odious comparison" suggested by Lord Cranborne in his commendation of the latter. The most satisfactory explanation as to this part of the subject is that referring to Sir Cecil's absence at Darjeeling, which he excuses on the score of ill-health. Altogether the defence is far more damaging to its author than all the accusations that have been made against him. He would, probably, have preferred allowing judgment to go by default, and having the benefit of the possibility that he had been unjustly condemned. But Lord Cranborne's demands would not permit of such a course, and the result is an exposure which must be deeply mortifying to its subject, just at the close of his official career. It only confirms, however, the opinions of those who have known most of Sir Cecil Beadon during his long course of service, more especially when he misled Lord Canning in the mutinies, and blundered the war with Bhootan. It must be said for Lord Canning that he allowed himself to be deceived only once. Sir J. Lawrence has, with lamentable fatuity, permitted the influence of his subordinate to overcome his own judgment upon two conspicuous occasions. It is more curious, too, that he should have been off his guard, as the course pursued in the present is precisely the same as in the two former cases—i.e., denial of the danger, admission of the danger to a partial extent, rebuking bearers of warnings, rejection of special remedies, acceptance of warnings in a certain degree, adoption of special remedies to an insufficient extent, discovery that things are quite as bad as originally alleged, persistence in obstinate policy of letting them get worse, finding the case one of vital urgency, and then doing everything that ought to have been done at first—too late to be of any effect except in averting utter ruin.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

(By Direct Overland Telegraph.)
THE INDIAN BUDGET.

CALCUTTA, March 5.

Mr. Massey made his financial statement in the Legislative Council to-day. The accounts for the year ending April last show a surplus of nearly £3,000,000. This year there is an estimated deficit of over £2,000,000, including the extraordinary expenditure for public works. The budget for the coming year shows a probable deficiency of £500,000, exclusive of any extraordinary expenditure. Mr. Massey proposes an irrigation loan of £2,000,000, and £1,000,000 for barracks. The duty on saltpetre and machinery is abolished. The export duty on grain, and the import duty on champagne and expensive wines, is raised 50 per cent. There will be a new license tax, and a tax of 2 per cent. is to be levied on incomes, including those of public servants, with certain exceptions. It is expected that these new taxes will yield £500,000.

THE SECRET OUT.—A local paper says:—The elopement at Kamptee still shows that scandals are prevalent in that station. The names of the parties need be kept secret no longer, the gentleman being Ensign Watts, of the Royal Regiment, and the lady Miss Annie Stewart, daughter of a commissioned warrant officer.

FAMINE RELIEF MEETING IN CALCUTTA.

The meeting at the Town-hall last night was more successful than was perhaps anticipated. The building, although not crowded, yet contained a sufficient number to represent the various classes, European and Native, in Calcutta. The leading members of both communities mustered in strength, and a goodly sprinkling of our fair countrywomen added certainly to the importance and success of the meeting.

His Excellency the Viceroy in a clear and thoughtful address briefly placed before the assembly the object of calling them together. He explained that it was one regarding which there ought to be no difference of opinion nor scope for controversy, but one in which all ought heartily to unite, irrespective of any distinctions of caste, creed, or colour, viz., to assist the State in relieving the great and terrible distress still prevailing in parts of Orissa, and to provide funds for the support of the numerous orphans whom the calamities of last year have left without their natural protectors. His Excellency, after mentioning the sad state of the districts for which help was required, informed the meeting of the action which Government was taking in the matter. It was calculated that 27,000 tons of rice would have to be imported into the province of Orissa, and the Government had arranged for the introduction of half that quantity by the 1st of April, the remainder to follow as rapidly as was found necessary. This rice will be supplied by the Government at its own charge, selling it at a moderate rate to those who are able to purchase, and distributing it gratis to the destitute. The Government will also give employment to all people who are willing and able to work, and will make some remission of land revenue. The Irrigation Company have also been offered a loan from the Imperial chest of any moneys which may be required for the prosecution of their works this year—an offer which the agent has accepted. The loss likely to be entailed upon Government will be about twenty lakhs, but, independent of this outlay, it is estimated that 10 lakhs further will be required for the maintenance of the orphan children, some 2,000 more or less, whose parents have perished in the late famine. His Excellency had given to the public the result of his appeal to the people at home. Lord Cranborne considered that it was impossible, owing to the great prevalent distress at home, to raise money to help India. His Lordship, however, had given full sanction to the expenditure of imperial funds upon this account, and had even authorised a loan being opened, if required. His Excellency thought, notwithstanding, that the public of India should do their best in the meantime to collect subscriptions. He had great hopes that the native princes and chiefs—the great landholders and bankers, would come forward to help their countrymen in this crisis. His Excellency concluded his very practical address by an appeal to the generous sympathies of all who heard him, especially to those of the native community of whom he held the confident expectation that on an occasion of this kind, which was an appeal on behalf of their own countrymen and brethren, they would maintain their ancient reputation for open-handed charity.

His Excellency was followed by other speakers, who eloquently and forcibly urged the same views upon the meeting. Owing to the late hour at which the meeting broke up, we cannot give these speeches this morning, but a full report will appear in to-morrow's Englishman. Before the close of the meeting his Excellency announced the gratifying fact that eight firms of this city had subscribed

Rs. 25,000 each towards the object of the meeting, which sum his Excellency proposed to augment by a donation from himself of Rs. 10,000. His Excellency has already subscribed largely to the Famine Fund, and as this further donation gives added proof to his earnestness in this matter, it is to be hoped that his liberal example will be speedily and generously followed.—Englishman, Feb. 12.

THE TEA COLLAPSE.

We continue to receive the most harrowing accounts of the destitution to which many planters in Assam have been reduced by the collapse of tea companies in Calcutta. In Upper Assam alone there is a large number of young men induced to leave home by salaries of Rs. 100 a month, whose pay is grievously in arrears, and who have no means of livelihood. Calcutta abounds in such, who have either managed to get out of the province or have arrived in the hope of finding employment there. But the fate of many who have no means of leaving Assam is very sad. Some are starving, and in one place receive scanty meals from the charity of an hotel-keeper. We are told of one man with a wife and large family who cannot pay the steamer's fare to Calcutta, and lives on rice. They are worse off than the coolies, for in some cases the authorities have stepped in to free the latter from their engagements on account of arrears. But their masters can get no work, and the companies which engaged them are not bound to take them back to Calcutta, nor are able to do so, being in many cases insolvent or non-existent. Now is the time for the Public Works Department in ruined districts like Durrung to open out the old rajah's road and tempt labour into the province by natural means.

The most sensible opinions on this subject which have yet appeared from an official source are to be found in a letter from Mr. Buckland, Commissioner of Dacca, to the Bengal Government, dated 21st November last. He would sweep away all the recent legislation of the Bengal Council which has done so much to ruin the tea interests, and leave labour and its employers to deal with each other, subject to the condition that the parties shall make their contracts before a magistrate. The medical difficulty he would meet by requiring the employer to produce with each labourer a certificate of health and a descriptive roll and contract. As there must be coolie depots he would leave their management to the local municipalities. Abuses on the voyage he would prevent by offering the captains of steamers a premium on the number of coolies who reach their destination in good health. The recruiting regulations he denounces as a stigma on Government, "If it is supposed that tens or hundreds of men could be brought away for hundreds of miles from their homes, into Calcutta, which deems itself an enlightened and civilised capital, by a system of fraud and delusion or of violence. Let natives go and come as they please, subject to the ordinary law." Reception houses for the coolies would still be necessary in the tea districts, but the cost would be borne by the Calcutta hirer. He would divide Cachar and Assam into medical circles, the officer of each of which, paid by a rate, would care for the planter as well as the coolie, visiting each estate once a week. This officer would be an efficient protector, and the complaint of the want of courts would be removed by thus diminishing the necessity for magisterial interference. In Cachar Mr. Buckland has long recommended the establishment of two new sub-divisions, but has received no answer from the lieutenant-governor.

With one exception Mr. Buckland's suggestions will receive the support of the friend of the coolie as well as of the planter. Their weak point is in trusting to the self-interest of steamer captains for the health of coolies during the voyage. A committee is still sitting in Calcutta to determine how it happens that the mortality of labourers in the tea districts is greater under the elaborate and expensive regulations of the Bengal Government than it used to be in their absence. It will probably be found that the proportion of European mortality there has been even higher, and this the committee should ascertain. Every year we have allowed Assam to be more and more covered with jungle, and therefore to increase in unhealthiness. The late Commissioner, Gen. Jenkins, remarked this in his time. The good work of clearance, effected by English skill and capital, has been arrested, and large tracts of tea are now relapsing into jungle. Experience seems to show that the mortality is due chiefly to the fact that others than the aboriginal tribes of the jungle hills of Sonthalistan have been engaged as coolies. The Cole, the Sonthal, the Dangar and the Boonea, do not die, but the Hindostanee, Bengalee, and Madrassese of the cultivated plains. Unfortunately, unless Assam and Cachar be made a separate Government, there will be no one to carry out these suggestions or any others that may be made. Mr. Buckland himself would make a good Chief Commissioner. The present Commissioner of Assam lives at Shillong, and does not, we believe, profess to govern, for he, too, complains that he receives no answer from his superiors to the suggestions which he makes. It is unfortunate that just at the time the Government of India is prepared to adopt a broad and wise policy in this matter, the Indian Council has been led by the case of Donald to the conclusion that it is the rule of the Assam planters to maltreat their coolies. The memorandum of Major Lees and this letter from Mr. Buckland may open their eyes, but meanwhile another year is likely to be lost by the ignorant interference of the Secretary of State.—Friend of India.

COURT OF THE DEWANNY ADALUT.—AGRA, Jan. 31.—Captain Harward, R. A., plaintiff, v. A. R. Pollock, Esq., Magistrate of Agra. Claim to recover Rs. 5,000 damages on account of illegal arrest and false imprisonment. The plaintiff's claim is based upon malice and absence of good faith. The Judge, Mr. Paterson, went minutely through the arguments on both sides, and concluded as follows:—I am of opinion that the case for the prosecution fails in all respects. It is shown that the defendant acted entirely within jurisdiction, and that he arranged the arrest and demand for bail in such manner as to avoid harsh measures and with consideration for the plaintiff's feelings. The arrest was made at the plaintiff's house, and the bail was then and there accepted; the plaintiff's attendance at the Magistrate's Court was not required. No part of the defendant's proceedings throughout the case is shown to have been done out of good faith, but, on the contrary, it is shown that he acted in the legal and proper discharge of his duty. The claim is dismissed with costs.

THE TALLOW TREE.—Why is it that in India people will not make more use of the resources open to them? What resident in this country has not experienced a constant and wearing anxiety as to the difficulty and expense of lighting his house? Why should not the produce of the tallow tree be introduced for general use? Since its transportation from China to India it has flourished with great luxuriance in the Dehra Dhoon, in the Dhoons and Kohistan of the North-Western Provinces, and the Punjab, and there are now tens of thousands of trees in the Government plantations of Kowlaghir, Hawul Baugh, and Ayar Tolie, from which tons of seeds are available for distribution. Dr. Jameson prepared from the seeds 100 lbs. of tallow, and forwarded some to the Punjab Railway to have its properties as a lubricator for railway machinery tested. The tallow is excellent for burning; it gives a clear, bright, inodorous flame, and emits no smoke. The tree grows with great rapidity, and fruits abundantly both in the Dhoons and plains; trees raised from seeds eight years ago are now three feet in height and six feet in circumference. The timber is white and close grained, well fitted for printing blocks. The leaves, too, make a valuable dye. If all that we read of the numerous useful purposes to which the different parts of this plant can be adapted is true its cultivation would be more profitable than that of tea, coffee, or cinchona. We hope, however, that if the cultivation of it is taken up by speculators and capitalists there will not be such a headlong rush into tallow as there was into tea, when the mania for tea companies was at its height, from the debilitating effects of which disease the unhappy patients are now suffering.—Delhi Gazette.

PROPOSITION FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A MEDICAL COLLEGE AT DACCA.—A correspondent suggests the importance of having a medical college established in this city. The reasons he assigns for such a measure are cogent, and cannot but commend themselves to every unprejudiced mind. We do not see why medical colleges should be confined only to presidency towns, and not extended to large important Mofussil stations, such as Dacca, and a few other places that we could mention. By the present arrangement only the wealthier classes in the interior can afford to send their sons to the Presidency College to study for medical honours, whilst those with limited means are debarred from such advantages on account of the expense which is involved in the undertaking. A medical college at Dacca would enable the poorer as well as the affluent classes of this district to have their sons educated for the medical profession, and would therefore be a boon to the community in general. No one will deny the good which the medical college at the Presidency effects in sending out yearly a number of competent medicos to supply the place of the ignorant koberaroes who abound in every village and city. This benefit would be greatly augmented were medical colleges multiplied in Mofussil stations. Whatever the cost may be to the State, we think a paternal Government, such as that of the British, should offer every facility to the native youth in the study of the noble science of medicine, and this can only be done by carrying out what we have proposed. The subject is deserving the consideration of the Government, and we trust it will receive that attention which it merits.—Dacca News, Feb. 2.

THE UPPER INDIA COMMERCIAL ASSOCIATION.—At a meeting of the shareholders of the Upper India Commercial Association (Limited), held at Umballa on the 1st Feb., it was resolved that the company should be wound up voluntarily. Five liquidators were appointed, viz., Major Goad, as a large shareholder and director; Mr. Peterson, secretary of the Simla Bank, the bank being a large creditor; Mr. Wood, the company's general manager; Mr. Pittis, representing the late firm of Anderson and Co., one of the members of the coalition, and Mr. Harding, one of the company's agents. We believe these gentlemen constitute the five. We are told that, as far as can be judged by the balance-sheet submitted to the meeting, the company has during the two years of its existence done a large and profitable business. But the promoters did not originally succeed in raising a sufficient amount of capital for all purposes, and to the fact of some of the vendors of the concerns upon which the company was founded being unwilling to await the payment of certain sums of overdue purchase money any longer is chiefly to be attributed the necessity for the measure which is now about to be carried out. Commerce in all shapes is in too bad odour to obtain credit anywhere at present; in a better state of things aid might have been possible to carry the company on. It is believed that by a process of gradual, careful, and judicious liquidation, that very little loss need be suffered by anyone interested in the end.—Pioneer, Feb. 6.

THE POWDER WORKS AT ISHAPORE.—The new Powder Works at Ishapore are very nearly completed—that is, as far as the buildings are concerned. They are spoken of by competent parties as reflecting great credit on the engineers charged with their construction, and on Lieutenant-Colonel Voyle, the Government Powder Agent, who has practically enacted the part of Consulting and Superintending Engineer on the spot, since the commencement of the work. The requisite machinery for manufacturing operations is being made in England, and will be a great improvement on the old machinery, in substitution of which it is to be employed. The powder will by it be subjected to about 800 revolutions of the granulating and finishing cylinders, whereas formerly the number of revolutions did not exceed 250. Thus the most improved descriptions of powder, requisite for Armstrong ordnance and the new fire arms will be manufacturable at Ishapore, and at the rate of 5,000 barrels per annum.—Indian Daily News, Feb. 6.

WAIFS AND STRAYS.—The Lahore postmaster publishes a curious list of refused articles which have remained unclaimed in the Dead Letter Office for upwards of a year. Most of them are books, and all the books are not of a highly moral character. The Agra Messenger seems to have refused "Remarks on Certain Anonymous Articles." Several addressees have declined to take song books. A lady at Simla refuses two pairs of gloves. One gentleman will have nothing to do with a baby's corta. The following strange articles are altogether rejected by several addressees, both Natives and Europeans—a pair of shoes, a comb and a striped sheet, two pairs of stockings and "a torn half pantaloons." The very miscellaneous collection, including the last article, will be sold by auction in three months if not claimed.

SERVICE AS COMMISSIONER.—Under Acts XXIV. and XXV. of 1862 a service of three years as a zillah judge was made the necessary qualification for a civilian for a seat on the bench of the High Court. Some time since the question was raised whether a commissioner of a district, exercising the powers of a judge, was entitled to reckon such service as part of the time required to render him eligible for a High Court judgeship, and the Governor-general decided that such service did not come within the meaning of the Act. The Secretary of State has now confirmed the decision of the Governor-general.—Englishman.

ACTION AGAINST THE INDIAN GOVERNMENT.—Mr. Justice Turner has delivered judgment in the case of the Great Eastern Hotel Company (Limited), v. the Secretary of State for India. The suit was to recover possession of two plots of land, described as lots Nos. 1 and 2, on a certain Government plan of the new Civil Station at Allahabad, from which the plaintiffs have been evicted by the Collector of Allahabad, acting on behalf of the defendant. Judgment was given for the plaintiffs, who were shown to hold a lease of the land for fifty years.

THE CINCHONA PLANT.—Dr. T. Anderson reports most favourably on the temperate plants grown in the small garden adjoining the dwelling house of the European gardener engaged in cultivating cinchona, near Darjeeling. The list of herbaceous plants now exceeds 500 species. The garden was beautiful last spring. A considerable collection of seeds of annuals (exceeding 100 species) was made in this temperate garden in autumn. Seeds should be obtained from Darjeeling for the cold weather gardens in the plains.

THE AGRA EXHIBITION.—The Exhibition was officially closed by his Honour the Lieutenant-governor on Saturday afternoon (the 9th Feb.), although it will in reality remain open till the 20th February, or until such time as there are any articles unsold; but at the same time all exhibitors wishing to remove their property may do so. Unlike the opening, the closing ceremony was performed in the open air, under shamianas, an arrangement which appeared to me to be a very great improvement. Delhi Gazette.

THE AGRA HIGH COURT.—The Pioneer states that Mr. Justice Pearson, of the Agra High Court, a civilian, has resigned his appointment, and fears that the cause is the usurping of the whole authority of the court by Chief Justice Morgan. Mr. Pearson was the best of the old Sudder Judges. The Chief Justice is an able lawyer and has been doing much good in the North West, but he certainly lacks the sauveter in modo.

MAJOR CURTIS.—We are glad to state that the case of Major J. C. Curtis, of the 4th Bengal Cavalry, which has so long been painfully before the public, is at length settled by that officer being permitted to retire from the service on the pension to which he is entitled. This is the best ending that could be made to this miserable matter.—Englishman.

THE RECENT ALLOWANCE TO CHAPLAINS.—On the recommendation of the Lord Bishop of Calcutta, the Government of India, we understand, by a financial resolution, has lately ruled that all chaplains should be entitled to an additional pay of Rs. 50 per mensem for visiting jails and lock-ups.

THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.—The return of traffic for the week ending 27th Jan., 1867, shows the coaching receipts to have been £12,241. 10s. 11d., and the goods receipts, £37,169. 5s. 7d.; total, £49,410. 16s. 6d., or per mile, £43. 13s. 9d. The earnings per mile in the previous week was £40. 6s. 7d.

MADRAS.

A NATIVE FEMALE LECTURER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "MADRAS TIMES."

Sir,—I feel as much pleasure in bringing to the notice of the public as I am sure the public will feel to hear that a lecture on very important subjects was delivered at this station on the evening of Saturday last, the 12th inst., by a native lady, Geyanathivam Ummal, daughter of Vadanoyagum, Poet of Tanjore.

Permission to use the Wesleyan Mission School-house for the occasion was kindly granted, and by 8 P.M., when the discourse commenced, the room was well filled by a respectable and attentive audience.

The speech, which lasted fully three hours, had for its more immediate object the consideration of the subject of religion, and, in its course, the learned lady touched upon various other topics, all having reference to our moral and social as well as religious obligations, and to our intellectual condition. The statements made were ably supported, both by prose and verse quotations from well-known writers.

The audience took the most lively interest in the instructive and eloquent discourse, and all present appeared thoroughly to appreciate the benevolent and philanthropic motive which led this native lady to make her appearance in public.

Apart from the novelty of the thing, this being the first occasion on which a female of this part of the country has ventured to address a public audience, too much cannot be said in praise of the boldness of the act which has struck all with wonder and surprise.

This public-spirited female, who has deservedly merited the esteem and approbation of her admiring and grateful countrymen, has set an example which all who wish this land well wish to see more generally followed. The influence of the female in the formation of the character of a nation is unquestionable, proofs of which constantly pass before us; and we know that whatever we see that is good and estimable in the character of the Englishman is invariably due to female influence, the foundation being in almost every case laid at the mother's knee. In these days, when the subject of female education in India is gaining in all quarters the attention it necessarily demands, it will not be deemed presumptuous if we venture to look forward to the day when the great and good among my own countrymen will be able to ascribe all their greatness and goodness to the blessed influence exercised over them in childhood by their educated mothers.

Being of opinion that an event of the description above noticed should be known far and wide, I take the liberty of asking for its publication in your columns.—I remain, Sir, yours obediently,

AN AUDITOR.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE MAHARAJAH OF TRAVANCORE started on his return journey this morning (Feb. 13) under a salute from the fort battery. On the evening of February 8 Lord Napier gave a public ball at the Banqueting-hall, which was very numerous attended. Among those present were the Maharajah, Prince Azim Jah, the Rajah of Vencatagerry and a large gathering of native gentlemen. The following day the Maharajah proceeded to Guindy to witness the race for the Star of India Plate given by himself. The plate was won by an English mare named Czarina, recently imported by a few gentlemen of sporting proclivities. His Highness has made good use of his time while in Madras, and scarcely a day passed that he did not visit some place or other. The People's Park seemed to be his favourite place of resort, and he has undertaken to supply some additional specimens to the collection of birds. His Highness has held receptions of both Europeans and natives, and the open genial manner in which he received his visitors has impressed the public generally in his favour. Notwithstanding a slight impediment in his speech he speaks English remarkably well, and understands it perfectly. On the evening of the 11th he gave a grand ball in the Banqueting-hall to all the principal European and native residents in Madras. In the afternoon a review of the troops garrisoning Madras was held on the island, at which Lord Napier and his Highness were both present. Altogether the Maharajah has good reason to be satisfied with his visit to Madras. H.M.S. Feroze arrived from Calcutta on Saturday for the purpose of conveying Lord and Lady Napier to Calcutta on a short visit to the Governor-general. It was expected that his lordship would leave here about the 15th, but we hear that the date of his departure has been postponed till about the 26th instant.—Madras Times.

THE WRETCHED POSTAL COMMUNICATION between Madras and Bombay has long been a fertile source of complaint on the part of the Madras public. By the new arrangements, which are just now about to come into force, all the principal European correspondence will come via Bombay. It has become absolutely necessary, therefore, that the postal service should be improved. We recently drew attention to some correspondence on the subject that had passed between the Madras Chamber of Commerce and the Government. We are glad to be able to report that the Government has at last made a move in the matter. As is pretty generally known, the mails coming through Bombay are sent by rail from Bombay to Poonah, then from Poonah to Bangalore by carts, and from Bangalore to Madras by rail. The great delay hitherto has been between Poonah and Bangalore, and the Government in their reply to the representations of the Chamber attempted to explain it by "exceptional circumstances," the state of the past season, and the price of gram. The real cause of delay, however, was that the Government did not keep sufficient horses on the road to do the work efficiently. We now learn that the Postmaster-general of Madras has just succeeded in getting the sanction of the Supreme Government to an increase of two horses on every stage of the above route. This arrangement will enable the Post-office officials to send the whole mail in one batch, instead of by instalments as heretofore. There is every reason to believe moreover that the mails will be sent on from Bangalore by express trains instead of being kept waiting, sometimes perhaps for nearly two hours, for the ordinary morning or evening train. We have not heard yet whether similar expedition is to be used between Bombay and Poonah. We should hope so at all events. There can be little doubt that if the Government is only willing to avail itself of all the means of rapid communication that are at its disposal, the postal service between this city and Bombay might be reduced to an average of 70 hours instead of 108 and 120 hours, which seems to have been about the average time for the past year.—Madras Times.

A MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT occurred in Madras early yesterday morning, by which Mr. W. Birks, the Manager of the Agra Bank, met his death. About six o'clock Mr. Birks started from his house for a ride; his horse appears to have become restive, and bolted with him. When near the Chetput Toll-bridge the unfortunate gentleman was thrown. His skull was fractured, and he died almost immediately. He was buried this morning in the Cathedral Cemetery. He had only just completed with Mr. Balfour, the General Manager, the necessary arrangements for opening the resuscitated bank on the 1st March next.—Madras Times, Feb. 13.

To London and Liverpool.—Cotton, 22 to 23. 5s.; Hides and Skins, 22. 5s. to 22. 10s.; Indigo, 23. 10s. to 23. 15s.

Imports.—The recent large arrivals both from England and Bombay have had a very depressing effect upon prices, and the value of 7lb. Shirts has fallen to about Rs. 7-2. There have been some sales of light and heavy Shirts, though the ordinary weights have been in very little demand, and there is still a fair inquiry for Mule Twist at from Rs. 4-15 to Rs. 5. Prints of good quality have also been in demand, and fair sales made, but the stocks on the market are very large. Coloured Yarns, of which there are also heavy stocks, are dull. Metals have been in rather more inquiry; Bar Iron has been sold at Rs. 23-8 per catty, and Tin Plates at Rs. 17 per box.

Exports.—The stock of Cotton in Madras is still very small, and dealers are holding back, believing that prices will go up. In consequence of the small supplies in the market, the quotation has gone up within the last few days Rs. 4 or 5 per catty.

BOMBAY.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DOCK ACCOMMODATION FOR BOMBAY.—As the question of dock accommodation for Bombay is one of such paramount importance, we have always endeavoured to take a candid view of every proposal brought forward to supply the want, and have never hesitated to give publicity to the opinions of persons entitled to form one on the subject, even though those opinions may have differed materially from our own. With this object in view we extracted from the Bombay Builder an article on the scheme proposed by Mr. Aitken—not that we by any means agree with everything expressed therein, but because we consider it desirable that the views of the only professional paper in the presidency should be known. There is indeed in the article in question much that we differ from, and should feel strongly inclined to deal with at length, did time permit; but in the meantime there are one or two points which demand immediate attention. These are the "glaring inaccuracies and inconsistencies" which the Builder has discovered in Mr. Aitken's report; and first, that regarding the comparative statement of "what is done now in Bombay and what might be done, when, say two millions sterling have been expended in improvements." It will be seen that this so-called inconsistency has no existence in reality, when it is borne in mind that Mr. Aitken has distinctly expressed himself of opinion that the money now being expended to provide wharfage accommodation for bunder boats in Moody Bay alone would have proved sufficient to provide deep docks and wharves as well. But this it is perhaps convenient for our contemporary to forget. Again, the writer in the Builder assumes that only thirty vessels can lay alongside the wharfs at one time, having chosen to take no notice of the 3,000 feet of dock-wall, which could accommodate at least a dozen ships. In a similar manner an attempt is made to show that Mr. Aitken's estimated saving of thirty-nine lacs yearly is fictitious; but, even if the statement put forward in the Builder is assumed to be correct, the calculated thirty-nine lacs would still be saved. If there are thirty-one berths, and each ship of 1,000 tons remains alongside for five weeks, 10,000 tons of shipping would be loaded and unloaded at each berth; and as there are, as the article says, thirty-one of them, the total shipping which might pass through the dock would amount to 310,000 tons register. But there are in all forty-six berths in the proposed scheme, and room for two ships to lay alongside each, so that at least ninety-two ships might be loading and unloading at once. In Glasgow, for instance, there are frequently five or six tiers of shipping along the quays. The Builder plumes itself upon the fact that its cry of "no docks" has been echoed in the Chamber of Commerce, and we believe an influential firm will attempt to make out that the schemes for providing ship-docks are all premature and uncalled-for. Those who choose to take this very limited and short-sighted view of the matter talk a great deal about what "might be done" by bunder boats—such as unloading a cargo in ten days. This is all very well for once in a way, but the average work must be taken into account, and not merely what can be done on a spurt—and what about the three months' monsoon? Mr. Ormiston's report shows that five weeks is the average time for a vessel to remain in dock even in England; and money expended on the building of basins for bunder boats would be in a great measure thrown away, as these can never supply the place of suitable docks for European shipping, which must be had, and which will inevitably supplant the bunder boat system.—Times of India.

AN OFFER OF A WIFE.—We see in the Bombay papers a story to the effect that the moment it was known that Sindia had deputed a trustworthy agent to look out for a bride for the heir whom he recently adopted, a native in Poona sent a friend to Gwalior with the offer of his daughter's hand. The writer does not know whether a photograph was also sent. When a certain young chief, who is deformed, applied to Sindia for his daughter, the Maharaja insisted on first seeing the bridegroom's portrait and then refused his suit.

CHINA & JAPAN.

HONG KONG, Feb. 1.

The new service between San Francisco and Hong Kong has been opened. A serious gunpowder explosion has occurred on board a powder hulk and the Bremen schooner Themis, in Hong Kong harbour. Both vessels were blown to atoms. Many lives were lost, and the damage is very considerable. The steamer Corea has been wrecked between Hayyay and Japan.

Intelligence received here from Japan announces that the foreign ministers have accepted Stotsbashi's invitation to visit him at Osaka. The Japanese Government and the foreign ministers have concluded an agreement for building a new settlement at Yokohama. A large number of Japanese will visit the Paris Exhibition. The Azoff takes 400 cases of curiosities for Paris.

For revenue survey parties ... Rs. 15,768
For waste land parties ... 7,860

2. In connection with this scale, the following explanatory remarks are added, viz.:—

1st.—The number of civil officers in the senior department is based on the number at present existing. Should these officers be increased in number, there must be a corresponding decrease in the number of military officers, and vice versa.

2nd.—All the appointments in the five grades of the senior department, and the eight grades of the junior dept., will not be filled up at once. An officer is not to be promoted to a vacancy in any grade until he shall have served three years in the next inferior grade, or an average period of three years in each of the several inferior grades, unless, being an officer of superior intelligence and utility, he be recommended for promotion after, but not in less than two years' service in each grade. The position of officers now in the department should be regulated by this rule.

3rd.—In order, however, to keep up the full establishment of officers, it will be necessary to allow the number in each grade to be increased by the number of vacancies in the higher grades.

8. The foregoing propositions are approved with the following modifications:—

I.—It is expedient, on general grounds, that the emoluments of military officers, which are to be made up of staff salary and military pay, should be restricted, in the aggregate, within certain limitations analogous to those prescribed for military officers in the public works dept. Accordingly, military pay in conjunction with the revised staff salaries will be passed only up to the following limit of aggregate emoluments, viz.:—

	Staff Pay.	Ra.	Ra.
For a surveyor, 1st grade	800	1800
" 2nd "	650	1400
" 3rd "	500	1200
Asst.-Surveyor, 1st grade	875	750
" 2nd "	250

II.—An officer entering the senior department on probation will be limited to the staff pay prescribed for a probationer, and the period of service as a probationer will not be counted as part of the service in the second grade of assistant-surveyor, which, under rule 2 of the preceding paragraph, is to qualify for promotion to the first grade.

III.—No officer, whatever may be his length of service, will be promoted to a vacancy until he is considered duly qualified for further advancement.

IV.—The revised salaries are to be accompanied by the abolition of all contract allowances, all expenses that have hitherto been met by these allowances to be charged in future in bona fide contingent bills.

V.—Any officer who, on the introduction of the new organisation, is placed in a grade of which the salary is lower than that he receives under the existing rules, will continue to draw his present salary until promoted to a grade with a higher salary.

4. The revision of salaries for military officers provides better prizes than the old scale, but at a saving of expense, owing to a reduction of the staff salaries of lower grades. The principal additional expense is for improving the salaries of uncovenanted officers and assistants. The net additional charge is met by a reduction of expenditure from the breaking up of survey parties, which, on completion of their last work, were available for transfer to other parts of India. Thus the final result is a saving; and, as the revision of the salaries of officers of the survey department has been under consideration for the past five years, the Gov. gen. in Council will recommend to the Sec. of State that the revised scale may be sanctioned with effect from April 1.

Ordered, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the home department, with the original papers received from that department.

Despatch dated Dec. 15, 1866, No. 276.

Para. 3. Brevet major Mulcaster, Madras Cav., in reply to an inquiry, has been informed that, should he join the staff corps under the recent despatch of Aug. 8, he will not be required to give up any portion of his present furlough, unless his services are urgently required in India, and that he will be allowed to draw pay for the full period of such furlough. Should he take the full period of three years' furlough granted him, he will of course be only entitled to a further furlough hereafter, with pay of one year.

4. On joining the staff corps, and becoming subject to the new furlough rules, he carries with him into the corps so much service for pension as he is entitled to count under the old rules, i.e., all the time he has actually passed in India, or within Indian limits. This period added to the time he may serve in the staff corps will be his aggregate service, and he will be entitled to count as service for pension a portion of such of this time as may have been passed on leave subsequent to joining the corps, agreeably to the scale laid down in the new furlough rules.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—MARCH 7.

LIEUT. COLONEL THOMSON'S DIVORCE BILL.

Their lordships were specially summoned this morning for the consideration on "second reading" of the above Bill (known in Parliamentary language as an "Indian divorce"), which is to dissolve the marriage of Lieut. Col. Thomson, of her Majesty's 54th Regiment of Infantry, with Roberta Spencer Thomson, his present wife.

It appeared from the opening statement of Sir George Honeyman, Q.C., who (with Mr. Hannen and Mr. Ross Johnson) appeared for the petitioner, that the petitioner was married on the 29th of March, 1852, to his present wife (whose maiden name was Boxer), at Quebec, and they afterwards lived together there, afterwards in Gibraltar, then in England, and subsequently in India, where the petitioner's regiment was ordered in August, 1857, and where his name was honourably noticed as having taken an active part in the suppression of the mutiny there. Subsequently he was ordered to join his regiment at Koorkee, leaving his wife at his residence at Mussooree. At that time he was a major in the 54th. On the 5th September, 1863, the petitioner discovered that his wife had formed an improper connection with Colonel Bushe, of the 7th Regiment of Hussars, having left her home two days previously, eloping with Colonel Bushe. Mrs. Thomson and her paramour resided in India some time, and afterwards arrived in this country, living at Dover and elsewhere. An action was commenced in India by the petitioner to recover damages for adulterous intercourse and criminal conversation, which came on for trial before the Deputy Commissioner of Umballa, in that country, when the petitioner got a verdict, with £1,900 damages, including costs, which had all been paid. Afterwards he applied to the High Court of Judicature at Fort William, in Bengal, for a citation, calling upon his wife to answer in a cause of divorce, &c., but the application was refused for want of jurisdiction, the petitioner's wife having left India. He then, in 1866, presented a petition to the United Diocesan Court of Down, in Ireland, and obtained a divorce. The petitioner now comes to Parliament to have this decision confirmed by Act of Parliament, otherwise he would be liable to have a spurious issue imposed upon him. Formal evidence was then called relative to the serving of notices, &c., and the cohabitation at Dover having been proved, the Bill was read a second time.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MARCH 8.

INDIAN AFFAIRS.

Lord W. HAY asked the Secretary of State for India whether the Indian Government had appointed an English officer to reside at Leh, the capital of Ladak, in the dominions of the Maharajah of Cashmere; if so, in what capacity, and whether the appointment had been made with the approval of the Maharajah? And whether the Indian Government had decided to despatch a commercial mission to Turkistan and Thibet?

Sir J. FERGUSSON: A statement has appeared in the papers, but no intelligence has been received by the Secretary of State as to the appointment of such an officer; nor is it known that the Governor-general of India has any intention to send a commercial mission to Turkistan.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

Sir H. RAWLINSON asked the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs if he had received any report from Lord Clarence Paget respecting his recent visit to the Suez Canal; and if so, whether he would lay such report upon the table of the House?

M. BONTemps, THE GOVERNOR OF PONDICHERRY, returned from Calcutta on the 8th Feb. He landed and was met at the office of the Vice-Consul by most of the French gentlemen residing in Madras. He dined with the Vice-Consul and afterwards honoured Lord Napier's ball at the Banqueting-hall. His Excellency's stay, however, was necessarily very brief as he had to proceed on board the steamer about eleven o'clock to start for Pondicherry. With regard to the Pondicherry railway scheme, we have not heard whether M. Bontemps succeeded in the object of his visit to Calcutta.

THE CHIEF ENGINEER, CENTRAL PROVINCES.

—A correspondent of the Delhi Gazette, writing from Jubbulpore, says:—"The rumour of Colonel Maxwell's departure from these provinces and of his being succeeded by an engineer officer in Central India is gaining ground. But I am almost certain that Major Allen, Superintending Engineer at Jubbulpore, will succeed the Chief Engineer on his departure."

TURBULENCE AT JEYPORE.—The Delhi Gazette says:—"We are sorry to hear that while the 106th were in camp at Jeypore several of the officers were grossly insulted in the streets of the city, and even within the grounds of the Palace. A camel-driver belonging to the regiment, who unintentionally trespassed on the ground of some villagers, was rudely and violently assaulted."

Lord STANLEY : I have not received any such report, and I may add, that as a naval officer Lord Clarence Paget would have sent it to the Admiralty, and not to the Foreign-office.

THE STRAITS SETTLEMENT.

Mr. O'REILLY called attention to the position of the officers of the Straits Settlement. The government of the colony had been transferred from the Indian Government to the Colonial-office, and the former officers had been dismissed.

Mr. ADDERLEY explained that the coveted officers of the Indian Government had been sent back to India, and the uncovenanted officers had been retained.

Mr. J. S. MILL strongly censured the conduct of the Colonial-office towards the officers of the Straits Settlement.

THOMPSON'S DIVORCE BILL.

This Bill was read a third time and passed.

THE FAMINE IN ORISSA.

Mr. BARNES asked the Under-Secretary for India when he expected to receive the report of the commission appointed by the Governor-general of India, on the 8th December last, to "elicit full information" concerning the recent famine in Orissa; and whether he would lay the report upon the table of the House as soon as it arrived.

Sir J. FERGUSSON said it was impossible to state how soon the report would arrive. The inquiry had been proceeded with, and the report would be laid on the table as soon as it arrived.

THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

Mr. O'REILLY asked the Under Secretary of State for India whether any communication had passed between the India-office and the governor of the Straits Settlements and the other India officers there, as to their removal from their posts by the Secretary for the Colonies; and, if so, what was its date, and whether subsequent to the publication in the newspapers of the appointment of their successors by the Secretary for the Colonies?

Sir J. FERGUSSON said the Secretary of State for India had taken the earliest opportunity of communicating the intentions of the Colonial-office to the Governor-General of India and to the governor of the Straits Settlement. He did not wait for an official intimation of that intention, but on the 18th of January he privately ascertained the course which the Colonial Secretary was likely to pursue, and communicated to the Governor-General of India that the governor of the Straits Settlement was not to be continued. He received further information on the 29th January, and at once sent a confirmation of his previous despatch. I have ascertained that the appointment of the new governor was gazetted on the 5th of February.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MARCH 14.

POSTAL SERVICE TO AND FROM BOMBAY.

On the motion for going into Committee of Supply on the Navy Estimates,

Mr. CHILDERS addressed some questions to the Secretary to the Treasury relative to the tenders for the weekly postal service to and from Bombay, and to the arrangements which were in contemplation relative to the contracts for the packet service to India, China, and Australia.

Mr. HUNT said it did not appear to him that the committee recommended that the contracts with India and Australia should terminate at the same time. The Government had consulted the chairman of the committee, who had given much consideration to the subject, and the conclusion they arrived at was to give notice only of the termination of one contract in the first instance. They were partly induced to take that step, as arrangements were in progress for terminating the Bombay service, in order to establish a weekly service to India and Australia.

POSTAGE TO INDIA.

Mr. CRAWFORD asked if it is the intention of the Government to raise the rate of postage to India and the East, in consequence of an increase in the cost of the service.

Mr. HUNT said it is intended to raise the postage to ninepence, in consequence of the expense occasioned by the increased number of mails.

COURT OF PROBATE AND DIVORCE.

MARCH 9.

(Before Sir J. P. WILDE and a Special Jury.)

WIGHT V. WIGHT AND FIELD.

This was a suit instituted by the husband for a dissolution of his marriage on the ground of his wife's adultery with the co-respondent. Both the respondent and co-respondent answered and denied the adultery. The case was tried last July, on which occasion there were two co-respondents, the one now before the Court and a young man, a nephew of his. On that case being tried the jury found that adultery had not been proved as against the nephew, but could not agree upon their verdict as respected the uncle, and in his case there was in consequence no result, and hence this second trial as regarded him.

Dr. Spinks, Q.C., and Mr. Searle were counsel for the petitioner; Mr. Serjeant Tindal Atkinson and Dr. Wambey for the co-respondent; and Sir Robert Collier and Dr. Tristram for the respondent.

The petitioner, General Arthur Cleghorn Wight, was a distinguished officer in the Indian army, having entered that army in 1826, and retired from active service in December, 1861. He was married to the respondent at Madras in 1837, and they lived happily together in India up to 1844, when the petitioner and his wife came to England on a three years' furlough. In consequence of disturbances in India he was called away in 1846, before the expiration of his furlough, but in 1847 he returned again to England, where he had left his wife during his absence. In 1848 he was again called out to India. In consequence of the bad state of his wife's health he left her in England, but she joined him in India, in December, 1851. She, however, did not remain long there, but returned to England in June, 1852. While in England in 1844, they seemed to have become acquainted with the co-respondent, who is a surgeon, residing in Sussex-gardens, and his family and the respondent seemed to have been in the habit of visiting previous to her joining her husband in India, in 1851. On her return to England, in 1852, her visits to them were resumed, and during that and the following year she resided for some time in the co-respondent's house. She afterwards resided at Charles-street, Cleveland-gardens, and from thence she went to Rifle-terrace, Bayswater. On the return of the General from India, in March, 1862, he went to his wife at Rifle-terrace, and they lived there together up to the following January, when the respondent left her home without her husband's knowledge. On the following day he received a letter from her solicitor, desiring that terms of a separation should be agreed upon between them. Such terms were afterwards agreed upon, the petitioner allowing his wife £200 a year, the co-respondent having been appointed trustee under the deed of separation. Some time after this the petitioner was informed about something that had taken place between his wife and a nephew of the co-respondent, and in his inquiries respecting them he found that the uncle was more guilty than the nephew, and consequently commenced proceedings against both, with the result which has just been stated. The adultery charges spread over several years during and subsequent to 1850 and 1852, when the respondent returned from India, and the learned counsel stated that the evidence he should produce in support of it chiefly consisted of servants who had been in the respondent and co-respondent's employment. No direct evidence of the adultery could be given, but there would be evidence of the frequent visits of the co-respondent to the respondent, of their being in a room together for hours, the co-respondent being in her bedroom while she was partially undressed, and on one occasion having been actually found under the blankets in her bed.

Evidence was then gone into in support of the petitioner's case, from which it appeared that when the respondent returned from India in 1852 she was wrong in her mind, and that she had been so on a subsequent occasion, when she was placed for a short time in an asylum.

A person of the name of Sharpe stated that in 1850 he was in the service of Dr. Field, the co-respondent, and that he knew the respondent had been shut up in his surgery with him for an hour or two. That took place generally in the evening. After the lady went into the surgery he had heard the door locked.

Several other witnesses were called on the part of the petitioner. These were for the most part people who had been in the service of the respondent and the co-respondent, and who spoke as to certain acts of familiarity they had seen between the parties, and as to the frequent visits paid by Dr. Field to the respondent while she was residing at Cleveland-gardens and at Rifle-terrace, she being at the time, as they believed, not in want of medical attendance.

The petitioner's case was not finished at the rising of the Court.

MARCH 13.

The further hearing of this case was resumed to-day. In support of the petitioner's case a number of witnesses, principally servants, were called, who deposed to great familiarity between the respondent and co-respondent.

Sir R. Collier, in opening the case on behalf of the respondent, commented in severe terms on the manner in which circumstances which were necessary to a clear comprehension of the subject of the inquiry had been suppressed by the petitioner. In justification of this criticism he read two letters written in 1852 by Major-general Wight to Dr. Field, which showed that he was quite aware that his wife, in addition to mental disorder, was also suffering from uterine disease, and that in consigning her to his charge he earnestly requested that Dr. Field should visit her as often as he possibly could. These circumstances the learned counsel strongly urged should have been stated to the jury, inasmuch as they fully explained the intimacy which for so long a time existed between the respondent and co-respondent, and that it was not only sanctioned, but suggested by the petitioner himself. He did not deny that Dr. Field frequently saw Mrs. Wight in her bed-room, but not only were these visits rendered necessary by Mrs. Wight's state of health, but it was the attention so shown towards her by Dr. Field which saved her from being sent in 1852, as happened in 1862, to a lunatic asylum. In conclusion, the learned gentleman declared he should be able to show that the attachment between the respondent and co-respondent was of a purely innocent character, and that the object of the petitioner in instituting the suit was not justice but a divorce, to enable him to marry another lady, whose acquaintance he had made in Scotland since his return from India.

The case for the respondent had not closed when the Court rose.

MARCH 14.

This cause was again resumed to-day. On behalf of the respondent a number of witnesses of the highest respectability, friends and relatives of all the parties in the suit, were called. Several of them lived for long periods with Mrs. Wight as visitors, and they all deposed that neither her conduct nor that of the co-respondent ever suggested to them any idea of impropriety. It was also proved that long before instituting the suit the petitioner, Major-general Wight, expressed a desire to obtain a divorce, as he knew another woman who would marry him, and added the wish that he could "find Nelly (his wife) tripping." With respect to the co-respondent, Dr. Field, one of the witnesses, Dr. Hill, who occasionally attended Mrs. Wight, declared that both in his private and professional character he was held in the highest esteem by his medical brethren.

The case had not concluded when the Court rose.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—MASTERY OVER

DISEASE.—There is a constant tendency in the human body to pass from strength to weakness unless some means be adopted to counteract the "wear and tear," and other deteriorating influences. Holloway's Pills effect this admirably; they accomplish all the most exacting invalid can require. As alteratives they regulate the stomach and rouse the liver; as purgatives they improve the blood's quantity; as aperients they promote peristaltic action; and as tonics they invigorate the nervous system. They have blessed with health thousands previously blasted by disease. In all cases of indigestion, perspiration, headache, heartburn, and functional obstructions, sufferers have Holloway's Pills as a resource to fall back upon, which will never disappoint their most sanguine hopes.

CHLORODYNE (TOWLE'S).

Renowned for giving immediate relief in Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Cramp, Ague, Consumption, Asthma, Cough, Colds, Bronchitis, Sea Sickness, &c. Preferred by the Profession for its known composition and uniform strength.

IMPORTANT TO SHIPPERS AND EMIGRANTS.

Liverpool, Feb. 22nd, 1864. Ship Gertrude.

Mr. TOWLE.—Sir,—Having recently arrived from Bombay, and during our stay there myself and crew being violently attacked with dysentery, so general in India, Captain Clements, of the ship Marseilles, lying near us, seeing the condition we were in, kindly sent a bottle of your Chlorodyne, from which myself and crew found immediate relief; and during the voyage home proved a most effective and valuable medicine. Having been instrumental in saving my own life and that of others, we feel it a duty and pleasure to send this statement of facts, to make what use of you think proper, believing that no vessel ought to leave port without a good supply in her medicine chest.

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the PEOPLE of INDIA

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,

Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Mr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India not only deserves the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Bombay Mail brings us our usual files of papers, from Calcutta to the 23rd, Madras to the 23rd, and Bombay to the 28th of February.

The famine continued to occupy public attention in Calcutta, where some ill-feeling was being exhibited at the failure of the appeal to London for relief. Mr. E. W. Molony, C.S., has been appointed the Special Famine Commissioner to act under the orders of the Executive Committee, and Mr. H. W. I. Wood and Mr. R. Stern-dale have volunteered their services as honorary treasurer and honorary secretary.

The Friend of India mentions some official changes, of which the first confirms the announcement which we made some time ago that Sir William Muir was to be the next Lieut.-governor of the North-West Provinces. Our contemporary says:—"Sir William Muir will not succeed to the seat in council vacated by Mr. William Grey two months hence. Her Majesty has made another selection, and one hardly less satisfactory, it is said, but the name is for the present withheld. Sir William will therefore remain in the Foreign Office till he succeeds Mr. Drummond as Lieutenant-governor of the North-Western Provinces towards the end of the year. Mr. A. A. Roberts, C.B., is likely to act for Colonel Lake as Financial Commissioner of the Punjab; and Mr. David Simson, now on his way out to India, will probably occupy his place as civilian judge of the chief court. There will be delay in the creation of a financial commissionership in the Central Provinces, owing to the collection of some necessary financial statistics."

The Bokhara Envoy still remains in Calcutta. He has appeared, it seems, in a new character. He has the reputation of a learned theologian, and preaches frequently in one of the Calcutta mosques. He is accordingly besieged with difficult questions by Mussulman divines, who look with reverence to a Molla from the city of the dervishes, the focus of Mussulman fanaticism.

It was rumoured at Darjeeling that the Commander-in-Chief intends to visit that station, with a view, probably, to a closer inspection of the new Bhootan frontier and the north-eastern outposts.

The East India Railway will be opened from Allahabad to Myhere by the 1st of June next. The girders are now being fixed on the bridge over the Heerun river.

The Agra Exhibition had been formally closed by the Lieut.-Governor with all proper ceremony.

The news from Afghanistan is important. Ufzul Khan's troops have gained a decisive victory over those of Shere Ali Khan, and followed up the advantage by the capture of Khelat. Information of this having been sent to the Government of India by Ufzul Khan, the Viceroy determined to recognise him as Ameer. This step was intended to have the effect of making Cabul in every way a friendly Power, but the said Ameer seems still to be in great difficulties. He has more recently been again defeated by his great rival, Shere Ali Khan, and has needed a body guard to protect himself from assassination. So many different reports of the actual state of affairs in these countries have been in circulation, that it is a difficult matter even for those who have closely watched the course of events hitherto to arrive at the actual truth. It was said a week before the mail left, that the three brothers Khan were dead; but this rumour turns out to have been incorrect. One of them was shot in the streets of Cabul, and the other two, besides another Khan, had fled to Peshawur.

The Ameer of Bokhara is said to have agreed to the payment of a yearly tribute to the Russians. The report that the Government of India intended to despatch a commercial mission to Khotan is wholly unfounded, such being a proceeding which the Government had never contemplated for a moment.

At Madras there were renewed reports of the prevalence of distress. Sir Gaspard le Marchant had arrived at the Presidency. Lord and Lady Napier were about to leave for Calcutta.

Lord Cranborne's announcement of the intentions of Government with regard to the Mysore reversion had given general satisfaction. The Times of India says that the telegram brought with it "a feeling of relief, as if India had escaped an interminable period of political unrest and danger," adding, "the news will have spread through India as a happy omen, having a far wider moral and political significance than anything pertaining to the small territory of Mysore. It will sweep away the few ominous doubts of British good faith that were again rising, prompted by the doctrines expressed by Mr. R. D. Mangles and some other members of the Indian Council, in their minutes on the memorial from the Mysore Rajah for permission to adopt."

There is a curious rumour in Hyderabad in connection with the Mysore case. It is said that the Nizam has applied for, and has been, of course, refused, a share in Mysore on the death of the Maharajah. The Nizam is said to assume the justice of its non-restoration, and on that grounds his modest demand.

The Government of Bombay has passed a eulogium on Dr. Leith on the occasion of his taking furlough to Europe after thirty-five years' service. The interruption of Dr. Leith's Presidency of the Sanitary Commission is a matter of great regret to the Government. Doctor Leith's reports on the sanitary condition of the principal cities and cantonments will be of lasting use. His industry, science, and judgment have given constant help and guidance to all concerned in the work of sanitary improvement. No more accurate, able, or versatile doctor than Dr. Leith is to be found in India. The success of the last census is entirely due to him.

Sir Bartle Frere's replies to the farewell addresses presented by the Chamber of Commerce, the Municipality, and by the public of Bombay, were delivered on Feb. 25.

At a durbar, held at Government House on Feb. 20, H.E. Sir Bartle Frere invested H.H. the Thakoor of Bhownuggur with the insignia of the Order of the Star of India.

There has been a run on the Bank of Bombay, caused chiefly by the unsatisfactory nature of the return published on February 20. Over one million sterling of deposits were withdrawn during the week ending February 23, and fears regarding the bank's ability to meet its engagements were only quieted by promises of Government support. Government has agreed to continue its Treasury business with the bank for another year, and during that period to assist it if necessary with all its available funds. A telegram has been received advising the despatch from Calcutta to Bombay of £600,000, and a like amount is to follow.

The extra steamers of the Peninsular and Oriental Company have not made a very prosperous beginning. The Simla, with the mails of the 10th of January, did not arrive until the 7th of February, and was anticipated by the Bombay Marine steamer Coromandel, which brought papers of the same date.

The steamer Delhi, which took the mail of January 26th, did not reach Bombay until February 22nd, owing to the partial break-down of her machinery in the Red Sea.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which left Alexandria early on Wednesday morning, and may be expected in London on Thursday next.

A telegram received in London last night announces the arrival of Sir Seymour Fitzgerald at Bombay on the 1st of March, a piece of information which, considering the mode of transmission, might have arrived before.

Lord Stanley received yesterday, at the Foreign-office, Lieutenant-Colonel Kawagi and thirteen young officers who have been sent to this country by his Majesty the Tycoon of Japan, to be placed under the protection of her Majesty's Government.

They were accompanied by the Rev. W. O. Lloyd, of the Royal Navy, who has been appointed by Lord Stanley, with the permission of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, as their guardian during their stay in this country.

By the death of Major-general Bonner, of the Indian army, another of those distinguished veteran officers has been removed from amongst us by whom the reputation of our arms was so honourably maintained in India during the stirring events in that country at the beginning of the present century. During that period General Bonner began his military career. He entered the Madras Artillery in 1805, and was continuously and actively employed in the field from 1808 until the close of the Mahratta war, in 1818; and was present at the attack and defeat of Wahib Ally Khan Bunghush, at Ammulnair; at the battle of Mehidpore, at the assault and capture of Talnair, and at the siege of Asseerghur. He was frequently honourably mentioned in the Gazettes. General Bonner returned to England in 1827, and, as an acknowledgment of his high reputation in the field, and his long and faithful services, was appointed by the Honourable the Court of Directors of the East India Company to succeed Colonel Forest as Inspector-General of Stores for India, which laborious situation he filled for more than thirty years; and on his retirement, in 1859, he must have been cheered by the marked recognition he received from the Principal Secretary of State for India, of the zeal, ability, and integrity which had uniformly distinguished him, and by the consciousness of having faithfully discharged the duties of a most responsible office with eminent ability and success.

DURBAR IN HONOUR OF THE THAKOOR OF BHOWNUGGUR.—Sir Bartle Frere held a Durbar at Government House, Parell, on the afternoon of the 20th of February, for the presentation of the insignia and grant of dignity of a Knight Commander of the Order of the Star of India to His Highness the Thakoor of Bhownuggur. The ceremony was announced to commence at half-past four o'clock, but long before that hour the hall in which the durbar was held was crowded with a large assembly of naval and military officers, members of the Legislative Council, Fellows of Bombay University, members of the Civil Service, clergy, and private citizens. A number of ladies, including Lady Frere and the Misses Frere, graced the durbar with their presence.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

SAVE INDIAN SOCIETY FROM ITS FRIENDS.

WHAT absurd nonsense it is—this continual cry that we hear from India of the ignorance of "people at home" concerning the country! If the ignorance exist it is certainly not for the want of the fullest information. Look at the list of "passengers arrived" by the Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamers four times a month. Add to these the numbers that use the Messageries Imperiales. Calculate in addition those who come round the Cape. By one way or another there is arriving among us a continual stream of our compatriots, having an acquaintance with India of some duration, and who are more or less competent authorities concerning it. We say more or less, because we are far from giving to everybody the credit of knowing all about a place in which they may have sojourned. We could find a great many persons who have lived all their lives in England—with the advantage, too, of being in their native place—whom we should be sorry to trust for an authentic account of the History and Condition of the British Empire, with notices of its Social Characteristics and Manners. But the majority of the arrivals from India are at least tolerably educated and respectable people, capable of forming reasonable impressions, and with no natural turn for lying in preference to truth; while a large proportion are men of high culture and intelligence, with especial opportunities of knowing and especial power of imparting what they know.

Considering the continual additions of these Anglo-Indians to home society, the part that so many of them play in public life, and the additions to literature that are made by so many more, it would be wonderful indeed if we remained in the ignorance ascribed to us. But the accusation is made again and again; one can seldom take up an Indian newspaper without seeing it repeated. Of political questions concerning a hundred and eighty millions of persons, most of whom are her Majesty's subjects, we are solemnly assured that we know nothing; and as for social matters, it is insisted that we are even worse off, for we have a very large stock of entirely false information. Only the other day one of the Madras journals—the Athenæum and Daily News—informed its readers that, with one exception, there was not a capable writer upon Indian affairs on the London press, and that the articles which deal with them are full of the grossest ignorance. This is a curious assertion, considering that the writers upon the subjects in question, as far as the majority of the London papers are concerned, are known by those who know anything about such matters to be men of Indian experience, as well as established reputation and acknowledged authority. Their names, when they publish them, command respect, but their anonymous productions are declared to be mere pretension and imposture. And this is the more absurd considering that the same writers were probably looked upon, when in India, as among the literary lights of the country.

But if the local journalists are intolerant as to politics, they are simply rabid with regard to society. Of any other country a man may write with a great deal of freedom without giving offence, even though he heighten in colour or broaden in caricature the manners of the men and women of whom he is in the midst, nobody is offended provided he does his work well, and preserves a certain basis of truth and nature. But let him touch Anglo-India, and two-thirds of the local press unite to tear him to pieces. Anglo-Indians at home take the thing good-humouredly enough; so do Anglo-Indians in India as a general rule. But the journalists never fail to take up the cudgels and say for society what society would not think of saying for itself. Take the latest instance. Three articles illustrative of Anglo-Indian manners appeared the other day in three London magazines. Two had known names appended to them, so that ignorance of the subject was not to be suspected; and the other bore every evidence of being written by a person thoroughly conversant with the country. The Indian press, we observe, is duly "down" upon all three. The Friend of India, which led the way, says that the first "is the least untrue," and that "the second is unfair, but by no means so much so as the third," who, the writer adds, "has produced a paper as disgraceful to any one who calls herself a lady, as it is unjust to those with whom she proves herself to have been unfit to associate."

We like "calls herself a lady." It so reminds one of one of the London cabman when he does not get the extra sixpence. After this the Friend goes on to pick out all the points of the article, and having made an attractive one of his own out of them, concludes by telling the author that she is quite wrong and ought never to have written anything of the kind.

But the Friend of India is nothing compared with the Delhi Gazette, which, like its contemporary, especially selects the lady from among the three offenders for attack. Hear the following:—

"In her division of Bangalore society Florence Marryat makes the following classification, 'The very gay; the very religious; and the very insane,' all of which are treated to about an equal share of very disgusting abuse. Ladies are obliged to receive any visitors 'who choose to enter,' who 'sometimes sit for an hour or two in familiar intercourse.' The authoress herself has received a dozen 'men' and more, although acknowledging that the calling hours extend only from twelve to two. These calls, however, which are performed even 'by the officers of a regiment on the march' at a station where they will be 'for a few hours only,' are aggravated by the fact that 'in many cases' the unfortunate lady 'is left alone and unprotected for months, and even years, whilst her husband is away on foreign service.' Fancy the thoughts of affectionate parents, of fond sisters and brothers, when, before arriving at the immoral portion of the article which has made them throw down the book as they would have done the late literature of Holywell-street, they figure to themselves the life their relations in India are called on to lead. Without a word that could signify the life of to-day being otherwise, that life is painted such as to resemble the horrible tales of the City Mission, rather than the every-day intercourse between ladies and gentlemen who have, according to the authoress, certainly ceased to exist as such. Supposing the intention of Florence Marryat to have been (in addition to the pecuniary recompense offered by the publishers of Temple Bar, which we should fancy must be rather low) the depreciation of Indian society, it would effectively have been gained by her starting with fair proof of her having, at one time, received the education and position of a lady. English readers will, however, fail to make any allowance for ignorance or wanton, reckless misrepresentation, or the bad habit of pandering to the prurient taste of sensational novel readers, the plague spot on the literature of the present age."

The writer concludes by saying that there is "much more to a similar purpose, with not a little that, as we have said, is utterly unfit for notice in these columns. Enough. One swallow, as the authoress observes, does not make a summer, and it is considerable satisfaction, while watching the pages curling in the flames, to remember that Florence Marryat and Temple Bar have but little influence."

Our readers need scarcely be informed that, apart from the impossibility of Miss Marryat writing what would be "unfit for notice" in the sense intended, no London magazine would have printed such objectionable matter. The inference to be drawn will also be equally apparent. The fact is, the lady has written freely of the society in which she happened to be thrown at an up-country station in Madras, and her pictures bear upon them the impress of truth, while some of her descriptions apply equally to other parts of the country. But the writer does not declare the people whom she describes to represent all Anglo-Indians; in fact, she is careful to state that she knows nothing more than she has seen, and pretends to describe the latter only. The Madras Times, which ought to know better than the Delhi Gazette, deals with the case far more fairly, and admits that there may be found in each cantonment a specimen of some of the characters described. All the writer insists upon is that it is unjust to hold them up as types of a whole class—which nobody, of course, dreams of doing.

CORRESPONDENCE.

STUDY OF THE NATIVE LANGUAGES.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—In your issue of the 8th inst. I read a letter, signed "An Old Officer," on the study of Oriental languages, allow me to offer a few additional hints upon it. The late chairmen of the court of directors at the half-yearly examinations of civil and military colleges have dwelt in the strongest terms upon the incalculable advantages accruing from the study of the Oriental languages, but their demonstrations have all proved a mere "flash in the pan." When a gross mistake occurs in India through the deficiency of European officials in the native languages a great cry is raised, several letters and leaders appear on the importance of the study of the vernaculars of the province, but the excitement soon subsides and is forgotten.

The scheme is radically wrong. The vernaculars of the East are easy and simple to acquire. I speak from experience, and not without having devoted some years to the study of Oriental literature, and written many compositions in these languages. However, lest I may be accused of egotism, I will resume the thread of the present argument.

In the first place, when a young officer goes out to India he is generally quite ignorant of Oriental letters, and seldom directs his thoughts to the acquisition of the languages, unless, indeed, he possesses extraordinary perseverance, and sets at defiance all the novel temptations which assail him on his first arrival in the East, where he is loosed entirely from parental vigilance and authority. When a foreign language, in strange characters, is commenced at an advanced age, and the study left to one's own whim and caprice, it cannot of course be acquired in perfection. In order to obviate this difficulty, I suggest that no military aspirant should be permitted to quit these shores without first passing an elementary examination something akin to that which the selected candidates for her Majesty's Indian Civil Service are at present compelled to undergo. Having once broken the ice, the young officer will easily acquire the language on his landing. He will have surmounted all the difficulties that beset a beginner's path, and will, to a greater extent, be independent of a tutor. Your able correspondent very clearly and ably points out that "the Indian officers, with very few exceptions, are averse from incurring the expense and trouble of studying without knowing that they will really get something for it."

This speaks volumes for itself. No one would willingly waste his time, I imagine, or undergo all the toil, trouble, close study and expense, if, after all, it is to bring him no further advantage than a few additional letters after his name. If Government really wishes to encourage the study of Oriental languages amongst its military officers—and without this there will be no proper understanding between the Hakim and the Ryot, the Sepoy and the Sahib—it will avoid all that confusion which has been hitherto so painfully and at the cost of so many lives, experienced. In India one cannot secure the services of a really good Arabic and Persian scholar for less than Rs. 50 per mensem, and a pundit for Rs. 30 (I say nothing of books and stationery), and nothing short of two years' close study will enable any man, be he ever so intelligent, to acquire a decent knowledge of the vernacular of his province. The prize of Rs. 1,000 is a mere farce. A charity boy in this country can obtain a better school exhibition. As for an officer not being selected for service on a civil or regimental staff, though he may have passed certain degrees of honour; this results from the fact that every one cannot be provided with a lucrative post. In addition to being a good linguist, the candidate must be a man of high attainments in his own language and literature, endowed with brilliant talents and a good disposition, before he can be entrusted with onerous civil and political responsibilities, or be appointed to one of those posts which are rendered scarcer and scarcer every day by the present annexation policy.

But there are many other ways of promoting one who has passed, such as giving him the post of interpreter and quartermaster to his own regiment, or some other where no officer has satisfied the prescribed standard, and assigning him a liberal emolument, with a respectable staff of assistant moulvees and pundits, or he may be made a cantonment magistrate at the same time, or an inspector of regimental schools. If really a popular and distinguished scholar and public servant, he might with advantage be appointed in the Judicial, Revenue, or Political Departments. There are, in fact, hundreds of ways for inducing officers to study the language. If I were to enter into fuller details my letter would fill several pages of the "MAIL." India is now, as it were, part and parcel of our home. Why, then, should we not make Hindustani compulsory upon all our officials who are likely to pass the best part of their lives in the East?

At present, from inability to converse freely with the natives, Europeans become disgusted with the country and its inhabitants, and seize the first opportunity of returning home on sick leave; they tacitly carry out the expression of the late Sir John Shore (himself a scholar and statesman of no ordinary attainments)—"I hate niggers." I was surprised at a suggestion quoted in your correspondent's letter, that "interpreters should make up for shortcomings by teaching their brother officers, the teacher's fee not to exceed Rs. 30 a month." Surely no officer and gentleman would wish to take the bread out of his quondam tutor's mouth and exchange his position for that of an ill-paid teacher in a foreign land where he has gone to seek for promotion and eminence. It is high time for an officer to eke out a living by such means when, with a broken down constitution, enumbered with a large family, or dismissed from the service, he is compelled to return home and compete with some low native khudmutgar, or unfortunate missionary.

At general courts-martial it is of frequent occurrence for a "nigger" to place his hands palm to palm and say "Khudawand Ghoolam Angrezi Nahin Samajhta." "My Lord, your slave does not understand English." The interpreter, in his rage, responds "Choop ruho haramzada—"Hold your tongue, you scoundrel." When a general order is read by the interpreter at the head of his regiment or depot, the sepoys invariably say "Saheb ne girja kya—"The gentleman has been saying his prayers;" these are familiar household words in India with reference to the linguistic ability of military officers.

There are several officers whose attainments in the vernacular of the East are up to the highest standard, and whose superiority even the learned moulvees and pundits acknowledge. Some of these are now at home and well known to Oriental scholars.

I heartily re-echo your correspondent's words—"If Government really want to have their orders correctly explained and translated, they must obtain the services of properly qualified officers"—must no longer be "penny wise and pound foolish."

Vernaculars of the East can be properly acquired in England, if students will only place themselves under the supervision of experienced learned native teachers from the various Presidencies for which they are destined, and do not make job-work of it, as some too often do, grudging their fees, and reading with Khalasees and other questionable characters, not caring for anything beyond a mere "pass."—Your obedient servant,
A CIVILIAN.

NEW YORK, March 20.

The Pacific Mail Company's steamship Colorado has arrived at San Francisco, with dates from China to the 17th and Japan to the 27th of February. The Japanese Embassy to Washington are among her passengers. Her cargo includes 270 chests of tea. The American Minister at Peking was in high favour with the Imperial Court.

The Chinese Government resisted all efforts made to obtain authority to construct a railroad through Mongolia. The French were about to make a short road from Shanghai to Leichow.

The Russian fleet was to sail for the Mediterranean.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE FAMINE IN ORISSA.—At last the authorities have risen equal to the frightful emergency in Orissa. Mr. Schalach, in a minute of the 12th instant, has urged on Government all that we have ever asked. He agrees to a mode of parish or house relief, with the aid of the zemindars, rather than relief centres, near which so many have died, and where almost all have been demoralised. The area to be relieved is so vast, and the assistance must be so detailed, that he admits they will require the best energies of a department separate from the Board of Revenue, under a special Famine Commissioner, such as has been clamoured for during the past year. This Commissioner, who is likely to be Mr. Molony, long the energetic magistrate of Jessore, is to be under the orders of the Calcutta Committee of five—the Hon. Mr. Hobhouse, chairman, and Mr. Schalach as the official members, and Mr. Scott Moncrieff, Captain Fenwick, and Baboo Degumber Mitter, non-officials, with Mr. H. W. I. Wood, of the Chamber of Commerce, as honorary secretary. The Viceroy has received carte blanche to make advances to the East India Irrigation Company, which has already done so much to mitigate the suffering. The company spends a lakh of rupees a month out of its own capital; to that Government is willing to add two lakhs monthly or as much as the supply of labour may demand. This will raise the number of labourers from 15,000 a day, as at present, to 55,000. But it should not be forgotten that when the time for ploughing and sowing comes round these men must return to their fields. The committee should study carefully the report of Mr. Webster, the assistant at Kendrapara, which we have elsewhere epitomised.—Friend of India.

THE LAND ASSESSMENT.—The only act of doubtful propriety on the part of the Government is the continuance of the present land assessment for twenty years. This is either too long or too short a period. We admit that the arguments against redeeming the pledge of a perpetual settlement this year are considerable, especially since the Bengal Government has neglected its duty in this respect since 1862 when the question was first discussed. But five years would have been long enough to continue the present evil state of things, or fifty years would have had the same beneficial influence on the agricultural classes while reserving the interests of the State hereafter. The next generation is only too likely to see a recurrence of the past famine inundations and poverty—no capital accumulated, no agricultural improvements effected, no spirit in the people to resist a calamity. Very dear to the State has been the want of such a settlement in the past, remissions of revenue to a large extent having been chronic. And this is still to go on. Irrigation is a grand remedy, but it falls far short of a land assessment which is not based on rack-renting, nor subject to periodical change. Are the lessons of 1861 so soon forgotten? The Governor-General has administered a most dignified rebuke to the Lieutenant-Governor for that delay in dealing with this vital question to which we have so often drawn attention. Sir Cecil Beadon has been told, but not very grammatically, that if the question had been taken up four or five years ago, as it ought to have been, "the expectation so long held out of a permanent settlement might have been properly conceded to the province." With this exception we have now every guarantee that all that man can do to relieve present misery and atone for past apathy will be accomplished.—Friend of India.

DUTY ON GRAIN.—We hear that Sir Cecil Beadon has recommended an increase of four annas per maund to the duty on grain exported from India.

OFFICIAL CHANGES.—Sir George Yule, K.C.S.I., has accepted the seat in council for which her Majesty selected him. The Viceroy will thus have the benefit of his advice as well as that of Sir William Muir in the Foreign-office and the legislature. It was doubtful for some time whether a sense of duty would not have kept Sir George Yule still at Hyderabad. A coup d'état on the part of the Nizam may be expected periodically. His Highness chafes as much at the able administration of Sir Salar Jung as the Maharaja Sindhia used to do under the guidance of Sir Dinkur Rao. But on the last occasion the conduct of the Nizam was so serious as to make it doubtful whether reconciliation were possible. This Sir George Yule has now happily accomplished, and he leaves the Deccan with only one omission in his very successful career there—the non-introduction of a proper land assessment into Berar. He has almost completed the usual term of thirty-five years' service, and is junior to only four Bengal civilians—Sir Donald Macleod, whose term was extended; Mr. Wigram Money, who is about to leave India; Mr. Fleetwood Williams, C.S.I., Commissioner of Meerut; and Mr. Justice Kemp. It will be a very difficult task for the Viceroy to find a fit successor as Resident at Hyderabad. This is the most important political appointment in India, and the political department has never been so weak. Colonel Meade, C.S.I., at Indore; Colonel Keatinge, V.C., in Kattywar; and Colonel Daly, C.B., in Gwalior, are the only officers of first-class ability. Some of our contemporaries have been sounding the praises of Major Willoughby Osborne, of Bhopal, under the belief that the political agency of Gwalior was in his gift in 1862, but he modestly preferred Bhopal. He would now like Gwalior, to which Colonel Daly has been sent at a loss of salary and of the good climate of Malwa. Major Osborne's friends would do well to be silent. He may be a dashing officer, but Gwalior was never in his gift, and so destitute is he of tact and judgment—the very qualities most required in a political officer—that he narrowly escaped exclusion from the department altogether on a recent occasion, a fact of which he is so well aware that he must be pained at the zeal of his eulogists. Among civilians, Mr. Bowring, now in England, is perhaps best fitted for Hyderabad, but he would probably prefer to remain in Mysore, for which he has done so much.—Friend of India.

THE BOKHARA ENVOY still lingers in Calcutta. He has had another interview with the Viceroy, and now talks in a vague way about trade and the expediency of some native being appointed at Bokhara to look after the commercial interests of British Indian traders journeying thither by Kafilas. He holds sanction from his master to raise and dispose of all questions of minor importance. He will have one more interview with Sir John Lawrence before he goes. He leaves Calcutta soon, and will in the first instance return to the Punjab, whence he will despatch some of his attendants to Bokhara to take home the presents he has received from Government. He himself will then proceed by Mooltan and Kurrachee to Bombay and Constantinople. A Mr. Heely is eager to be allowed to accompany the Envoy's attendant back to Bokhara, in order that he may take service in the Ameer's army. The Envoy had agreed to take him, if Government would consent. But the attempt would be dangerous, and he has been unwillingly induced to give it up.—Friend of India.

THE AGRA CHURCH MISSION.—The following is the report of the Agra Church Mission for 1866. A mission report so free from superfluous matter, so excelling in that rare but valuable quality in reports, brevity, is worthy of being held up to all mission report-writers as a pattern and example that cannot be too closely followed.—“In presenting the annual account to the supporters of our mission, it seems right to say a very few words respecting its progress during the past year. The contributions of the European residents have been applied all but exclusively to aggressive work, the expenses of public worship having been met from congregational funds. The statistics given on the last page will show, so far as numbers go, the state of the congregations connected with the Agra Church Mission; they are made up to September last. Rev. F. E. Schneider, who has worked so long in Agra, has retired from that station during the year, and now resides in the hot weather at Landour, while he itinerates in the plains during the cold season. Rev. J. Jacob, a native clergyman, came from Bareilly in February, and has since that time performed most of the ministerial duties of the Agra church, while he works also actively among the heathen. He is supported independently of mission funds, partly by his people, aided by a grant from the diocesan fund, partly by a small endowment. The contributions of the mission congregation towards this object have averaged more than 35 rupees monthly. Eight adults have been baptised during the year at Agra, and there are some catechumens. Some half-dozen prayer meetings or cottage lectures have been held weekly, and latterly a third Sunday service in Boileaugunj, principally for the benefit of several Christians living there, who have not been in the habit of attending any church. It may be advisable to mention, in case any of the residents should be inclined to visit the Hindustani Sunday services, that they are held throughout the year about an hour after sunrise, and half an hour before sunset. The church is situated close to the medical school and city hospital. At Hatras one catechist is stationed. One convert has been baptised here during the year, a Brahmin priest or purohit. There is much opposition and a good deal of consequent trouble in the town. The mission agents have been both beaten and attacked with stones there. One, a catechist at Muttra, who is also head master of the school, Babu K. M. Nundy, was ordained on December 23rd by the Bishop of Bombay. The Christians there, being few in number, are not able to do much to his support; the Agra congregation have liberally promised to help them according to their ability.”—Delhi Gazette.

THE HEALTH OF THE BENGAL ARMY IN 1866.—With his usual speed and accuracy, Dr. Brydone, the statistical secretary of the Indian Medical Department, has already managed to compile the tables showing the health of the European and native army in Bengal during the past year. The mortality of the European army was so low as 20·14 per thousand, or nearly four per thousand below 1865. This is most gratifying, for it represents so many lives preserved, so much money saved, and the difficulty of recruiting so far diminished, unless invaliding has been on an abnormal scale. There seems to have been no epidemic during the year. The detailed results of the different stations are somewhat singular. The mortality of English soldiers at Mooltan, for instance, was only six, and at Peshawur only fourteen per thousand, and yet the former is the hottest, and the latter used to be the most fever-stricken place in India. The anomaly is due, doubtless, to the fact that the former was garrisoned by a healthy corps from Fyzabad, and the latter is abandoned by sick, who die elsewhere. Of all the provinces in the Bengal Presidency the Punjab is, as usual, the healthiest—a fact partly accounted for by the number of hill sanitarium.

UNIFORM AND MUFTI.—The Delhi Gazette is sportive upon this subject:—“We are sorry to hear that three officers at Meerut have fallen victims to that debasing and pernicious weakness the habit of wearing ‘mufti,’ and are under arrest for the same. Some years ago an order was issued at Cawnpore that officers were never to be out of uniform except when engaged in pastimes, going or returning to the cricket ground, &c. So every officer who went out calling, for instance, in plain clothes took the precaution to carry a cricket bat in his hand. If he met the general he would say, ‘Going to cricket, general, good morning,’ shouldered the bat and walked off scatheless. If being engaged in recreation and pastimes will exonerate an officer from the guilt of appearing in plain clothes, we should recommend them, if they meet the general when on foot two or more together, that one should go a few paces in advance and give the other a ‘back.’ Should the meeting take place on the mall or at the band-stand all the better, that is all the more amusement for the bystanders. If alone, the officer, conscious of his breach of orders, might commence to hop on one leg, or put himself in position for practising the royal art of boxing, or some other sporting accomplishment for which previous training and practice is requisite. If three or four or more officers are together, they might join hands and dance round in a ring. And perhaps if it is at the band-stand some lady might, just for form's sake and nothing more, take a subordinate part in the preliminaries of a game of “kiss in the ring.” If officers are on horseback, the best thing to do is to turn and ride for it, on the principle of shirking as it used to exist at Rugby. We are far from wishing to appear to advocate any breach of military regulations, on the contrary we only point out how compliance with them may at all times be observed.”

THE AGRA EXHIBITION was closed by the Lieutenant-Governor on the 9th inst. The native chiefs, who were exhibitors, received handsome gifts, especially Sir Dinkur Rao, the Maharnjah of Benares, and the Rana of Dholepore. The Maharaja gave Rs. 300 for special prizes to those who competed in the educational department—one for the results of female education, the other in the first circle of the educational department, and a third at the discretion of the jurors. Colonel Ramsay, from Kumaon and Gurhwall, exhibited a most interesting collection of hill birds, animals, and forest produce. Captain Garrett, R.A., Commissary of Ordnance, contributed a complete trophy and representative specimens of the weapons in the Ordnance Department. The Lieutenant-Governor remarked on the great success of the experiment of free admissions, upon which many doubts were entertained. Nothing could have been more orderly than the crowds which daily flocked to the grounds, and it is remarkable how intelligent was the appreciation generally of the exhibitors, the wonderful crowds of women and of children evincing the perfect confidence of the people. There was no mischief or damage of any kind. Hitherto on such occasions the difficulty has been to get the people to come. Now all press in of their own accord. The exhibition building cost £16,000 all of which was raised by the public except £5,000.

THE MYEENGOON PRINCE, one of the two sons of the King of Burmah who took refuge in Rangoon, has fled, it is believed, to the Shan States. It is a matter of indifference to us where he goes, if he does not collect armed men in our territory, or create a disturbance on the frontier. The Shans have been so long in an uneasy state that he probably hopes to raise the standard of rebellion among them. This will again seriously complicate matters in Upper Burmah, and hasten the downfall of the dynasty. Colonel Fytche is not likely to lack an early opportunity of showing of what stuff he is made.—Friend of India.

MR. J. W. SHERER.—We regret to learn that Mr. J. W. Sherer, C.S.I., Judge of Jounpore, is compelled by sickness to take fifteen months' leave of absence to England. He leaves this country next month.

A NATIVE SENSATION.—The following somewhat startling piece of intelligence is copied from a newsletter from Rummagery (February 1st) to the Post:—An English gentleman lately residing in Madras, who has embraced the Mahomedan religion, has arrived here with the intention of proceeding hence to Mecca, on a pilgrimage to the suspended tomb of the prophet Mahomed. He is attired in Mussulman clothes, but strange to say he does not know Hindustanee, nor does he understand the language of the Koran. Upon what conviction, therefore, he has been induced to throw off the religion of his fathers and to adopt that of Mahomed it is difficult to say. He is about twenty years of age. Some mischievous wag or another has been the means of strange reports being disseminated throughout the Konkan, which, ridiculous as they are, are nevertheless believed by the major portion of the generally credulous Konkani. One of these is to the effect that a thalce (a metallic plate) has been sounded in Bombay notifying to the public that as her Majesty the Queen intends coming to reside here, all the natives at present residing in it are required to leave the island forthwith!

A FEROCIOUS MAN-EATING TIGRESS KILLED BY CAPTAIN FRASER.—We are glad to learn that Captain Fraser, District Superintendent of Police, has succeeded in killing the notorious man-eating tigress in the Kampta Tehseelee, Bhundara district. Apart from the kudos as a Shikaree which the gallant captain has achieved by the destruction of this beast, he is also deserving of the warmest gratitude from the people of the district, from the midst of whom he has removed a frightful scourge which had long spread terror and desolation among them. No less than fifty-one human beings have fallen under the fangs of this savage brute. Her last victim was a young Ghond woman, who was seized and dragged out of a hut while grinding flour. We heartily congratulate Captain Fraser on having so deservedly won the special reward of Rs. 200 which, we believe, has been recommended for the destruction of this animal.

THE MAHOGANY TREE.—Dr. T. Anderson has reported to Government that great success has attended the introduction of the mahogany tree into the Calcutta Botanical Gardens. Several of the trees, originally introduced in 1795 from Jamaica as young trees, were destroyed in the cyclone of 1864, when they were seventy-one years of age. The had attained a very large size, averaging about 12 feet in girth at 4 feet above the ground. The wood is in great demand at high prices in Calcutta. Dr. Anderson believes that the mahogany tree might as easily be spread over all parts of Bengal as the larch has been in Britain. The tree thrives equally well in the alluvial clay of Lower Bengal and the dry laterite soil near Bhaugulpore. The only obstacle to the extension of the cultivation of mahogany is the difficulty of procuring sufficient quantities of seed. The expensive plan of propagating by seedling plants has been adopted. Dr. Anderson thinks that large numbers of plants could be produced by artificial propagation (by cuttings and layers) as has been done in the case of cinchona. The Government of Jamaica is to be asked for annual supplies of seed. We may mention that the fine mahogany trees in the compound of our office were not affected by the cyclone when many others were levelled.

ANOTHER COURT-MARTIAL.—We regret to learn that a court-martial is to be assembled at this station (Allahabad) for the trial of Apothecary and Honorary Assistant-Surgeon Leach, attached to the Royal Artillery, on a charge of intemperance.

THE COMPTROLLER GENERAL OF ACCOUNTS.—We understand Mr. R. P. Harrison, Comptroller-General of Accounts, proceeds shortly to Europe. Major Chesney is spoken of as likely to succeed him.

MILITARY CHANGES.—It is understood that Colonel Jackson, commanding the 2nd Bengal Cavalry, retires immediately upon full pay. His second in command, Captain Shaw, is upon the point of taking sick furlough, and a full vacancy thus offers itself. It is also reported that Colonel Roberts, commanding the 17th Cavalry, proposes to take general leave, in which event, owing to the absence of the second in command and second squadron officer—Captains Watson and Hoggan—invalided home, an officiating command will fall to the gift of the Commander-in-Chief.

OPIMUM.—At the Calcutta opium sale on the 13th of February the following prices were realised:—

	Chests.	Average.	Proceeds.
Behar	2,000	1,316-1-0	2,632,125
Benares	2,000	1,255-10-0	2,411,250

For the first time for many months Mr. Massey's estimate of £130 has been exceeded, in the case of the Behar drug at least.

THE APPOINTMENT OF AN ENGLISH OFFICER TO LEH rests with the Punjab Government, who, so far as we have heard, has not yet nominated any one. With a slight infusion of caution Mr. Lepel Griffin, C. S., would be the very man for the post, for he possesses the requisite energy and intelligent curiosity.—Friend of India.

THE NEPAL AGENCY.—There is likely to be a vacancy in the Nepal Political Agency. Colonel Shewers, who is to act as Political Agent at Bhutpore meantime, is named as the successor.

MADRAS.

AN EXPERIMENTAL FARM AT MADRAS.

The Madras Times says:—In the spring of 1865 the Local Government determined to establish an experimental farm in Madras, in the hope of improving the breed of live stock in this presidency and introducing a better system of agriculture among the natives. Farming was a pet subject with Sir William Denison, and the experimental farm scheme consequently received every support at his hands. Three hundred and fifty acres of land, situated near Guindy, was set apart for the farm, and a committee was appointed to manage it. Agricultural implements and machinery of the most approved European pattern were procured from England with the idea of teaching the ryot how to cultivate his fields. One of the first things the committee did was to display the powers of the English threshing and winnowing machines. A trial was made between the machines on the one hand and a certain number of native labourers on the other, who were to thresh and winnow according to the primitive fashion of the country. Madras society, including many well dressed ladies, assembled in great force on the occasion to witness the exciting competition and the triumphs of Western science over mere brute labour. At a given signal the trial began, when immediately such a dust and hubbub arose as will not be easily forgotten by those whose eyes were closed with the former and whose ears were stunned by the latter. Alarm seized upon the ladies, who began to beat a hasty retreat, and they were followed by many of the other sex, who might have shown a more courageous example. The bullocks working the machines would not describe circles, and had to be goaded and hooted by their drivers continuously to keep the machines going at all. On the other hand, the opposition had been stimulated by the promise of a pecuniary reward, and worked with unflagging energy. The excitement extended to the spectators, and the Governor and Members of Council might occasionally be seen through the dusty obscurity, running excitedly about like so many Shadrachs, Meshecs and Abed-nigos defying the fiery furnace. The result of the competition was not very satisfactory, as the machinery was beaten in the most unmistakable manner, though the Farm Committee themselves arranged the conditions of the trial. The report of the committee's operations during the year 1865-6 has been placed at the disposal of the press. Last year was not a favourable one for agricultural operations anywhere, and thus the experiments at the farm were not so successful as they might otherwise have been. The report, however, is not devoid of interest. Lucerne, guinea-grass, English clover, sweet potatoes, pumpkins, and Chinese sugar-grass have been grown with more or less success. The committee are of opinion that lucerne is hardly likely to be remunerative. Guinea-grass grows with remarkable luxuriance and yields enormous crops; it makes excellent fodder for horses and cows, and the cultivation of it will no doubt spread rapidly. English clover, too, has grown and flowered so well, that the committee have determined to import a large supply of seed from England. Sweet potatoes and pumpkins were both grown very successfully, but the sugar grass was a failure. Attempts are being made to improve the breed of sheep, but the two Southdown rams that were imported are both dead, though fortunately not before a cross had been effected with the Coimbatore ewes. English pigs are declared to thrive well, and young sucking pigs command a ready sale at ten shillings each. The committee have not yet had opportunities to make trial of all their machinery, but the experiments made have been "highly satisfactory," and lead them to hope that the ryots will soon learn that the extensive use of English implements and machinery in cultivation is certain to be attended with great advantage. They pronounce the "chain and bucket pump" the most efficient mode of raising water for irrigation purposes, and the best adapted to the means of the ryot. Owing to the unusual dryness of the season, the committee were not able to make trustworthy trials with the ploughs. The total expenditure on the Government farm for the year 1865-6 was Rs. 12,522-2-3. It would be premature to say whether the experience gained is worth the money; the Government seems at all events to be rather doubtful about it as yet, as they express a hope that "the next report of the committee will be of an encouraging character."

MISCELLANEOUS.

LORD AND LADY NAPIER left Madras on Sunday evening last by the steamer Feroze for Calcutta. His lordship's visit to Sir John Lawrence is quite of a private character, and his stay with the Viceroy will not be more than a week or ten days' duration. The same steamer will, we presume, bring the Governor and lady Napier back to Madras. A rumour has been started by one of the Calcutta papers that Sir John Lawrence has received such a tremendous "wiggling" from Lord Cranborne in reference to the Orissa famine that the Viceroy had no other alternative but to resign his post. The Englishman has declared that the rumour is wanting in the necessary element of truth. We conceive it very possible, however, that the Home authorities have expressed dissatisfaction with Sir John's Government in reference to this famine business, for it is very certain that great dilatoriness was displayed by the Calcutta authorities in general, and Sir Cecil Beadon in particular. It appears now that a famine was anticipated so long ago as the latter part of 1865, and yet, during the last hot season, we find the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal "skeddaddling" as usual to the hills just as though nothing of importance was occurring in the plains. Sir Cecil Beadon may write voluminous and able minutes in explanation of his conduct, but the public cannot get over the stubborn fact that in behaving as he did he shirked his duty. English people do not like to see a countryman deserting his post in the hour of danger, even though they may be assured that his presence there was of no possible use.—Madras Times, Feb. 23.

IRRIGATION.—The long talked of scheme for irrigating the lands in the vicinity of Madras, and supplying water to the town for sanitary and other purposes from the Red Hills lake, has advanced another stage. The local Government, in a despatch, dated 12th September last, brought the project before Lord Cranborne, suggesting the advisability of committing its execution to the enterprise of a private company as the most speedy means of completing it. There can be no doubt that a company would find the undertaking exceedingly profitable; but this benefit Lord Cranborne does not seem disposed willingly to forego. He has therefore advised, as the best course to pursue, that Government should take upon itself the irrigation part of the scheme, to convey the water to a reservoir in Madras, and to then place it at the disposal of the Municipality on liberal terms. If the Municipality find any difficulty in raising sufficient funds for the purpose, Government will be allowed to advance the money required, on the security of water rates fixed sufficiently high to be likely to pay off principal and interest within a limited period. Government has solicited authority from the Secretary of State to raise a loan of eight lakhs to carry out the first part of the project. In the meantime the works, begun last year under pressure of the famine, are rapidly progressing, and will, if the loan be obtained, be finished in two years from this. If Lord Cranborne should refuse to sanction the loan, the works will require the application of current revenue, and will then occupy four years at least. The design will not now be relaxed or abandoned, but it may be a long while yet before the much needed water is distributed through the town.—Madras Times.

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT.—A very sad accident occurred during the late voyage of the steamer Madras to Rangoon, whereby an employe in the Government Telegraph Department, who was a passenger by the Madras, lost his life. On the night of the 10th Jan. Mr. Richard Avers, the passenger in question, finding his cabin uncomfortably warm, extemporised a sleeping berth upon one of the side hen-coops on deck, to which he was observed to retire about midnight. He appears to have disencumbered himself of his boots, for these were found on the hen-coops the next morning, but nothing could be heard on board the steamer regarding the owner of them, who was consequently supposed to have unconsciously rolled overboard in his sleep. No cry from the unfortunate young man seems to have been heard by any one on board the vessel, nor was his disappearance remarked before all possibility of rescuing him from a watery grave had long passed. Mr. Avers had attained the rank of telegraph master in the department to which he belonged, and was a very promising young man, but by this lamentable accident his career has been prematurely closed when within a few days of completing his twentieth year. He was the son of a well-known, and deservedly respected, pensioned apothecary.—Athenæum and Daily News.

MORE DISTRESS.—It is with regret that we have to chronicle the fact that distress, which all hoped had passed away, is again appearing in some parts of our Presidency. In Madura the tanks and channels are reported to be destitute of water, the wells drying up, the people to be subsisting partly on roots, and their sufferings aggravated by the usual accompaniments of Indian famines, and the scarcity of labour. The authorities are, however, doing all in their power to mitigate the suffering. Relief houses have been established in several places, and sums of money have been sanctioned for the prosecution of public works. Tanjore and Salem are also beginning to show signs of suffering from want of water.—Madras Times.

AMONGST OTHER MUNICIPAL CHANGES that are being effected is the reorganisation of the town police. The main features of the change are the amalgamation of the preventive and detective branches of the present force, and their re-classification on the constabulary model, an increase of pay to some of the ranks, and a reduction in the number of the mounted police. These changes are considered very satisfactory, as the efficiency of the force will be thereby increased, and the expenditure slightly diminished. Under the new organisation, which will be brought into operation almost immediately, the strength will be 789 men, and the annual expense Rs. 115,008.

SINCE THE DEPARTURE OF MISS CARPENTER the talk about native female education has completely subsided. It appears, however, that that lady's visit has not been altogether ineffectual, as several weeks ago more than a hundred of the leading natives of Madras petitioned Government to establish a female normal school "for the training of respectable female teachers." The memorial is unusually brief, and leaves apparently all the details of the matter to Government, who have promised to give the subject careful consideration.—Madras Times.

THE OFFICERS OF THE MADRAS ARMY are showing their gratitude to Colonel Sykes, Major Jervis, and Major General North, for their successful exertions on behalf of the officers of the Indian Army, by raising a subscription to purchase a fitting testimonial to be presented to each of those gentlemen. The subscription is exceedingly popular, and bids fair to amount to a respectable sum.

SIR GASPARD LE MARCHANT has returned to the Presidency. As the weather in Madras is just now rather hot, his Excellency has gone off to Ooty, and will remain there it is said for the greater part of the year.

ADDRESSES TO SIR BARTLE FRERE.—As the time of Sir Bartle Frere's departure from Bombay approaches farewell and congratulatory addresses pour in from all sides. From several of the mofussil towns—Surat, Ahmedabad, Broach, &c.—deputations have arrived, read the addresses of their fellow-citizens to his Excellency, and carried back his answer, almost without its being known that they had come to Bombay. The state of his Excellency's health and the number of his engagements render it impossible for him to receive such deputations otherwise than privately and with a total absence of all ceremony which would in any way tax his already too precious time. For this same reason the addresses of congratulation recently voted to his Excellency by the Chamber of Commerce, the Bench of Justices, and by the inhabitants of the city in public meeting assembled, were formally received by him at Government House, Parrell, on one and the same occasion, February 25th. The address from the Chamber of Commerce was read by the Chairman, the Hon. A. J. Hunter, and contained ample references to the great services rendered by his Excellency in the advancement of trade, first in Sind, and afterwards in Bombay. The improvements which have of late years been effected and are still going on in the harbour of Bombay were specially mentioned as due in a great measure to his Excellency's personal endeavours to advance the prosperity of the port, and it was said that for the extension of railway communication in Western and Northern India the people of these districts would ever be under the deepest obligations to him. The address from the Bench of Justices dwelt upon the zeal with which his Excellency had encouraged and aided the Bench in the prosecution of those municipal and sanitary improvements of which Bombay stands so much in need. Their length prevents our noticing the points touched on by his Excellency in the replies, but this is the less to be regretted as their thoughtful tone and unusually comprehensive interest will ensure their being read with pleasure by all in any way connected with, or interested in India.

RAILWAY PROGRESS.—On Wednesday, Feb. 20, the extension of the Great Indian Peninsular Railway from Sindree to Nagpore, a distance of twenty miles, was formally opened for traffic. A special train, conveying the head officials of the line and others interested in railway extension, left Bombay on Tuesday, the 19th February, for Nagpore, where it was expected to arrive on the following day at eleven A.M. A distance of 500 miles will thus have been travelled in twenty-four hours; and this, taking into consideration the crossing of the Thull Ghaut, is no mean accomplishment in India. After the opening of the line a durbār is to be held at Nagpore by Mr. Temple, C.S.I., the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, to be followed by a ball in the evening. The day will also be observed as a general holiday throughout "Templestan." In Northern India, too, railway extension is being pushed on with vigour. It was at one time supposed that the section of the Delhi and Punjab Railway between Gazeabad and Meerut would be ready for traffic by March 1st, but this has been found impossible, as some slight difficulty has been experienced in the construction of the telegraph. An obstacle of this kind, however, can only prove trifling, and is not likely to occasion great delay. With reference to the opening of the same line of railway to Umballa, which was lately announced by the Government of the North-West Provinces as likely to be practicable in March of 1868, it is now feared that this achievement can scarcely be accomplished before May of that year, when the line may also be completed for traffic as far as Loodiana, seventy miles beyond Umballa, in the direction of Lahore, and only a hundred and twenty miles from the capital of the Punjab itself. In the course of eighteen months at most the traveller will be able to journey by rail all the way from Calcutta to Lahore, with the exception of eighty miles between Umritsur and Loodiana.

WHAT IS A SAHEB?—Some of the Bombay native papers object to the application of the word Sahab either to a class like Europeans, or to such men as loafers who happen to be Europeans. Native Opinion explains that the word is a title of respect as Raja Sahab, Sirdar Sahab, Khan Sahab, and even Shet Sahab. Hence it is quite proper to say, Governor Sahab, Commander Sahab, Doctor Sahab. But the term cannot be affixed to individual and proper names. Among natives of position individuals have double names, one the proper name or nomen, and the other a sort of fond name in the family to which strangers generally affix the word Sahab. Hence the compounds Anna Sahab, Appa Sahab, Nana Sahab. But the proper name cannot be so added to. For instance, the nomen of the present Chief of Jamkhindi is Ramchandra, and his surname Patwardhan. No one, however, dreams of joining Sahab to either name. But the chief is familiarly known as Appa Sahab. The same is the case with female names. We have Ranee Sahab, Bai Sahab, and Tai Sahab, but not (to take an historic name) Ahilya Sahab. Thus, then, we may have Madame Sahab, but the latter cannot be joined to the individual name.

THE BANK OF BOMBAY—the condition of which has for months past excited grave apprehensions—has had to be rescued, by the direct support of the Government, from the effects of a run on its deposits. On Feb. 16th the usual weekly return was published for the first time with the figures showing the reduction in the nominal amount of the capital, as finally agreed upon at a special general meeting of the proprietors about a month ago. Simultaneously with this change in the bank's statement, notice was given that several of the branches would be closed, and the engagements of several of the European staff were terminated by special arrangement. These circumstances seemed to have drawn the attention of large depositors to the well-known embarrassed position of the bank, several of whom, more especially the joint-stock bankers, withdrew their balances, and during the week ending February 23rd one crore and seven lakhs (£1,070,000) were withdrawn. On that day it was known in Bombay that the Government of India had agreed to renew for another year its relations with the bank for the conduct of the local Government's treasury business and for the management of the public debt in this presidency. This news, however, failed to reassure the public, and on the evening of the 25th the directors had to apply to the Bombay Government for advice and assistance. In consequence of this a letter was published in the morning from Mr. F. S. Chapman, the chief secretary, the effective portion of which runs thus:—"I am directed to inform you that the agreement having been renewed for a year from the 1st proximo, Government are prepared to support the bank to the full extent of their available resources from the present date to the termination of the renewed agreement." This allayed the fears of the depositors, though it is seen by the weekly return dated Feb. 23rd that the bank does not possess nearly sufficient available funds to meet the possible current demands upon it, and sixty lakhs have already been sent from Calcutta, to be followed immediately by sixty more. Of the "Loans," "Credits," and "Bills" at present held by the bank as assets, amounting to Rs. 2,61,16,000 (£2,611,600), there are, according to the direct avowal of the manager, Rs. 1,37,00,000 (£1,370,000) locked up as claims on insolvent estates, and it is believed that a considerable portion besides of the above sum is in similar evil case; so that it is probable the bank has not more than 40 lakhs of capital to work upon, including the treasury reserve. These figures are drawn out in accordance with the reduction of the capital to half its original amount, and after writing off 36 lakhs of "Reserve Fund" and "Profit" which appeared in the annual statement last June. The depreciation of shares and house property, of which the greater portion of the bank's assets consists, is extreme, but it is now believed that the depression in these values must continue for a year or two. Any recovery of the bank to a position of credit and profitable business seems now impossible, and it has been proposed that a new bank shall be formed with a capital of 25 lakhs, to be increased as the assets of the present bank are being realised; but no definite steps have yet been taken to carry out this proposal.—Bombay Gazette.

COTTON.—The reports of the growing cotton crops are very good from all the principal districts of Western India, but the formal returns are not yet sent in, and it is too early to form any general estimate of the relative extent of the breadth under cultivation. In Dharwar the first picking has commenced, and there is the prospect of an excellent crop of the American variety. At Compta, the old port of that district, there are large stocks of last year's cotton, which the cultivators and the dealers held back after hearing of the fall in price eight months ago, being enabled to do so from their pecuniary position being so much improved by the profits principally derived from cotton. Those stocks of old Dharwar will now come forward, as also large supplies of the Hingunghaut, and other good staples from Berar and the Central Provinces. The arrival of these better varieties is much wished for in Bombay, as the selection on the cotton ground is at present very restricted, and a considerable proportion of what has already been shipped this year is necessarily of inferior quality. Many complaints have recently been made of fraudulent practices in connection with consignments of cotton shipped on private account through commission houses. This evil might readily be checked, if not wholly stopped, were the merchants and bankers who advance on these consignments to insist upon having certificates sent from the presses with each lot of bales. The inspectors under the Cotton Frauds' Act could readily give such certificates if the shippers were compelled to apply for them; and if the London boards of the exchange banks would require certificates of the description of cotton to be affixed to all document bills bought by the branches in Bombay, fraudulent consignments would speedily cease.—Times of India.

INDIAN TOBACCO.—The Bombay Gazette, anticipating a reduction in the price of Indian cotton, and the consequent return of much land to cheap grain cultivation, urges capitalists and landholders to attend to the culture and improve the manufacture of tobacco for export, so as to take the place of cotton. The writer, who seems to be an experienced smoker, asserts that the Indian leaf is good, far better than that of the Philippine Islands, though Manila cheroots are growing into favour in England, because they are easily smoked, and are much cheaper than Havannahs. The species of tobacco grown in the Deccan is the same as the original American one. Notwithstanding the utter neglect of the cultivation some qualities are good. The Neriad leaf in Guzaret is well known, and is frequently used by Englishmen, mixed with Cavendish. The Indian product that most nearly approaches the Havannah is a cigar made at Pondichery, of the size of a sixpenny West Indian one. It is made without any saltpetre, and when thoroughly dried and kept with care is pleasant to smoke, and perfectly harmless. These cigars can be bought for about fifteen rupees a thousand. If improved they could be imported into England at a splendid profit. Only English capital and skill will produce this result, if we may judge from exotic cotton, indigo, tea, and coffee.

CENTRAL ASIAN AFFAIRS.—The Mofussilite's Cabul news-letter publishes the following, which we believe to be nearly correct:—"The auxiliary Russian force which was occupied in taking Bokhara has retreated again towards the North East. In all the towns conquered by the Russians the General has appointed one Russian officer to govern it, and native officials who have deserted the cause of their king have been put under their immediate control to make new arrangements of the territories. After the last battle the Russian force has been divided and sent to four different places to guard the passes and consolidate the Russian border of Turkistan. The first detachment is to live in Bokhara itself, where it is in contemplation to raise a large and strong cantonment for troops. The second will stop somewhere on the Bokhara and Herat road, to avoid any possible excursion of the Afghans, or, on the contrary, as a preliminary step to invade Afghanistan by that way. The third is to remain on the way leading to Hazara, while the fourth will stop at Merve and Shahjahan, adjoining the desert of Turkistan, in Turcomania. It will be thus observed that all Turkistan except its south-east corner has become under direct or indirect control of the Russians. On the one hand, Russia holds out a friendly hand to Persia on the south, and puts a finger on Cabul and Herat; while, on the other, Budukhsan, Bulkh, Thibet, and Cashmere, will be a prey for her in the more south-eastern direction. It is, however, reported on good authority that Russia will for the present rest. Desertion from the Ameer continues as before."

THE ABYSSINIAN PRISONERS.—Colonel Merewether has returned to Aden, from Massowah, the Turkish port in the Red Sea for Abyssinia. The captives were still in prison though not treated with great severity. The country was in a state of internal disturbance and the king's forces had been considerably reduced in his struggles with the rebels. The English artisans remained at Massowah, a fact which says little for the success of Colonel Merewether's mission. An expedition seems inevitable, and yet it must be so unsatisfactory.

A FALSE ALARM.—A magisterial investigation into the alleged firing at one of the trains on the B. B. and C. I. Railway tends to show that Colonel Cahusac was mistaken in supposing that the missile which struck the carriage had been propelled from a gun. It is generally supposed that the mischief resulted from a stone thrown from a sling at some birds by a youth in one of the fields bordering on the railway.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

THE GOVERNMENT AND THE INDIAN BANKS.

Mr. J. PEEL asked the Secretary of State for India whether his attention had been directed to a report which had been published in the newspapers of the intended amalgamation of the banks of Bombay and Bengal; and whether any change was contemplated in the arrangements now existing between the Indian Government and those establishments.

Sir S. NORTHGOTE said there had been a paragraph in a City article of a morning paper to that effect, but the Government had not received any official communication upon the subject, and he was not able to say whether it was the intention of the Indian Government to make any change in consequence.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MARCH 21.

THE APPOINTMENTS IN THE STRAITS SETTLEMENT.

Mr. O'REILLY asked the Under-Secretary for the Colonies whether, with reference to the statement of the Under-Secretary for India, that the earliest period at which the India Office could ascertain the course which the Colonial Secretary was likely to pursue with reference to the new appointment in the Straits Settlement was the 18th of January, he is aware that those appointments were authoritatively announced in the public papers long antecedent to that date; and, if so, whether he can explain to the House how this occurred.

Mr. ADDERLEY said the appointment was made on the 18th of January, but he was not aware how the statement with respect to Colonel Lord and the other officers had got into the newspapers before.

COURT OF PROBATE AND DIVORCE.

MARCH 15.

(Before Sir J. P. WILDE and a Special Jury.)

WIGHT V. WIGHT AND FIELD.

Dr. Spinks, Q.C., and Mr. Searle were counsel for the petitioner; Mr. Serjeant Tindal Atkinson and Dr. Wamby for the co-respondent; and Sir Robert Collier and Dr. Tristram for the respondent.

This case was again resumed to-day, when Sir R. Collier, Q.C., and Dr. Spinks, Q.C., addressed the jury on behalf of the respondent and petitioner.

His lordship summed up at considerable length, and in doing so complained of the half-light in which, by the inability to tell their own story imposed by the law on the parties to the suit, the jury were compelled to try the case.

The jury, after deliberating for a few minutes, found that the respondent and co-respondent had not committed adultery.

The verdict was therefore in their favour.

THE CHRISTENING OF THE INFANT SON OF THE MAHARAJAH DULEEP SINGH.—(WINDSOR CASTLE, March 20.)—His Highness the Maharajah Duleep Singh and the Maharane arrived at the Castle yesterday, and dined with the Queen and the Royal family. His Highness was attended by Colonel Oliphant. The ceremony of christening the Shahazadah, the infant son of his Highness the Maharajah and the Maharane, took place in the private chapel of the Castle this morning, the Queen standing in person as one of the sponsors, the others being the Maharajah and the Rev. William Jay. The Hon. and Very Rev. the Dean of Windsor performed the ceremony. The Shahazadah received the names of Victor Albert. Their Royal Highnesses Princess Louise, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold were present. The Duchess of Roxburghe and the Countess of Caledon were in attendance upon her Majesty. There were also present the Earl and Countess of Leven and Melville, Lady Sophia Melville, Major-general Sir T. M. and the Hon. Lady Biddulph, the Hon. Mrs. Wellesley, and the ladies and gentlemen in waiting. His Highness the Maharajah and the Maharanee, attended by Colonel Oliphant, left the Castle this afternoon.

MAIL COMMUNICATION WITH INDIA AND THE EAST.—A memorial will shortly be presented to the Treasury, signed by all the leading Indian and China firms in the city, on the subject of mail communication with the East. It has been prepared in consequence of the notice which has been given to terminate the present mail contract with the Peninsular and Oriental Company. The memorialists suggest that the mail service should in future be worked direct from Hong Kong to Suez, calling at the intermediate ports; and that a steamer should be in readiness at Alexandria to bring the mails on to Marseilles. They express their belief that if such a plan were adopted, and the present practice of waiting for the connecting Australian or Calcutta steamer abandoned, the distance between Hong Kong and Marseilles might easily be performed in thirty-seven days during nine months of the year, and in forty to forty-one days during the south-west monsoon. A table annexed to the memorial, taken from the London and China Telegraph, shows that during the year 1866 the average number of days taken to convey the mails from Shanghai to London was by the French Messageries Impériales steamers 41½ days, and by the English 51½.

EAST INDIA IRRIGATION AND CANAL COMPANY AND THE CULTIVATORS IN ORISSA.—We are informed that intelligence has been received by the East India Irrigation and Canal Company to the effect that the cause which operated to prevent the cultivators in Orissa irrigating their lands from the company's canals has been removed, the Government of India having renewed the present land settlement upon the same terms for twenty years more, and undertaken at any future settlement not to charge more for irrigated than for unirrigated land. Also that, with a view to give more extended employment to the suffering population, and to expedite the extension of irrigation by the company, the Governor-general had offered to advance as much money as the company can expend in addition to their own regular outlay during the current year; and that such offer had been accepted by the company's manager.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for £300,000 in bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 20th inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were: to Calcutta, £196,000; to Madras, £1,000; and to Bombay, £100,000. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 11d. per rupee on all the Presidencies; tenders on Calcutta and Madras, at 1s. 11½d., will receive about 54 per cent.; and on Bombay, at 1s. 11¼d., about 11 per cent.; those above these prices will receive in full. Compared with the rates taken a month ago the above shows a considerable increase in the demand for remittance to the East.

ORIENTAL MANUSCRIPTS

(CHIEFLY PERSIAN),

SELECTED FROM THE LIBRARY OF

DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D.,

AND FOR SALE BY

MESSRS. WM. H. ALLEN AND CO., 13, WATERLOO-PLACE, LONDON.

* * In ordering from this List, please state the Number, first word of Title, and Price.

30. TUHFATU-L-HIND.—"A rare present respecting India," composed during the reign of Aurangzeb, by MIRZA KHAN, the son of Fakhrul-Dini Muhammad. It is divided into a preface, seven books, and a conclusion, treating of the Prosody, Rhyme, Rhetoric, Music, Magic, and two other nameless accomplishments in which the Hindus are supposed to be adepts. The MS. is written in a very fair Ta'lik character, slightly worm-eaten on the margin, but the text, with rare exceptions, is still untouched. Small 4to. pp. 680, ll. 15. £2. 2s.

31. BAHARI DANISH.—"The Spring Season of Wisdom." A collection of entertaining Tales, principally satires on women, by 'INAYAT ULLAH, of Delhi. The work was composed about A.D. 1650, and the whole of it has been translated in a style at once elegant and literal by JONATHAN SCOTT, Esq. In three volumes, 8vo., 1799. This MS. is in a fine state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character on good paper of various tints, the margins neatly ruled. It was transcribed at Agra, A.D. 1714. Large 8vo. pp. 654, ll. 15. £5. 15s. 6d.

33. DIWANI HAFIZ.—The Divan or Odes of Hafiz, who was born at Shiraz about A.D. 1300, and died at the same place in A.D. 1383. Of all the Persian poets he is still the most esteemed and admired by his countrymen. His works, like the Kur'an, are frequently had recourse to for taking a ful or omen by those about to commence any important undertaking of uncertain issue; as was once a frequent custom in Europe when people consulted the works of Virgil, or even the Bible itself, for a similar purpose. This MS. is in the highest state of preservation, written in a most beautiful Ta'lik character on very fine paper, sprinkled over with gold dust, with margins tastefully ruled, and a finely-executed 'Anwan at the beginning. 8vo. pp. 416, ll. 14. £1. 11s. 6d.

35. HADIKAE SANA'I.—"The Garden (of Truth)," by SANA'I. This MS. is the same as No. 28, already described. It is written in a very plain Ta'lik character, and preceded by a very copious table of contents. It was transcribed A.D. 1656. 8vo. pp. 962, ll. 17. £2. 2s.

37. TUTI NAMA.—"Tales of a Parrot," compiled or translated from the Sanskrit by ZIYAU-L-DIN NAKHSHABI, who composed this version about A.D. 1830. The original Sanskrit consisted of seventy Tales, under the title of Shukasaptati. Of these Nakhshabi's version consists of fifty-two Tales. This MS. is in perfect preservation, written in a clear bold Ta'lik character on fine strong European paper. Transcribed at Miranpur, in A.D. 1780. Folio, pp. 876, ll. 16. £2. 12s. 6d.

39. KHAMSÆ NIZAMI.—Another series of "Five Select Poems from Nizami," differing somewhat from the other both as to subjects and arrangement. It is got up in a similar style, only a few of the Rubrics have been cut out, most likely by the scissors of some pilfering bluestocking for ornamenting her album. (May the personage who shall be nameless have rewarded her!) It has been somewhat spoiled by damp, but very neatly repaired, and the text is quite clear and legible, and almost as finely written as the preceding MS. The five poems here given are:—1. The Makhzani Asrar. 2. The Loves of Khusrû and Shirin; a romance. 3. Laili-o-Majnun; also a romance. 4. Kitabi Haft Paikar; and 5. The Sikandar Nama, otherways called the Ikbal Nama, and sometimes incorrectly the Sharf Nama, and Sikandari. The Ikbal Nama is often to be met with by itself, independent of the other poems. The work is done up in the original Oriental binding. Large folio, pp. 610, ll. 20. £7. 7s.

40. KHAMSÆ NIZAMI.—This is another copy of the preceding work. It is in the highest state of preservation, and contains in reality six poetical pieces by NIZAMI instead of five as the title would indicate. They are the following:—1. Makhzani Asrar. 2. Khusrû and Shirin. 3. Laili and Majnun. 4. The Haft Paikar. 5. The Sikandar Nama; and 6. Khirad Nama, and Sikandari. This last work is rarely to be found in the Khamsas, though it really forms the sequel to the Sikandar Nama. It is also called Sikandar Nama, Bahri, in opposition to No. 5, which is distinguished as Sikandar Nama, Barri. This MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a fine Ta'lik character on variously tinted paper, with margins neatly ruled. It was transcribed in A.D. 1665. Large folio, pp. 628, ll. 21. £10. 10s.

42. MAJMU'Æ NAZM O NASR.—A collection of works in verse and prose, some of them rare; transcribed from beginning to end by the NAWAB MUHAMMAD SHAFI' KHAN, as stated on the fly leaf at the beginning. It is in the same hand, and on the same kind of paper and the same Oriental binding, as that of the work described under No. 11 as "Durru-l-Nasr." The contents of this volume are chiefly poetry, with a few pieces in prose. They are the following:—1. The Makhzanul-Asrar, by Nizami (v. No. 38). 2. The Diwan, etc., of Sa'adi (v. No. 78). 3. The Diwan of Salman (v. No. 89). 4. The Diwan of Zuhir Faryabi. 5. The Diwan of Abu-l-Faraj Rûni (v. No. 152). 6. The Kasidas of Ummedi. There are besides, numerous other poetical extracts, among which is the First Book of the Masnavi (v. No. 48). Among the Prose Treatises are:—1. A Treatise on the Science and Practice of Music. 2. Letters of Nuru-l-Dini Muhammad. 3. Chihil ismi a'zam, on the Forty Great Names of God, and many other treatises on the Muhammadan Religion; such as Omens, Prayers, and Religious Ceremonies, &c. The work is in every way uniform with No. 11, and the two were probably intended to form one volume under the above title. 4to. pp. 348, ll. various. £2. 13s. 6d.

43. KIMIYÆ SA'ADAT.—"The Alchemy of Happiness." A general system of Ethics, in four books, treating of four different subjects—viz., 1. On the Knowledge of Ourselves. 2. On the Knowledge of God. 3. On the Knowledge of the Present World; and 4. On the Knowledge of the World to Come. The author was the celebrated sage IMAM ABU MUHAMMAD AL GHAZALI, of Tus, where he died about A.D. 1111. He is the author of several other works (besides the above) on Morality and Theology, all of which are to this day held in the highest estimation by his countrymen. This MS. is in the finest state of preservation, written in a beautiful Naskhi character. All passages and quotations from the Arabic are fully pointed. The margins are very neatly and tastefully ruled, and the paper is of that pale Oriental tint which, when not closely inspected, resembles parchment. Large folio, pp. 810, ll. 21. £5. 5s.

44. HAIDAR-NAMA WA SIHRU-L-BAYAN.—This volume contains two works bound in one. The Haidar-nama treats of the life and actions of the famous Haidar 'Ali Khan of the Mairur. Translated into the Dakhani dialect of the Hindustani by order of Captain Thomas Little. It was transcribed in 1805. Written on good European paper in a bold clear Ta'lik character. Folio, pp. 193, ll. 13. The Sihrul-Bayan is a Masnavi in classical Urdu, by MIR GHULAM HASAN, of Delhi, the subject of which is the Loves of the Prince Be-Nazir and the Princess Badr Munir. It was printed at Calcutta in 1805. This MS. is written in a fine Ta'lik character according to Dr. Gilchrist's reformed system, on very good Indian paper; both MSS. are in the highest state of preservation. Folio, pp. 193, ll. 13, and pp. 143, ll. 15. £3. 3s.

45. KISASU-L-AMBIYA.—"The History of the Prophets," giving a full account of Muhammad and of his four immediate successors, by MIRZA MUHAMMAD RAFI' ISFAHANI. Transcribed in A.D. 1645, in the city of Daulatabad. The MS. is in the highest state of preservation, written in a very clear Ta'lik character, the Arabic quotations in fine Naskhi fully pointed. Folio, pp. 474, ll. 25. £4. 4s.

46. 'IYYARI DANISH.—The same as No. 27, q.v. Very finely written in the Ta'lik character on excellent Indian paper. In the highest state of preservation. Transcribed in A.D. 1783. Folio, pp. 446, ll. 17. £3. 3s.

47. MA'ASIRU-L-UMARA.—A Biography of the most eminent men that lived during the reigns of Akbar and his immediate successors. The MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a fair and distinct Ta'lik character, on very good Indian paper, with large margin; part of the latter has been pierced—evidently by a musket ball—but I have neatly repaired the damage. The whole of the text is quite perfect. Folio, pp. 752, ll. 21. £3. 13s. 6d.

48. MASNAVI E RUMI.—"The Masnavi of Maulavi Jalalu-l-Din Rumi." A very learned and highly-esteemed poetical work on Religion, Morality, History, Politics, and the Sufi Doctrines. The author is called RUMI because he spent the greater part of his life in Rum, or Asiatic Turkey, where he died in A.D. 1262. His devout countrymen consider this work as the effect of Divine inspiration second only to the Kur'an. This copy is in the highest state of preservation, written in a very clear and distinct Ta'lik character on very fine glazed paper. Transcribed A.D. 1675. Folio, original Oriental binding, pp. 798, ll. 19. £8. 8s.

53. MAJLISU-L-SHU'ARA.—"Choice Extracts from the Persian Poets." Very clearly and distinctly written in the Ta'lik character on very good paper, margins neatly ruled. The work is in the finest state of preservation. Thick royal 8vo. pp. 1510, ll. 17. £2. 12s. 6d.

54. RAUZATU-L-SAFA.—This MS. contains the third and fourth volume of MIR KHUWAND's "General History" (v. No. 86). The third volume contains the history of the Twelve Imams, and of the Caliphs of the race of Ummayy and of Abbas down to the time of Mustasim Billah's death in A.D. 1258. The fourth volume is of a very miscellaneous character, and contains the history of the minor Asiatic dynasties down to the time of Timur, vulgarly called Tamerlane. The work is in a fair state of preservation, but the outside margin is slightly soiled with damp, the text however is quite legible throughout. It is written in a very fine Ta'lik character, with neatly ruled margin. Large 8vo. pp. 846, ll. 19. £2. 12s. 6d.

57. MASNAVI E RUMI.—This is a very fine copy of the work already described under No. 48. It is written in a beautiful Ta'lik character on very fine paper, with richly ruled margin. It is preceded by a life of the author, in ten pages, twenty-five lines to the page, which I have never met with in any other copy of the work. The outer margin throughout abounds with notes, critical and explanatory. The preface and each of the six books are headed with rich 'Anwans. Small folio, pp. 761, ll. 19. £8. 8s.

CHOLERA.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

CHOLERAIC DIARRHŒA.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Extract from Medical Times, Jan. 12, 1866.—"Is prescribed by scores of orthodox Medical Practitioners. Of course it would not be thus singularly popular did it not supply a want and fill a place."

DYSENTERY.

DR. LOWE, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered the patient recovered. "Beyond all question the most valuable medicine or specific in Cholera is Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne, which has been productive of results little short of the miraculous."—See Sporting Gazette, Aug. 11, 1866.

CAUTIONS TO BE OBSERVED.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne.—See the Times, Jan. 13, 1864.

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the PEOPLE of INDIA

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,

Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"If the manufacturer studies this book carefully he may add thousands a year to his profits, and there are not five books in the world of which that could be said. . . . Altogether this book is thoroughly creditable to Dr. Forbes Watson's industry and acumen, and to the liberality of the India-office."—Spectator, Jan. 5, 1867.

"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Dr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art, luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India not only deserves the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

THE HISTORY

OF THE

BRITISH EMPIRE IN INDIA.

FROM THE

APPOINTMENT OF LORD HARDINGE

TO THE

COMPANY.

BY

LIONEL JAMES TROTTER,

Late of the 2nd Bengal Fusiliers.

The first volume of this History embraces the period from Lord Hardinge's appointment in 1844 to the retirement of the Marquis of Dalhousie in 1856.

The second volume commences with the arrival of Lord Canning in India in 1856, and closes with his lordship's death in 1862. This being the most eventful period in the annals of the East India Company, including the Mutiny, great pains have been taken in its narration.

"Captain Trotter has done good service, in providing the public with the sequel to a standard work. . . . And in every way his performance is worthy to take rank with that of his predecessor. . . . The thoroughly satisfactory manner in which the task has been performed is greatly to the author's credit. . . . We take our leave of the work, congratulating its author upon having produced an addition to the 'History of India' at once permanent in purpose and popular in execution; acceptable in every way to the wants of the public, and especially adapted for the enlightenment of young members of the local service, to whom the modern annals of the country which they help to administer are of far more importance than the history of remote periods having little or no relation to the present day."—Standard.

"Both the plan and execution of the work are deserving of high praise. Full of interest and animation, and narrated with clearness and brevity all that took place during the period of which it treats. . . . The second volume of Mr. Trotter's history possesses the same merits by which the first was distinguished. It is written with great animation, and often with considerable graphic power. It tells its story with perspicuity and without needless or tiresome digressions. It avoids as far as possible that controversial vein into which Indian politicians and historians are alike prone to fall, and it is as impartial as any work is likely to be which deals with times so near our own. . . . The narrative of the spirit-stirring events of the mutiny will of course have the greatest attraction for most readers, and it is in truth the best, as it is the principal part of the present volume. . . . It appears to us that Mr. Trotter has been eminently successful in his treatment of a very exciting and interesting period of recent history."—London Review.

"The volume is full of interesting matter comprising every event of importance during the exciting period of the rebellion, told in a concise, straightforward, and impartial manner, unincumbered by those copious extracts from documentary evidence which often serve no other purpose than increasing the bulk without adding to the usefulness of a work of this description."—Observer.

"Captain Trotter's reflections are few. . . . He has his own views, though he does not force them upon us in detail. . . . All this proves him to be far above the narrowness of the average Anglo-Indian. He speaks out boldly, too, in defence of Lord Gough. . . . A word as to our author's descriptive powers; they are such as his lighter writings would lead us to expect. . . . Whatever he has to tell Captain Trotter tells it in an animated and picturesque style. The night on the field at Ferozeshah . . . is admirably painted; so is the grand success of Goojrat. The diarming of the veterans of the Khalsa . . . is a striking scene. Captain Trotter's book opens up many other interesting questions; it is full of notices of social changes; it points out the specially unfortunate way in which the annexation of Oudh was managed."—Fortnightly Review, May 15.

"Here we have before us the first volume of an eminently readable history. . . . The arrangement of the matter, the style, and, above all, the spirit which pervades his pages, are worthy of great commendation. Mr. Trotter is singularly free from the faults of a partisan writer. . . . The volume concludes with a masterly criticism on Lord Dalhousie's character and services."—Calcutta Englishman, March 17.

"We cannot say that he has dealt unjustly by Lord Canning's memory. . . . A well-considered volume, in which the heartiest acknowledgments are paid to Lord Canning for his temperate wisdom at a time when there was no man more abused than he. . . . He writes thoughtfully, yet with a soldier's sense of the stir of a brisk military narrative. His history of this great struggle is full and impartial. . . . We need not follow him through his vigorous rehearsal of the well-known incidents. It forms a very lucid history, the several parts being well planned and well grouped, and no important point being omitted or misrepresented."—Examiner, September 15.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

The Calcutta Mail brings us our usual papers, from Calcutta and Madras to the 28th of February, and Bombay to the 6th of March.

Lord Napier had arrived at Calcutta, and was staying with Sir John Lawrence at Government House.

The news of the ministerial crisis had been received at the Presidency, where the resignation of Lord Cranborne was regarded with general regret.

Expectation was busy with Mr. Massey's Budget, which was expected to show a respectable deficit—two millions being the figure assigned. The Friend of India says:—"Since the financial year will close for the first time, as in England, on March 31, the Budget will on this occasion include only eleven months. The rather serious deficit Mr. Massey is likely to meet by a trades tax, as elsewhere described, increased stamp duties under Mr. Hobhouse's Bill, and an adjustment of the tariff. Information as to loans for irrigation works will doubtless form a principal feature in the statement, which will be delivered as before, and not read after the Trevelyan fashion."

The day fixed for the convocation of the University of Calcutta was the 9th March, when the Vice-Chancellor was to deliver the usual address. As his second term of office will expire this year this will be Mr. Maine's last University address.

The latest news from Cabul contained in the Delhi Gazette was to the effect that Sirdars Jellalooddeen Khan and Mohamed Uslum Khan, having fled from Jellalabad, arrived at Loharkee, in the Khybur district, on the 17th February. They sent their vakeel to the Commissioner of Peshawur announcing their arrival, and the next day, at the invitation of the Commissioner, they went into the city themselves, and took up their quarters at Gorokupporee. Thirty sowars and a number of servants accompanied them to Peshawur; the rest of their followers, amounting to nearly two hundred, encamped at Hurree Singh's fort. The Commissioner sent them thirty rupees, and promised to send them the same amount daily for their support; but they declined the offer, with many expressions of gratitude, saying they had plenty of money for all their wants. The Delhi Gazette adds: "From the non-arrival of our usual Cabul letter we conclude there is some truth in the reports that are abroad of disturbances in that city. We do not know whether our correspondent who resides there has insured his life or no. We should recommend him to do so for the sake of his family, though we should not like to have to pay the premium."

Intelligence from Bokhara states that that place has not fallen, and that the Ameer has not made terms with Russia. The Russian forces, it is added, had not advanced beyond Jeezhuck. This, it will be seen, is confirmed by a Russian statement in the Invalide Russe, which we publish elsewhere.

The Envoy from Bokhara had left Calcutta; he would receive the Viceroy's answer from the Lieutenant-governor of the Punjab.

The Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces had received a telegram from the Chief Engineer to the Railway stating that the line from Mirzapore to Jubbulpore would be opened in April next. There will then be through railway communication from Bombay to Calcutta, with the exception of 180 miles from Nagpore to Jubbulpore.

The news from Madras is of minor importance. The Commander-in-Chief and Colonel Denison do not seem to be increasing in popularity.

Sir Bartle Frere had left Bombay, and is one of the passengers by the present mail. Sir Seymour Fitzgerald was of course to assume the governorship at once. The subscriptions to the Frere Memorial Fund exceed £1,100. The members of the Civil Service had presented to Sir Bartle a testimonial of their own, in the form of a service of plate.

The Indo-European line is stated to be working better than for many months past.

At the instance of Lord Lyons, the Turkish Government has removed the embargo on the exportation of Arabian horses.

It is stated that Mr. Home Secretary Bayley succeeds Sir George Yule as Political resident of Hyderabad.

The great distrust prevailing in the Money Market was felt in all commercial transactions, and business generally was dull.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay Mail, which is due in London on the 6th of April.

The Invalide Russe of March 22 officially denies the intelligence by the overland mail from Bombay relative to Russian affairs in Bokhara, and adds:—"All previous statements received from Bombay on the same subject are false. Since the capture of the defiles of Dzusak, Russia has had no dealings, even of a diplomatic nature, with the Emir of Bokhara."

DOVETON COLLEGE.—In the Arts Examinations of the University for 1866-7, just terminated, the Doveton College, we understand, has fully maintained its long established reputation, its students having done well in all these examinations. G. A. Twidale, B.A., has gained the higher degree of M.A., while P. N. Bannerjee has obtained the B.A. degree. Two have passed the First Arts Examination, or the "little-go," one of whom, J. Blochmann, stood third on the list, and has gained a first grade senior scholarship, as well as one of the Duff scholarships recently instituted. Ten have passed the Entrance Examination, one of whom, C. Harvey, stood within two marks of the first place. From the list of those who have gained scholarships, published by the Director of Public Instruction, we perceive that J. Blochmann is the only candidate from the Christian Colleges who has obtained a first grade senior scholarship. These facts show that the alumni of the Doveton have fully sustained the credit of their Alma mater.—Indian Daily News.

THE PUNJAB CHIEF COURT has dismissed the cases in which Rajas Salig Rash and Devi Singh claimed on four mortgage bonds executed by the late king of Delhi Rs. 68,853, and Moti Begum, represented by Mr. G. Wagentrieber, of Delhi, the value of houses taken up by Government after the fall of Delhi, on the ground that they brought into question the acts of the Government in its executive capacity, for which the Government was not amenable to any court. Indian Opinion thinks that both cases will be appealed to the Privy Council. The Dyce Sombre case has been decided in favour of Government, but the Lahore papers do not publish the judgment, which must be very important.

Casualties by Death in the Armies of India reported since last Publication.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

WEDNESDAY, March 27, 1867.

WHO IS A SAHIB?

THE natives of India are beginning to make a discovery which it is wonderful they did not make a long time ago—that every European in that country is not a gentleman, and that to call him indiscriminately a "Sahib" is a mere farce.

Time was, in the old days of the monopoly, when an Englishman lacking at least most of the outward conditions of gentility was a thing almost unknown, and a white face gave a social rank which never failed of recognition. But that time is no more, and for many years past it has been getting plainer and plainer that the lower ranks of Britons in India are, in Native idea, little better than barbarians, compared with their own countrymen of the same grade. The private soldier never, of course, claimed a place among the educated and polished members of society, but the native could understand a difference in his case. Soldiers and sailors, exceptions everywhere to ordinary rule, were looked upon in India as belonging to a caste of their own, and their eccentricities were regarded accordingly. Even when they went wild in the bazaars, and, having been discharged from the service, sunk into the condition of "loafers"—a horrible condition indeed for Europeans in India—their proceedings, though causing disgust, did not excite surprise. Our fighting caste were understood to be privileged—what could be more natural than their development in such a manner? But when civilians began to manifest the same eccentricities, the eyes of the natives were opened indeed. So long as the offenders were few in number their vagaries did not greatly influence public opinion. But under the new régime—since the days of railways and electric telegraphs, and the "development of the resources of the country"—they have so multiplied as to give a new character to their countrymen. In India, as in England, in these days, the educated gentleman is in a very small minority, and the "European community" is mainly composed of persons of particularly light weight in the social scale. This, however, would not be of much importance. The awkward part of the matter is, that a very large proportion of these will not work, and will drink, and are given up to a life of the most abject kind of "loafing."

The evil is becoming so great as to call for special legislation, and it appears probable that, under a new kind of poor law, we shall see a return, to a certain extent, to the old system of deportation. But, in the meantime, the impression made upon the natives by the refuse of the ruling class, now so freely inflicted upon them, resolves into the question—What are their claims to superiority, and what especially is their right to be called Sahibs?

The term "Sahib," indeed, has been as much abused in India as the term "Esquire" in England. And in India, by the way, the latter distinction is just as zealously claimed by Europeans and Eurasians of all grades, who allow to one another this inexpensive honour in a manner which, we must do our countrymen the justice to say, would be ridiculed at home among the same classes. The latter affair, however, does not concern the natives; it is at the indiscriminate application of the "Sahib" that they begin to chafe, and this one of their organs in the press has just been discussing in a very reasonable manner. Why, asks the writer, are the common people among the English to be called by this term of respect? Even were the general manner in which it is employed correct, there would, he contends, still be great objection to its employment among the loafers aforesaid—among the scum of the English population. To the natives, indeed, the distinction seems about as appropriate as would be the recognition by "kind father Daddy" of every inmate of the casual ward as an Esquire; and it must be admitted that "Now, Squire Noakes, here is your skilly," or "Come, Squire Stiles, and take your toke," would sound just a little incongruous. But even our usual mode of employing the distinction, apart from the persons distinguished, is not, it seems, in accordance with native usage. It is right to use the title as an addition to another title, whether one denoting personal or official rank, but not as an addition to a mere name. Thus, it is proper to say the Rajah Sahib, the Khan Sahib, the Lord Sahib, the General Sahib, or the Collector Sahib, but it is not proper to say Jones Sahib, Tomkins Sahib, and so forth. Ultimately we shall all, probably, have to fall back upon the hideously ugly prefix of "Mr." in India as in England—that is to say, all of us who have no more satisfactory "handle" to our names. In Bombay the natives themselves are already assuming the designation—the Parsees more especially. Meantime the protest against the use and abuse of the word "Sahib," beginning as it has in Bengal, is a sign of the times of some import.

BENGAL.

RECOGNITION OF AFZUL KHAN.

The Viceroy has addressed the following letter to Ameer Mahomed Afzul Khan, in which his Highness is formally recognised as Walee of Cabul and Candahar, while he is informed that Shere Ali Khan is still considered Walee of Herat, which he holds. The letter is singularly frank and plain for a diplomatic communication, and does not hesitate to acknowledge, what is only too probable, that hostilities may be again renewed:—

MY HONOURED AND VALUED FRIEND,—I have received your Highness' friendly letter, informing me that your Highness' troops, under the command of Sirdar Mahomed Azim Khan and Sirdar Abdool Rahman Khan, have completely defeated Ameer Shere Ali Khan and have followed up this victory by capturing and occupying the city of Candahar. Your Highness must pardon my saying that I feel pity for Ameer Shere Ali Khan personally. He succeeded your Highness' renowned father as the ally of the British Government, and he adhered to the alliance, giving me no cause of offence at any time. Nevertheless, the general welfare of the great Barukzye house and of the Afghan people has higher claims upon my consideration. With great sorrow and solicitude I have, for three years past, seen that house and people a prey to the most calamitous dissensions. I am disposed, therefore, to hail hopefully any event which may tend to bring Afghanistan nearer to the attainment of a stable peace and strong government, under one of the sons of Ameer Dost Mahomed Khan.

And in this spirit I beg to tender to your Highness my congratulations on the recent victory secured for your Highness' arms by my friend Sirdar Mahomed Azim Khan and your Highness' gallant son, Sirdar Abdool Rahman Khan. My friend! The British Government has hitherto maintained a strict neutrality between the contending parties in Afghanistan. Rumours, I am told, have reached the Cabul Durbar of assistance having been granted by me to Ameer Shere Ali Khan. I take this opportunity to request your Highness not to believe such idle tales. Neither men, nor arms, nor money nor assistance of any kind have ever been supplied by my Government to Ameer Shere Ali Khan. Your Highness and he, both equally unaided by me, have fought out the battle, each upon your own resources. I purpose to continue the same policy for the future. If unhappily the struggle for supremacy in Afghanistan has not yet been brought to a close, and hostilities are again renewed, I shall still side with neither party. My friend! As I told your Highness in my former letter, the relations of the British Government are with the actual rulers of Afghanistan. Therefore, so long as Ameer Shere Ali Khan holds Herat, and maintains friendship with the British Government, I shall recognise him as ruler of Herat, and shall reciprocate his amity.

But upon the same principle I am prepared to recognise your Highness as Ameer of Cabul and Candahar, and I frankly offer your Highness, in that capacity, peace and the good will of the British Government. I shall expect your Highness in return to recognise as binding on your Highness' Government of Cabul and Candahar the engagements concluded between the British Government and your Highness' father, the late Ameer Dost Mahomed Khan, as contained in the treaty of 30th March, 1855, and that part of the treaty of 20th January, 1857, which is still in force. My friend, it will give me much pleasure if your Highness consent to this proposal and accept the alliance of the British Government. Confidently anticipating that your Highness will appreciate the advantage of such a course, I desire to bring to your Highness' notice the provision made in Article 7 of the Treaty of 1857, to the effect that at "the pleasure of the British Government, a vakeel, not a European officer, shall remain at Cabul on the part of the British Government." Your Highness is aware that since my last agent was recalled to India three years ago, my communications with the Cabul Government have been carried in through a moonshee whom the agent left behind for the purpose. This arrangement was never intended to be otherwise than temporary, and it has been found inconvenient in practice. Accordingly, if your Highness has no objection, I shall at once depute a Mahomedan gentleman of rank and character to be my representative at your Highness' Court. I beg to express the high consideration I entertain for your Highness, and to subscribe myself, your Highness' Sincere Friend.

Fort William, Feb. 25, 1867.

THE COAL RESOURCES OF INDIA.

Dr. Oldham, the superintendent of the Geological Survey, has compiled a very clear and exhaustive paper on the "Coal Resources and Production of India," for the Royal Commission now investigating the whole subject of the coal deposits of England and her dependencies. The conclusions to which he comes are so far from satisfactory, either as to the quantity or quality of the coal, that the development of a system of forest conservancy becomes more than ever a matter of serious importance.

A glance at the map by which his remarks are illustrated shows that the few coal deposits of India are confined to a belt stretching from Debroogurh, near the far Assam frontier, in a direct line south-west to Bombay. This belt covers almost five degrees of latitude, omitting Tenasserim, and as British India stretches over 28 degrees, the local disposition of the coal becomes painfully evident. Still, for railway purposes, it is fortunate that the most workable coal is near the lines between Calcutta and Bombay, and that the Central India coal will be still farther opened up by the direct railway, which must yet run, as the crow flies, from Calcutta through Midnapore and Sumbulpore to Nagpore, saving four hundred miles on the way to Bombay. Thus far the Geological Survey has done the coal deposits justice, but there are still many fields which cannot be properly investigated till their districts have been mapped. Moreover, almost all the coal hitherto produced has been from surface workings or open quarries. The deepest pits have not penetrated farther than seventy-five yards. This is in favour of economy of working and cheapness in sale, but it must soon cease as such workings become exhausted, while the exposure of the coal injures its quality. Hitherto it has been difficult to induce labourers to work underground, but the number who are now willing to do so is increasing. We learn with astonishment that coal has hitherto been so carelessly mined in India that plans of underground workings are rarely kept. To depend on the vague information of "old men" as to former workings, is to expose private property and human life to dangerous risks, such as lately burned up the large mine of the Bengal Coal Company.

Dr. Oldham describes in detail twenty-seven places in India and Burmah, being all the coal-fields actually known. Not one in India occurs lower than the 20th or higher than the 25th parallel of latitude. Going westward from Calcutta we have first the Rajmahal Hills extending from Sooree, the county town of Beerbhoom, north to the Ganges. The East Indian Railway contractors used their inferior coals in large quantities when constructing the line, but the want of roads, on which Dr. Oldham is justly severe, has prevented all further attempts "notwithstanding the very large amount of money spent in these districts for several years, and the vast employment given to the people." The famous Raneeunge field covers 500 square miles, over 400 of which the coal is workable. The thickness of all the seams is thirty yards on an average, and, striking off half as not workable, and a fourth for waste and loss, the field is estimated to contain 14,000 millions of tons of coals. Two lines of railway drain this field, but such a canal to the Hooghly at Bally as the late Colonel Shortt, R.E., planned would be a great boon to the field while preventing these floods from the Damooda, which have caused "almost countless expenditure and loss." Next comes the Kurhurali field, at a point twenty-five miles distant from which the new chord line of railway will touch. It is only ten square miles in extent, but the coal is of better quality than elsewhere. It is estimated to contain 168 millions of tons of useful coal, equal to 199 millions of tons of Raneeunge coal. The Jherria coal-field to the west of Raneeunge is less rich but more extensive, consisting of 200 square miles, calculated to yield 465 millions of tons. A mile west of that is the Bokaroh field, on an affluent of the Damooda, 180 square miles in extent, with 1,500 millions of tons, but shut in from communications. Also shut in is the Ramghur field in the Damooda valley, covering 30 square miles, capable of yielding two millions of tons. Next in area to the Raneeunge field is the Hoharo or Karunpoora, of 570 square miles, not yet sufficiently investigated, but with poor coal. Passing over Eetcoora, north-west of Hazareebaugh, with its poor coal, there is Palamow, once worked by the Bengal Coal Company, and about to become of high value by the carrying out of the Soane canals. The tenth locality is Singrowlee, where the Kotah Colliery has been worked, and the deposits of which are believed to extend into remote and pathless Rewah. Thin seams line the Upper Soane and Mahanuddy as far as Sohagpore and Ummerkuntuk. Connected with this is the coal on the Hutsoo, a tributary of the Mahanuddy, but all these fields have yet to be surveyed. The Talcheer coal near Cuttack covers ten square miles, but is fit only for local purposes. In the Nerbudda Valley a company has been working good coal at a spot ten miles from the railway, and elsewhere, but the coal is not better than that of Raneeunge. The Chanda field promises well. The coal at Kottah on the Godavery and in the Valley of the Kistna is useless. The thin seams in Cutch are unworkable. The Lynyan coal of Sindh is worthless, and so is that of the Salt Range on the Punjab frontier and at Murree. There is the same useless lignite in the Teesta Valley at Darjeeling, while the limits of the coal-bearing rocks at the foot of the hills have not been traced, and no coal has been found there. Dr. Oldham declares the Assam coal at Dibroogurh to be "very large and most valuable," the ash being from 2 to 5 per cent., and that of the Cossya hills to be "of excellent quality," so that both river steamers and the Eastern Bengal Railway look to it for supplies. The available coal of these hills is at least three millions of tons, probably double. The Garrow hills, Cachar, and Chittagong are not known to have true beds of coal. That of the Island of Cheduba and Sandoway is lignite. In British Burmah there is no workable coal, the beds near Thyetmyo and Mergui being small and of bad quality. In Burmah proper there are some irregular beds of lignite, fit only for local use. This exhausts Dr. Oldham's list.

Still more unpromising do the coal resources of India appear to be when we look at their quality. The result of a careful analysis of no less than eighty-one specimens from most of the fields mentioned, is this: the average composition of Indian coals is 52·2 per cent. of fixed carbon, 31·9 of volatile matter and 15·5 of ash, while the results of a similar analysis of five varieties of English coal of good quality is—fixed carbon, 68·10; volatile matter 20·20, and ash 2·70. Dr. Oldham's conclusion that Indian coals are not capable of more than two-thirds, in most cases not more than one-half, the duty of English coals, is borne out by the experience of the agents of the British India Steam Navigation Company. Messrs. Mackinnon, Mackenzie, and Co. use but little Indian coal, because it gives only half as much heat as English, forms a slag which prevents ventilation, and requires more firemen and more stowage. But there seems to be no greater danger from the self-combustion of Indian than of English coal. The importance of Indian coal will long be local, for the three railways alone, which have termini at Calcutta, now consume upwards of 200,000 tons in the year, or more than the total quantity raised in all India ten years since. But when Assam is developed, and its fine coal comes into play, it is possible that the sea-going steamers of Calcutta may be independent of a supply from England. And when that happens steamer fares and freights will be considerably reduced. But of the development of Assam there is little prospect for the next half century. —Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE FAMINE.—The Collector of Cuttack on 31st January last reported to Government, after personal investigation, that over the whole distance of forty-two miles from Cuttack to Taldundah there is not a vestige of a crop, or even an attempt at cultivation, and in very many parts the traces of the flood are still apparent. The crop has been most meagre, and is quite insufficient to support the people. All complained that there was little or no rice to be had, and that the postponement of the Government kist had effectually prevented any supply finding its way into the market. Another instance this of the failure of political economy. Rice is selling in Cuttack accordingly at 9 seers a rupee. The impression is universal that, as the year advances, the distress and scarcity will increase. We must be prepared to distribute relief very widely. The number of applicants for food at the relief centre of Taldundah was daily increasing. In all there were 921 people, of whom only 100 were men, the remainder being women and children. No less than 216 of these were suffering from small pox. There were 649 at the Jaipore and 550 at the Manpore centres, and five-sixths of these were women and children. The horrible pictures of disease and famine which were then so prevalent are now much more scarce, because the people have died off. The present inmates are reduced to such a low and unhealthy state of body that it requires no medical eye to foretell for the majority an early death. For most there is little chance of recovery, and those who may recover are so thoroughly demoralised that they will become confirmed vagrants.

UMRITSUR, FEB. 20.—Mr. Egerton has gone to Lahore, as a temporary arrangement, to occupy the seat on the bench of the Chief Court, vacant for the time by Mr. Roberts taking the place of Colonel Lake. This arrange ment has not been carried out exactly in the way described. It is believed that Mr. Roberts will ultimately vacate his place on the bench, should the Secretary of State agree to his leaving the Chief Court for another appointment, but Lord Cranborne's sanction to the arrangement is required, as there is a positive injunction that once a judge is appointed to a high or chief court he must remain there. In case of the objection being removed Mr. A. Roberts will become Financial Commissioner of the Punjab, first in the room of Col. Lake and ultimately 'pukka' should the latter officer not return, of which it is said there is but little probability. In the meantime Mr. Philip Egerton is officiating in the place of Colonel Lake, during the period of that gentleman's preliminary leave recently obtained. It was stated that the differences between the Rajah of Kupoorthulla and the members of his family had been compromised. I fear the wish was father to the thought. The Lieutenant-governor, who went for two days to Kupoorthulla on his way to Lahore, took especial pains to restore the relations that had previously subsisted between the Rajah and his brothers, and proposed a personal interview, but even the great influence his Honour ought to have in matters of this kind was ineffectual, and no reconciliation was effected. The Rajah is, I am told, stirring heaven and earth to put himself straight with the authorities, but it will be a very difficult task unless he mends his ways. Some changes are taking place in the personnel of our society. Captain Stubbs, of the R.A., leaves us to assume charge of Major Raper's battery at Meerut, the latter going home immediately for awhile. Captain East, R.E., now at Kurnal, doing canal duty, is to take the place of Captain Newmarch, Assistant-secretary in the Public Works Department, at Lahore; Captain R. Palmer, Staff Corps, now here as an assistant to Major Fulton, goes to Kurnal, and Lieutenant Trevor, R.E., recently returned from home, comes here in Captain Palmer's place. Our chaplain, too, is said to be about to leave us, though very reluctantly, and has been appointed to Sealkote, Umritsur being left without a chaplain altogether. —Delhi Gazette.

THE MEMORIAL CHURCH AT CAWNPORE.—Mr. Walter Granville, consulting architect to the Government of India, who made the prize design and estimate for the Memorial Church at Cawnpore, has just left, by order, for that station, to inquire into the extraordinary delay in building that edifice. The foundation there was laid with ceremony in July, 1862. The walls are only now peeping above the ground, so that the work has risen at the rate of nine inches per annum under the fostering care of the D.P.W.; at this rate we may safely predict that the church will not be ready for consecration before the centenary anniversary of the mutiny. It is now nearly ten years since the events occurred which the church is designed to commemorate, and the walls have now reached the great height of three feet above the level of the bottom of the foundations! It does not require any vast amount of calculation to arrive at the conclusion that, at this rate, the church will be barely completed in one hundred years. We hope, however, for better things, and we trust Mr. Granville will be able to instil some of his own energy into the builders and executive officers. The church is a much smaller building than the Agra Bank, and we all remember how rapidly that structure rose under Mr. Granville's superintendence, but he was in that case untrammelled by the red tape of the D.P.W. —Englishman, Feb. 14.

IS THE TAJ A TOMB OR A MUSJID?—The Under Secretary to the Government of India having forwarded a letter to the Government of the North-West Provinces, inquiring whether the building in which Scindia gave his late fête to the Viceroy was either a musjid or a tomb, a reference was made to the Hon.

R. A. J. Drummond on the subject. Mr. Drummond, in reply, stated that Moulvee Amjud Ali, Vakeel, High Court, and Member of Mahomedan Committee, Hukeem Nusseerooddeen, a leading member of Agra Mahomedan society, and Ameer Ali Shah, ditto ditto, had been asked to meet him, and questioned on the subject. They had all assured him that the building in which the entertainment was given by Scindia was neither a musjid nor a tomb. After the introduction of British rule, this building was occupied for some years by the officer in charge of the Fort. An entertainment was given to Lord Ellenborough, after the Caubul War, in it. The Rajah of Bhurtpore gave an entertainment to Mr. Thomason, Lieutenant-Governor, North-Western Provinces, in the same building, and it has always been used for similar purposes for many years, without giving, as the native gentlemen spoken to on the subject assert, the slightest ground of offence to the religious prejudices of the Mahomedan community. Mr. Drummond can only account, therefore, for the reports noticed by the native press having been spread by persons who were discontented at the honour conferred on the ruler of the Gwalior State by the acceptance of his fête, and not to any feeling prevalent in Mahomedan minds.

ACCIDENT TO LIEUT. GREY.—We learn with regret that whilst the brigade at Nusseerabad were out for exercise a few miles distant from that station a very sad accident occurred to a popular young officer, Lieut. Grey, of the Royal Artillery. It appears that this officer was in command of a watering party, when one of the artillery horses broke loose. Lieut. Grey rode up and attempted to secure the animal by its bridle, when the horse seized him by the left wrist, dragged him from his horse, and worried him for some time, lifting him off the ground repeatedly, and endeavouring to crush him. The injuries inflicted were, however, happily not so severe as might have been anticipated, but the bones of the left wrist were broken, and the hand much lacerated, being bitten completely through. This sad accident took place in the presence of the whole brigade. —Pioneer, Feb. 15.

DEPRECIATION OF SHARES IN THE CALCUTTA MARKET.—How are the mighty fallen!—There could not well be a better illustration of the collapse of enterprise in "developing the resources of the country" than that afforded by the following facts:—Yesterday Messrs. Mackenzie, Lyall and Co. sold by public auction a number of shares and other property for the prices noted below:—

125 shares of the Seesaugor Tea Company (paid up) at 8 annas per share.

125 shares of the Dooteriah Estate and Tea Company (paid up) at Rs. 4 each.

375 shares in the Lindowan Tea Company, Cachar, at Rs. 1-8 each.

Also a grant in the Soonderbunds, No. 237, called Chuck Borro Bogue, containing 28,247 biggahs, for Rs. 300.

Also, 139 shares in the Tukvar Company (Lim.), with all due calls (Rs. 170 per share) paid up, at Rs. 4 per share.

20 paid up shares in the Balasun Tea Company (Limited), of Rs. 100 each, at Rs. 6 per share.

Only fancy an estate of 9,000 acres, almost a little municipality for a German Prince, for three hundred rupees, or about tenpence per acre! Who would not belong to the "landed aristocracy?" —Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, Feb. 14.

"SHOP" GOSSIP.—A letter from Calcutta in the Delhi Gazette says:—"I notice the promotion to captain (it does not say brevet) of Lieut. Patrick Roddy, v.c., of the Unattached List. The 104th Foot are having luck. Two captains, Smith and Lewen, being probationers for the Staff Corps, are struck out, and Lieuts. Evans and Taylor get their companies, and Ensigns Hudleston and Roberts their lieutenancies. This arrangement is very unfair, as it gives substantive promotion in one case, whereas in a cadre of a regiment it gives none. Both the lieutenants are young men. The Staff Corps is becoming very popular in the Royal service. In the 4th, 21st, 23rd, 33rd, 35th, 38th, 41st, 42nd, 60th, 82nd, 95th, 102nd, 103rd, 104th, 107th, 108th and 109th there are probationers for it, and each regiment has had steps in consequence."

TESTIMONIAL TO MOULVIE SYUD AHMED BAHADOOR KHAN OF ALLYPURH.—It is with extreme pleasure we announce that the Gold Medal, with a copy of Macaulay's works, awarded to the Secretary of our Institute by the enlightened and liberal Government of India in the recent Agra Durbar of the Viceroy, have now been received by him through the Government of the North-Western Provinces. The medal, which is of cast gold, is very handsomely made, and shows on one side a very stately likeness of our Gracious Queen, in relief with the words, "Victoria Regina," and has the following inscription on the other—"Presented by the Viceroy of India, in Public Durbar, to Syud Ahmed, a loyal and valuable servant of the Queen, in recognition of his continuous and successful efforts to spread the light of literature and science amongst his countrymen. Agra, Nov. 20, 1866." The copy of Macaulay's works consists of eight volumes; the first four of which treat of the "History of England," the next three comprise his political and miscellaneous "Essays," and the eighth and last contains his speeches, lays, and poems. To the first volume of this excellent work is attached the following inscription, written by the viceroy himself: "To Moulvie Syud Ahmed Bahadoor, Principal Sudder Ameen of Aligurh, in recognition of his conspicuous services in the diffusion of knowledge and general enlightenment among his countrymen. Agra, Nov. 20, 1866.—(Signed) JOHN LAWRENCE."—Aligurh Institute Gazette.

THE PARIS EXHIBITION.—The Calcutta committee for collecting articles for the Paris Exhibition seems to have been more successful than on former occasions. The chiefs of Rajpootana and Central India have contributed articles freely, while, besides several private persons, the principal cotton weavers of Dacca, the silk manufacturers of Benares, the Berhampore ivory carvers, and the Kishnagurh clay modellers, have sent an assortment of their works for sale on their own account. The Viceroy permitted the Committee to choose from the Toshakana such bracelets, necklaces, and arms as had not been received from private contributors, and the result is that the collection of jewellery and arms has been rendered complete, and is such as has not been exhibited on any former occasion. The collection of raw products comprises samples of nearly all the animal, vegetable, and mineral substances of acknowledged importance peculiar to Central India and the Rajpoot States. To these has been added a separate series, representing the principal articles of export from Bengal. There are also nearly 800 specimens of indigenous drugs and oils, each labelled with its local vernacular, as well as its scientific name. There is also a collection of the coins, ancient and modern, and of the weights and measures peculiar to Central India and the Rajpoot States, which has been got up with great care. The collection of periodical literature made by the Rev. Mr. Long is large but imperfect. The collection in general is believed to be the most complete ever sent to Europe, surpassing those transmitted to London in 1851 and 1862, and to Paris in 1855. Whilst the number of specimens forwarded to the London Exhibition in 1851 was 3,350, that sent on the present occasion exceeds nearly 5,200. This does not include some contributions which are still expected. The committee seems to have done their duty well, and they express their gratitude to all who have assisted them.

"PUNCH IN INDIA" for February is hardly so good as usual. Biglow Asiaticus contributes a Lecture of Miss Mary Carpenter, which begins thus:—

"The object I intend
By woman's education,
Is to teach her to ascend
In her own estimation."
"Says Mr. S. Karr,
The best thing by far,
Is to teach her to take after me," says he.

"Wherefore I have invited
Officials great and small,
And to preside incited
His Honour of Bengal."—
Says Mr. Beadon
"Alas! Mr. Eden
Has gone off to sea with my brains," says he.

"For sins as thick as mice
Run rampant o'er the land,
Nought but ignorance and vice
And sloth do they understand."
Says Mr. Maine,
"The remedy's plain,
They want half a dozen new laws," says he.

"Clothes stolen are and sold,
By every Hindoo menial,
And lying too I'm told,
Is thought most highly venial."
Says Mr. Judge Phear,
"I have proved it quite clear,
That lying is a kind of mis-stating," says he.

"Therefore I am determined,
To stop this sort of thing,
For I possess a firm mind,
And small I will not sing."—
Says Mr. Hog,
"Remember no dog
Wags his tail in this town without leave from me.

"Well! whoever wants a motion
To make, or to object
He'd better state his notion
While my speech I recollect."
Says Mr. Grey,
"I have no more to say
Than I generally have, and that's nothing," says he.

A HUNT FOR A LEGACY.—The freemasons of India are hunting in vain after a legacy of £3,000 said to have been left fifty-six years ago by a sea-faring mason of Bombay for charitable purposes. The sum must now amount to £12,000, which would maintain twenty widows and support and educate twenty orphans of masons annually. It is supposed to have been absorbed by Government. If the masons are so careless about their legacies they deserve to lose them.

"WHEN DOCTORS DISAGREE."—There has been a fight among the Calcutta doctors. At the last meeting of the Bengal branch of the British Medical Association, on Feb. 6, Dr. Mohendro Lall Sircar, vice-president, read a paper on the uncertainty of medical science, maintaining that it was quite as certain in its methods and results as mathematics. He did justice to some of the founders of Homoeopathy who have undoubtedly introduced many specifics to the profession, and he excited the wrath of the allopaths. He subsequently declared that he was not a homoeopathist. A scene ensued. Dr. Robson condemned homoeopathy because of the "billionth" theory; he had seen a child swallow a whole box of globules. Dr. Juggobundo Bose knew nothing about it, except that homoeopaths have been known to dupe their patients. Dr. Waller would not allow Dr. Sircar to reply because, being a homoeopath, he ought to be turned out of the room. Dr. Ewart thought he had brought the legitimate profession into disrepute. Dr. Colles would postpone the motion for expelling the heretic, and when a Baboo M.B. modestly hinted that he had observed the efficiency of some homoeopathic medicines he was stopped. At last Dr. Sircar was allowed to reply, when, after declaring he was neither homoeopath nor allopath, he said his "feelings were not in proper order to enable him to reply; they had been violently lacerated by the disgraceful conduct shown towards him that night." Then a scramble ensued for the unfortunate manuscript, when the following dialogue took place. Dr. Ewart: "Can't you give it to me." Dr. Sircar hesitated. Dr. Ewart asked Dr. Sircar if he did not "trust his integrity." Dr. Sircar replied that he had up to that moment of his life never questioned the integrity of any gentleman, but when his own integrity and sincerity had been questioned by the association he had certainly every right to hesitate parting with his paper. He was, however, very glad to hand it over to Dr. Ewart, but not to the association. Dr. Ewart asked Dr. Sircar to give him in writing his views with respect to legitimate medicine. Dr. Sircar before he did so would ask Dr. Ewart to give in writing what he considered the fixed standard of legitimate medicine. Dr. Ewart made no reply.

AFFGHANISTAN.—The following is from Peshawur, dated Feb. 22:—"I have nothing of general but something of particular interest to write about this time. It is only another tale of Afghan treachery, cruelty, and dastardly cowardice, such as made that race 'to stink among the inhabitants of the earth,' and almost render it desirable that they should be improved off the face of it, as the Yankees say. Yesterday Mr. Bean, the Manager of Romani's Circus, was brought into the station by some villagers nearly cut to pieces and shot through the thigh bone. He only escaped with life by shamming death, and was evidently left for dead by those who did their best to murder him. It seems he was inveigled out of the Cantonment with his horse and circus property, with a view to showing his equestrian feats to the neighbouring savages, by an Afghan calling himself Auzim Khan, and professing to be a man of rank in his country. This Auzim Khan was hospitably and courteously received by Major-general Haly, who always treats visitors from the neighbouring hill country with kindness and attention, and who even took this cut-throat to see a full dress review of the troops. Near Michnee, as they drew near to the mountains, the cowardly ruffian, Auzim Khan, got hold of Mr. Bean's pistol on some excuse or other, asked if it was loaded, and being told that it was, fired it off at a crow. He then dismounted, after informing Mr. Bean that he felt it his duty to murder him in consequence of having a vow to that effect which he had not yet fulfilled, and fired a pistol at him. Mr. Bean, who was in the act of getting off his horse, received the ball in his thigh, which passed through, shattering the bone. He was then set upon by Auzim Khan and his followers, and hacked about till he appeared to be dead, when they made off with his horses. The object of this murderous attack upon an inoffensive Italian circus manager seems to have been nothing but plunder, with the pleasant accompaniment of murder, which comes next in the estimation of this race of human tigers who infest the neighbouring country, and who stalk through our territory as proudly as if it were their own, while we dare not go within several miles of theirs. This Auzim Khan is safe no doubt as long as he remains in his mountain lair, but if he ventures out of it and shows his face in Peshawur again Major Pollock will certainly hang him."—Delhi Gazette.

RUMOURED EARLY DEPARTURE OF THE HON. ASHLEY EDEN.—It is rumoured that the Hon. Ashley Eden will proceed to England by the second steamer in March, and that Mr. S. C. Bayley will act for him until Sir Cecil Beadon retires. The report gains strength that Mr. Dampier will succeed to the Secretariat on Mr. Grey's becoming Lieutenant-governor.

COTTON EXPORTED FROM CALCUTTA.—During January, 1867, 81,101 cwt. of cotton, valued at Rs. 24,61,025, were exported from Calcutta.

THE CLAIMS PREFERRED AGAINST THE LATE GOVERNMENT OF OUDE.—The Oude Commission, consisting of Justices Norman, Trevor, and Campbell, have resumed its sitting. The object of this commission, as our readers will doubtless remember, is to examine the claims preferred against the late Government of Oude, the claimants themselves contending that since the annexation of the province the British Government have become liable for these demands. Among the claims preferred is one by General Frith, of the ex-King's army, for arrears of salary and for money alleged to have been lent to the Government. The commission was occupied till the other day with the claims of the bankers, Dwarka Doss and Muhur Doss, who allege that large loans were contracted with their firm. Mr. Paul, as counsel on behalf of the bankers, urged that the official correspondence of the late Government, dating as far back as 1794, showed the claim to be well founded, there being no evidence that the debt has been liquidated. In support of his contention that the British Government must be held liable for the claim, the learned counsel cited Wheatstone on International Law, in which it is laid down that a mere change in the government of a country does not get rid of its old debts. The Advocate-General appeared on behalf of Government.

MORAR, GWALIOR, Feb. 23.—Her Majesty's 103rd Regiment (late 1st Bombay Europeans) marched in here yesterday morning from Mhow; a distance of 316 miles. The health of the regiment, I am glad to hear, is very satisfactory, and a finer body of men I have not seen for a very long time. They relieve the 104th Regiment, whose head quarters left here upwards of a month ago, en route for Dughai. The Left Wing leaves this evening after handing over their quarters to the new arrivals. Our station is at present honoured with a visit from Colonel Meade, C.S.I., Agent Governor-general for Central India, who arrived here from Indore on the evening of the 21st, and is the guest of Colonel Daly, C.B., Political Agent. Colonel Meade visited his Highness the Maharajah Scindiah, G.C.S.I., this morning, under a salute of thirteen guns from his Highness' Artillery, and holds a durbar this evening at Morar, where the Maharajah, accompanied by his staff, will pay him a return visit.—Delhi Gazette.

THE PRICES OF MEAT, &c., IN CALCUTTA.—One would be surprised to hear the prices for meat, &c. Roasting fowls cost as much as Rs. 1-4; rabbits, Rs. 3; guinea fowls, Rs. 3; a turkey, Rs. 10; and a leg of mutton, Rs. 5. The Alipore farm, kept by Mr. Floyd, is the best place to send to, and there you can get a "sucking pig," that would have charmed poor old "Elia," for two pieces of silver valued as rupees—there is a wrinkle.

EARNINGS OF THE E. B. RAILWAY.—The abstract of traffic for the week ending the 19th January, 1867, shows the coaching receipts to have been £1,180-5-2, and the total merchandise receipts £1,075-13-4; the total receipts for the week is thus shown to be £2,255-18-6, or the average receipt per mile open, £19-18-5.—Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, Feb. 21.

THE CACHAR MOUNTED VOLUNTEER CORPS has come to an untimely end. The corps is to be dissolved, as ever since its formation it has lacked a drill instructor, and, of course, without such an indispensable requisite its military existence was impossible.

THE 39TH N.I. from Tezporé has reached the Presidency by rail from Kooshtea, and are encamped on the Maidan near Coolie Bazaar. It is rumoured that the regiment will proceed to Lucknow.

ABOLITION OF SLAVERY.—The Viceroy has approved of a proclamation in which the Rajah of Chunda abolishes slavery in his territories.

THE 28TH N.I., under Colonel Abbot, has arrived at Peshawur, relieving the 13th N.I., who go to Jullundur.

H.M.'s 77TH REGIMENT arrived at Peshawur on Feb. 5.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.—We have frequently spoken of Sir Gaspard Le Marchant's fondness for his hill retreat at Ootacamund. The present Commander-in-Chief has shown throughout such an indifference to public criticism that the public have long since ceased to trouble themselves about him, and look upon his movements from the hills as something rather extraordinary than otherwise. On returning from his tour to Burmah and the Straits Settlements, Sir Gaspard would not stay even to complete the tour of inspection, including Trichinopoly and the Western Coast, that he had marked out for himself, but with the first puff of the "long shore" wind hastened off to Ooty, and left the plains to look after themselves. We are not surprised to hear that the Government have called upon him for an explanation of this conduct, and that Sir Gaspard in reply has expressed his intention of shortly visiting Trichinopoly and the Western Coast, afterwards proceeding to Kemptee via Bombay, and thence to Bellary, Secunderabad and Bangalore. It is simply a disgrace to him as Commander-in-Chief that he has never visited these stations before. It was foolish on the part of the Home Government to send such a man to India at all, but to place him at the head of the Madras army was an injustice to that army. We hear, and sincerely hope that it is true, that the above tour will be the last, as it is the first, that Sir Gaspard Le Marchant will make through this Presidency, as he intends to retire in December next and proceed to England.—Madras Times, Feb. 28.

HAIRSH PROCEEDINGS OF COL. DENISON.—Considerable discussion is at present going on in Madras in reference to the proceedings of Colonel Denison against the poor fishermen of the river Cooum. The colonel appears to think that the fish caught in the river are not fit for human food, and has obtained the evidence of Dr. Duff, one of the district surgeons of Madras, in favour of his opinion. Dr. Duff has stated that in his opinion the Cooum fish often produce choleraic symptoms in people who consume them, and on the strength of this evidence Col. Denison seems anxious to abolish the practice of fishing in the river. On the other hand the poor fishermen loudly complain of the destruction of an industry which has for years afforded them means of livelihood, and their complaints were backed by a large number of the poorer classes who have hitherto looked to the Cooum fish as a part of their daily food. We all know how doctors differ, and they are far from being unanimous on the questions of the Cooum fish. Indeed, Dr. Duff's evidence is very far from being conclusive. If the river were such a "cesspool" as he and Colonel Denison try to make out, fish could not live there; whereas they are caught in its "silvery" waters, as Sir Charles Trevelyan called them, in great numbers, and seem to thrive remarkably well there. At all events, before abolishing a branch of industry that is of vital importance to many of the poor of this city, it will be necessary that some more conclusive evidence of the unwholesomeness of Cooum fish than has hitherto been given should be placed before the public.—Madras Times.

A HITCH IN A MEDICAL CERTIFICATE.—An officer of a Native Infantry regiment arrived at the Presidency about a fortnight ago, from the Northern Division, to appear, under the usual order of his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, before a medical board, the surgeon of his regiment having recommended that he should be allowed eight months' leave of absence. He duly reported himself at the Adjutant-general's office, and for some four or five days was under the medical care of the surgeon of the district in which he had taken up his residence. At the end of this time, the district surgeon informed the officer that, under instructions from the Deputy Inspector-general, he was to report himself to the medical officers at the General Hospital. This direction was immediately attended to, and to his surprise the officer was required, whether he liked it or not, to take up his quarters in the General Hospital, for the purpose of being "under observation." A room was assigned to him in a most unpleasant vicinity, and here he has literally been a prisoner at large for the last ten days. No medicine is prescribed for him—as he wants none—and he enjoys the daily luxury of chicken diet, something more than a baby's allowance of animal food. His reasonable request to be permitted to go out for morning and evening exercise in his own carriage was met by the reply that the surgeon had no authority to give such permission, and the officer was recommended to be satisfied with the exercise that he could enjoy in the hospital compound. The man complains that the restraint imposed upon him is most irksome, and it is not at all to be wondered at if excitement and vexation be the result of such restraint. It may be said in reply, that the surgeon of the regiment in his report on the officer's case, said, as he was no doubt bound to do, that he had lived freely—but he also added in justice to the officer, that for the last three months he had been perfectly regular and abstemious, and he recommended that, suffering as the officer was from nervous debility, he should be allowed eight months' leave of absence to recruit his health. The officer came to Madras with the sanction of the Commander-in-Chief to appear before a medical board, and it is hard to understand by what authority he is detained, against his will, "for observation" in the General Hospital. We call attention to the subject in the hope that relief may be afforded before the unfortunate man should be goaded into committing some act of indiscretion, rendering him liable to the pains and penalties of the Articles of War.—Athenæum and Daily News.

NAGPORE, Feb. 20.—Nagpore is connected with Bombay by rail. This day at 11½ A.M., amidst the booming of guns and the cheering of a multitude, our worthy Chief Commissioner brought the long expected iron horse into Nagpore station. The station was handsomely decorated with flags, evergreens, and triumphal arches, which, with the arch smiles of the fair, enlivened by the civil and military of the surrounding stations, added much to the welcome occasion. Mr. Temple and others made speeches, which I leave to your regular correspondent. I only tell you and the public the glad news of our being nearer home to-day, and our letters, &c., will be quicker received than heretofore, although I must inform you that our last "Home Express" reached Calcutta (from Bombay harbour) in four days and four hours, i.e., 100 hours, including all detentions. The mail train from Bombay leaves Nagpore at 1.10 A.M. daily, mixed train 5.45 P.M., and occupies thirty hours in transit. Fares: first class, Rs. 50-10; second class, Rs. 25-5; third class, Rs. 11-4; and fourth class, Rs. 5-10. "Homeward bound" should bear in mind that there are numerous comfortable dawk bungalows on the road, Government waggonettes and mail carts plying between Mirzapore and Nagpore, &c. (For particulars see Jordan's "Postal Guide," to be had of postmasters).—Delhi Gazette.

BALL GIVEN BY THE OFFICERS OF THE 60TH RIFLES.—The ball given on Wednesday night by the officers of the 60th Rifles was one of the best that has been given in Madras for a very long time past, and Colonel Roe deserves to be congratulated upon its complete success. The large central hall in the mess-house at the Fort was occupied by the dancers, while the side rooms were set apart for supper, refreshments, and loungers. The decorations alone were well worth a visit to see, and did infinite credit to Monsieur Deschamps' skill and good taste. By a judicious arrangement of evergreens and flowers, the staircase was transformed into a garden terrace, window places into bowers, and foliage and bossoms seemed to be bursting from the very pillars. A real fountain played at one end of the hall, and the splendid band of the regiment at the other; and while the one pleased the eye, the other gratified the ear. With the sea-breeze on the one side of the hall, and the more substantial "refreshment" for the inner man on the other, the dancers could not possibly have been better situated for the work laid down for them in the programme. Under these circumstances it would have been rather surprising if the dancing had not been kept up with spirit. Lord and Lady Napier honoured the ball with their presence.—Madras Times, Feb. 15.

WASTE LANDS IN THE CENTRAL PROVINCES.—It is notified for general information that throughout the tracts of the Central Provinces plots of Government waste land which may have been approved by the Deputy-Commissioner as available and well adapted for the purpose, will be granted for the planting of forest, fruit, or fuel trees, on the following conditions:—1st. The grants will be limited (ordinarily) to twenty acres for each Zemindar. 2nd. The whole land specified in the grant to be rent-free for twenty years from the date of the grant, after which full assessment will be levied. 3rd. The holder of such a grant will be at liberty to plant on it any forest trees, or trees suited for fuel, as well as mango and guava trees, but not sugar-cane. 4th. Twenty per cent. of the land comprised in the grant must be planted with trees within the first year, and another 20 per cent. on each succeeding year, so that in five years the whole may be planted. In default of compliance with this condition, the grant will be cancelled, unless good and sufficient reason can be shown to the contrary. Each acre must contain at least forty standards. 5th. The land under the trees, or that comprised within portions of it which are actually planted, may be cultivated with cereal or other crops, and no land revenue will be payable during the first twenty years of the grant. But as long as any portion of the grant on which trees are not planted to the extent of at least forty standards per acre be cultivated, the land will be liable to assessment at the full rates for land of its class. 6th. For every tree cut down the grantholder must plant and maintain two trees to replace it. 7th. For the first five years of the currency of every such grant a yearly sum can be charged at the discretion of the Deputy-Commissioner on account of the grass, mhowa, and other annual products which the land of the grant may produce. The above rules are sanctioned experimentally for two years from the 1st of January, 1867.

MISCELLANEOUS.

DEPARTURE OF SIR BARTLE FRERE.—The present mail steamer carries with it Sir Bartle Frere, who, to-day, at least for the present, closes his long career in India. One of the latest tributes of admiration which has been paid him is the brief address by a committee representing the Bombay Civil Service requesting permission, on behalf of the service, to present his Excellency with a service of plate, in recognition of the distinguished honour he has conferred upon that body. Sir Bartle remains Governor of Bombay down to the moment when he leaves these shores—he is to embark at 4 o'clock this afternoon—after which the new Governor, Mr. Fitzgerald, will take the oaths of office in presence of the Executive Council. Mr. Fitzgerald arrived in Bombay shortly after 12 on the morning of the 1st of March, having been conveyed from Suez in the British India Steam Navigation Company's Steamer Punjab. Mr. Fitzgerald did not, as rumour asserted he would, call at Massowah during his passage down the Red Sea, but he stayed for a few hours at Aden, and then proceeded to Bombay. The community is, of course, in a state of profound uncertainty as to the attitude the new Governor will assume towards all the questions now under discussion or agitation which affect its welfare, and that is a point on which we do not profess to be able to throw any light.—Bombay Gazette, March 6.

THE NIZAM AND HIS PRIME MINISTER.—A correspondent of the Bombay Times refers to the serious dispute between the Nizam and Sir Salar Jung. The Nizam was angry at his Minister for the clause in the existing treaty which requires him to give up British criminals who take refuge in his territory, and because the Minister could not allow his Highness five lakhs of rupees out of the Treasury. Sir Salar Jung tendered his resignation, which caused such alarm among the people and the European and East Indian employes that the Nizam declined to accept it. Salar Jung's position is viewed with jealousy by certain Mussulman noble families of Hyderabad; and this is not the first time that the feeling has been exhibited. Umrao, the present head of one of these families, some time ago originated an intrigue by inducing the Nizam to propose to his Minister that one Lushkar Jung—it is hardly needful to indicate his character, says Native Opinion—should be the sole medium of communication between them. Sir George Yule has patched up the dispute, but it will break out afresh.

THE RIGHT HON. MR. SEYMOUR FITZGERALD arrived in Bombay by the B.I.S.N. Company's steamer Punjab soon after midnight on Feb. 28, and landed on the following morning. He will be sworn in as Governor of Bombay before the Executive Council this afternoon (March 6) immediately after the departure of Sir Bartle Frere.

MR. E. C. BAYLEY.—It is reported that Mr. Edward Clive Bayley, Secretary to Government, Home Department, will succeed Sir G. Yule at Hyderabad.

CAPTAIN LUARD'S PARTY has commenced the survey of the Burmese frontier, with a view to a line of railway communication between Rangoon and Yunnan.

COLONEL G. P. SEALY, R.A.—Intimation having been received from Bombay to the effect that Colonel George Prince Sealy, Commanding Royal Artillery in Sind, has been nominated by Sir Robert Napier to the command of the Nusseerabad Brigade, Major-general Heath issued a Division Order on the 12th inst., permitting that officer to proceed to join his appointment in anticipation of his name appearing in General Orders. Colonel Sealy accordingly left Kurrachee by the Coramandal last Wednesday for Bombay, en route to Nusseerabad. Colonel Sealy is an officer who has seen a great deal of service, and well merits the appointment conferred upon him. He served with the Bombay Column Army of the Indus in the campaign in Sind and Afghanistan in 1839; was present at the storm and capture of Ghuznee, for which he holds a medal; was with the Persian Expeditionary Force in command of the 4th Troop in 1857, for which service also he received a medal and clasp; was present with two guns at the relief of Kolapore in the same year; served with the Satpoora Field Force in command of Mountain Train; and commanded the left column of the Force at the action of Dababensee, in April, 1858. There is only one thing in connection with Colonel Sealy's appointment which is a source of regret to us, and that is the supercession thereby of a distinguished officer, who faithfully served his Queen and country for upwards of a quarter of a century. We need scarcely tell our readers that we allude to Colonel Lincoln Stephen Hough, late Commandant of H.M.'s 2nd Beloochees. Whatever may be Sir Robert Napier's reason for dealing with this gallant officer in the way he has done, there is no gainsaying the fact that the sympathy of every gentleman in the service is with Colonel Hough, and that Sir Robert's treatment of him will ever be denounced by one and all as cruel, unjust, and arbitrary in the extreme.—Our Paper, Feb. 15.

EXHIBITION TO BE HELD AT CALCUT.—Many of our local readers are probably not aware that there is to be an agricultural show and exhibition of arts and manufactures in Calicut in the course of the present and next month. The first attempt of this kind made in Malabar in the year 1857 proved a success; the second, a short time afterwards, did not. Exhibitors got alarmed at the failure of the crops during the season which intervened between the first and second exhibitions, and attributed such failure to the influence of evil eyes. The rapid strides, however, which education has of late years been making in Malabar seems to have wholly dispelled superstitious ideas from the minds of the people, and we learn that there is a strong zeal manifested by natives of all classes to contribute their best efforts towards rendering the approaching exhibition a still greater success than that of 1857. Messrs. Framjee Nesserwanjee and Co., of this place, have sent a large collection of articles out of their immense stores—an example which we trust will be followed by some of our other wealthy merchants and traders. The best contribution the Collector of Coimbatore could make would be a pair of first-class Todas. These people have become so used to intercourse with strangers that we do not think there will be any difficulty in inducing a man and woman to go, and their account of the sea on their return will no doubt be listened to with eagerness by their countrymen.—Neilherry Excelsior, Feb. 9.

INDIAN PENINSULA, LONDON, AND CHINA BANK.—It would seem superfluous to do more than refer to the melancholy story of the "Indian Peninsula, London, and China Bank" as set forth in the report of its directors, and duly commented upon by one or more aggrieved shareholders at the meeting, as reported in our columns to-day. It is scarcely three years since the bank was projected, with a capital of 49 lakhs paid up, and now it seems doubtful whether one-tenth of that sum can be recovered from the fire by ever so careful handling. As affairs at present stand the shareholders of the Indian Peninsula Bank may congratulate themselves that they are not quite so bad as many of their neighbours, who, besides losing their capital, will have thrown more good money after what is lost; but of this they may now feel certain, seeing that the bank holds many shares to which contingent liabilities attach. The more annoying consideration as to the losses now shown is the remembrance of the last annual meeting, when the immediate winding up of the bank was strongly urged by some of the shareholders. We were then in the second era of cotton speculation, and the manager and directors clung to the fallacious hope that they could recover some of their previous losses—how mistaken that has proved let them state in their own words:—"A second commercial crisis, more severe than the first, has rendered nugatory all the efforts of the management to retrieve the past. Fresh disasters, and the absence of all support from the public, have added to the already heavy losses the bank has sustained, and no business of any importance has been entered into since last meeting. It is unnecessary for the directors to offer any particular explanation of the causes of these disasters, but they would point out to the proprietors how severe had been the effects. Securities held to be assets in 1866 have in 1867 become either valueless or actual liabilities, and estates confidently expected to pay from 50 to 75 per cent. will not probably average more than 12½." The directors deserve credit for frankness in this statement—a quality which might be profitably imitated in some higher quarters. They state also that they are heavy losers by the bank; but this does not, we think, exonerate them from the charge of grossly mistaken judgment in having urged its continuance after the statement of last year, and also for maintaining the lavish expense incurred by keeping up the London agency. We allude to this because on every side there may still be some unwarrantable expenditure going on in connection with dying institutions. As to the residue that may be saved from the wreck of the Indian Peninsula Bank, much will, of course, depend upon the care and determination that may be exercised in realising the assets and getting quit of the contingent liabilities. In consenting to a voluntary liquidation the shareholders have doubtless taken the best course for themselves.—Times of India, Feb. 14.

PROPOSAL TO SUPPLY KURRACHEE WITH WATER FROM THE INDUS.—Mr. Lee, surveyor to the Municipality of Hyderabad, has proposed plans for supplying Kurrachee with water from the Indus. As in the new Calcutta works he would raise the water into reservoirs whence, freed of its silt by a steam apparatus, it would pass through filtering tanks to a large roofed reservoir on the plateau near the fort capable of holding 750,000 gallons, or one day's supply. The cost he would meet only by one rupee a month on each house. The scheme seems both feasible and cheap if the Indus water is good.

APPOINTMENT OF A NATIVE TO THE HIGH COURT.—The native papers of Bombay rejoice at the appointment of Khanderao Chimanrao Bedarkar, B.A., LL.B., Interpreter and Translator, High Court, as Deputy Registrar in the Appellate side on a salary of Rs. 600 a month. The place has hitherto been held only by civilians, and was in the gift of Chief Justice Couch. When will Bombay produce a native fit to sit on the High Court bench?

ELEPHANT HUNTING AT MYSORE.—A correspondent of the South of India Observer records the failure of an attempt on the part of the Mysore officials to capture wild elephants. The "Kraal" was established at Karcancottah, a few miles beyond the Wynaad boundary. Its shape somewhat resembled a horse shoe. It consisted of an enclosure of about an acre of ground, surrounded (all but the entrance which was undermined) by a moat fifteen feet deep by fifteen feet broad. Extending outwards for a mile and a half, and gradually widening from the entrance to the enclosure were pallasades, formed chiefly of saplings and branches of trees. But the resisting power of the structure was never tested, for the herds of elephants which had been surrounded, and which were said to have numbered close upon 100 head, all broke back in detachments before reaching the mouth of the passage to the Kraal.

India-office, London, Dec. 24, 1866.

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Governor general of India in Council.

Sir,—I have had under my consideration the rule which allows officers of the Bengal and Madras armies to report their arrival at Bombay on return from leave to Europe, and to enjoy on reporting at that Presidency the same advantages they are entitled to on arrival at Calcutta or Madras.

2. The rule, as it at present stands, allows these advantages to Bengal officers whose regiments are stationed above Allahabad, and to Madras officers whose regiments are stationed north of the Kistnah, but it restricts them entirely to regimental officers.

3. All duty with regiments is now considered "staff" employment, and I have resolved that all officers of the Bengal and Madras armies holding permanent appointments of whatever kind at places situated within the above prescribed limits, shall be entitled, on reporting their arrival at Bombay, to the same advantages with regard to resumption of Indian allowances and retention of staff appointment as they would receive on reporting at Calcutta or Madras.—I have the honour to be, &c.

Compensation to Indian Officers.

Fort William, Feb. 25.—In continuance of G.O. No. 808, dated Sept. 26 last, and in furtherance of the instructions conveyed in the Military Despatch, No. 160, from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, dated Aug. 8 last, H.E. the Gov. gen. of India in Council is pleased to direct that a standing committee be appointed at each Presidency, to investigate and report on the claims of all officers of the late Indian army who seek compensation for the loss of any sums subscribed up to Feb. 18, 1861, for the purpose of assisting their regimental seniors to retire, for which a due equivalent had not been obtained at the date of the reorganisation of the army.

The several committees will be composed for the present of a president, two members, and a secretary.

The president and members will be selected from amongst the available (civil or military) officers of the presidency, who will perform this duty in addition to that of their respective appointments.

The services of the secretary will, for the present, be placed exclusively at the disposal of the committee.

Claims to compensation on this account will be received from officers of the late Indian artillery and engineers below the grade of colonel commandant or colonel with colonel's allowance, and from those of the cavalry or infantry, including the new line corps, and the several staff corps, below the rank of lieutenant-colonel, provided they were borne on the strength of a regimental cadre on the 17th February, 1861, whether they subsequently retired or whenever they may bona fide purpose immediate retirement.

As under the purchase system the sums paid by junior officers, to induce a senior to retire, represented the estimated value to the purchasers of such a step, including all chances and contingencies, any promotion to a higher grade of regimental rank obtained prior to the reorganisation of the Indian army afforded, as a general rule, a fair equivalent for the payments made to secure such promotion; the only sums for which compensation can now be allowed—save in very exceptional cases, which will be specially considered—are those paid in the regimental rank which officers held at the date of the reorganisation. Claims will accordingly be limited to such payments, which will be credited to claimants in full, independent of any advantage in regard to promotion obtained subsequent to the reorganisation, provided the claimant is within the prescribed limit of rank.

In the late regts. of Indian arty. and engrs., in which the rank of major had been merged in that of lieut. col. in 1858, payments made in the grade of major will be credited to officers who held the regtl. rank of lieut. col., on Feb. 17, 1861.

It will rest with officers claiming compensation to afford reasonable proof—supported by a declaration on honour—of the amounts thus paid, which will be credited to them in full; subject to a deduction equal to the amount a retired or retiring officer may have received, or may bona fide expect to receive, from the juniors of his regt. or cadre, or from his regtl. retiring fund; and also the estimated money value of any special annuity a retiring officer may have received in addition to his regulated pension.

The balance in the officer's favour will be paid on his retirement appearing in general orders, or immediately after adjustment, in the case of those already retired.

All communications connected with the claims of officers must be addressed to the Secretary of the committee at the Presidency to which the applicant belongs.

Printed forms of application for compensation will be forwarded by the several secretaries on receipt of a written request.

The following officers are app. to form the committee therein authorised.

President.—Colonel A. Broome, R.A., controller gen. of military expenditure.

Members.—Colonel D. M. Stewart, Bengal staff corps, dep. adjt. gen.; Major G. T. Chesney, R.E., accountant gen.; P. W. depts.

Secretary.—Colonel D. S. Dodgson, Bengal inf.

Privilege Leave.

Feb. 7.—The following orders received from the Government of India, in the financial department, are published for general information:—

From E. H. LUSHINGTON, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, financial department, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal.—(No. 535, dated Jan. 31, 1867.)

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of Mr. Junior Secretary S. C. Bayley's letter, No. 2,852 of the 21st ult., submitting an application from Surg. major Francis, officiating principal of the medical college, for sanction to an alteration in the rules for the grant of privilege leave to military officers in civil employ, with a view to his exemption from a loss of allowances during a recent absence.

2. In reply I am desired to state, with reference to the accompanying copy of a resolution, No. 6,386, passed in this department on July 19, 1860, that as Dr. Francis was only temporarily in civil employ, his allowances during absence on privilege leave should be regulated by military rules.

3. Under those rules the period of Dr. Francis' absence, not exceeding two months, may be treated as having been spent on privilege leave, but Dr. Francis must make good any additional expense to Government which may have attended the discharge of his duties for the period of his privilege leave.

4. For any time of absence in excess of two months, Dr. Francis will be treated as on general leave.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, in the Financial Department, No. 6,386, dated July 19, 1860.

Read the following:—

No. 2,266.

Foreign Dept., Fort William, June 27, 1860.

Forwarded to the Financial Department for consideration and orders.

From R. H. DAVIES, Esq., Secretary to Government, Punjab, and its Dependencies, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Foreign Department, Calcutta (No. 388-1587, dated Lahore, June 18, 1860).

Recently, on an application by Dr. A. P. Tomkyns, officiating civil assistant surgeon at Delhi, for privilege leave for two months, this Government declined to sanction the leave, because the civil auditor had reported that the leave was not admissible under the order of the Supreme Government, No. 202 of Jan. 6 last, which requires that military officers in civil employ, among whom medical officers are included, should serve twenty-two months, consecutively, in civil employ, before they can be entitled to two months' privilege leave. Dr. Tomkyns replies that he is only officiating in civil employ, and that the same rules cannot apply in his case as in cases of permanent incumbents. It may chance, he urges, that he may frequently hold officiating civil appointments for broken periods, and thus, though actually serving Government, he may never be able to accumulate service which would entitle him to privilege leave. On the other hand, a similar objection may be urged in the military department against him, if after being relieved of his present officiating appointment he were to apply for privilege leave to that department. Such an anomaly, he states, was certainly not designed by the rule.

2. The Hon. the Lieut. gov. considers that there is much truth in Dr. Tomkyns' argument. That officer has served uninterruptedly in the Military Department since 1854, with the exception of one month, and is entitled to the indulgence he solicits under the Military Rules. His Honour is of opinion that the acting Civil appointment should not debar Dr. Tomkyns' title to the leave, and recommends, as a special case, that the leave be sanctioned.

Financial Dept., Fort William, July 19, 1860.

RESOLUTION.—The Gov. gen. in Council agrees with the view taken by the Lieut. gov. of the Punjab. H.E. thinks it would be a great hardship if Dr. Tomkyns is entitled to privilege leave in his own proper service that he should be deprived of it, because he is temporarily acting in another office. Looking, moreover, to the nature of the case, he is disposed to consider that equity would entitle him to the leave for the requisite continuous service in Dr. Tomkyns' own department, and that an acting appointment should be regarded as exceptional, and not as depriving him of a right acquired by a given period of consecutive service in his own proper duties.

Feb. 11.—The following orders of the Government of India, in the financial department, are published for general information:—

Fort William, Jan. 31.—No. 656.—Leave and allowances:—

Read the following:—

No. 70, dated London, Nov. 24, 1866.

From the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, to H.E. the Hon. the Governor in Council, Bombay.

The despatch of your Excellency in Council, dated Sept. 28, No. 50 of 1866, submitting an explanation relative to the grant to Mr. Coghlan of allowances to which the accountant-general's department stated he was not entitled, has been considered by me in Council.

2. As the leave has been cancelled, no breach of the rules has occurred; but I cannot regard the explanation of your Excellency in Council on the question of principle involved as satisfactory. Mr. Coghlan was holding a joint judgeship, an appointment sanctioned for a limited time and a special purpose. Now, if an officer holding such an appointment sanctioned for six months goes on leave for a month, and is permitted, during absence, to draw the full allowances, there is clearly presented this dilemma—either the Government has to pay the higher allowances for seven months instead of six, or, if the work be completed within the prescribed six months, the work of five months has been spread over six months, and the appropriate remuneration has been extended accordingly. It is obvious that special allowances granted for special and temporary duties should only be drawn during the period in which such duties are actually performed. I desire that this plain rule may be strictly adhered to in future.

CASE OF MAJOR GEN. WILLIAMS & HALF PAY.

No. 61.—The following extract from a despatch from H.M.'s Govt. to the Govt. of India, dated India-office, Dec. 24, 1866, No. 289, is published with reference to G.O.G. Dec. 16, 1864, No. 478.

With reference to the despatch to your Govt., dated Oct. 15, 1864, No. 304, I have received communications from the Sec. of State for War, regarding the unattached pay of Major gen. Williams, C.B., comdg. the Oude div., and the half-pay of Col. Longden, adj. gen., Bengal, and Sir C. Staveley, K.C.B., comdg. the Poonah brigade.

2. It appears that in accordance with that despatch, it is the practice at your presidency to retrench from the full amount of the consolidated or staff salary of officers of H.M.'s British service holding staff appointments to which such salaries are attached, the unattached or half-pay receivable by them in this country.

3. Having been in communication with the War Office upon this subject, I have determined to authorise you to issue to British officers so situated the full amount of the consolidated or staff salary attached to the appointments held by them, which will thus include whatever unattached or half-pay may be due to them.

4. Any retrenchments which may have been made from the salaries of Major gen. Williams, C.B., Col. Longden, or Brig. gen. Sir C. Staveley, K.C.B., on account of unattached or half-pay, should therefore be refunded to them, in the event of their half-pay not having been issued to them in this country.

MADRAS MILITARY FUND.

No. 82.—The following extract from a financial despatch from the Rt. Hon. the Sec. of State for India, to H.E. the Rt. Hon. the Gov. gen. of India in Council, is published:—

Despatch dated 31st December, 1866, No. 307.

1. I have considered in council your military letter dated 31st October last, No. 290, and with reference to the proceedings of the directors of the Madras Military Fund at their special meeting held on 3rd September, 1866, it is only necessary for me to state that the guarantees given to subscribers to the Madras Military Fund in Sir C. Wood's financial despatch to your Government, dated 24th March, 1864, was clearly defined as securing to present incumbents on, or subscribers to, "the several funds, the pensions and allowances for themselves and their families to which they are entitled from those funds according to the regulations now in force, and at the present rates of subscription," and this intention of her Majesty's Government is so clearly stated in the preamble of the Act 29 Vict., cap. 18, that I do not consider that there is any occasion for any further legislative enactment on the subject.

2. You will inform the late directors of the Madras Military Fund accordingly.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ABYSSINIAN CAPTIVES.—Letters have been received from the captives in Abyssinia up to the 28th of January, three weeks later than the date of our last advices. The captives were all well, but no change had taken place in their circumstances. They were still prisoners and in chains in the hill fort of Magdala, and seemed to be under no apprehension of further outrage, although nothing had occurred to give them any hope of a speedy deliverance. The intelligence which we published on the 12th inst. is confirmed. On receiving a copy of her Majesty's letter, which had been forwarded from Massowah by Mr. Flad, King Theodorus seemed disposed at first to reply to it, but subsequently directed Mr. Rassam to write and request that the artisans and presents should be forwarded to him forthwith. This, in spite of the reported distinct assurance in her Majesty's letter that the artisans would not be sent up, and that Theodorus was not to calculate on British friendship, unless the captives were previously liberated. There now seems only too much reason to believe that the King has absolutely made up his mind not to liberate the captives, and the fact that he still keeps them in chains is probably an indication of his purpose. The report that King Theodorus had destroyed Gondar, the old capital of Abyssinia, is also confirmed. He did not even spare the churches, said to number forty-four, which act of sacrilege has created a deep sensation throughout the country. The Abboona, or Bishop, is still a prisoner, though not in chains, in the Amba Magdala, as well as the "Achaggaz," or Head of the Monks. The hill fort of Magdala is situated on a mountain in the Wallo Galla district, and is about two miles in circumference. The locality is remarkably healthy, and the weather so cold that fires are used all the year round. The garrison, consisting of 600 musketeers and 1,000 spearmen, live on the summit with their families. For eight months in the year water is abundant, but during the remaining four it is brought up from the plain below. The Queen and the greater part of the royal establishment reside there, and as the old capital has been destroyed, Theodorus regards this Amba as his new capital, and relies greatly on its strength. The country generally is reported to be in a state of anarchy, and the rebels occupy the high road a few hours from Magdala. Still it does not appear that the King is in such straits as has been represented. By the last accounts he was planning another expedition against Gojam. Mr. Flad was on the point of leaving Massowah for the Royal camp via Matamma, taking with him the articles which he had purchased in this country for the King. His return is indispensable to the safety of his wife and children. Of course the artisans do not accompany him.—Pall Mall Gazette.

FLOATING STEAM FIRE ENGINE FOR CALCUTTA.—On Wednesday, the 21st inst., some experiments took place on the river above Blackfriars-bridge with a floating steam fire engine, constructed by Shand, Mason, and Co., to the order of the Indian Government, for Calcutta. The boat, propelling power, and general arrangement of the fire engine pumps are to the designs of the Government engineers at Calcutta, and suited for local use and the swift current of the Hoogly. The principal dimensions are as follow:—Length of iron boat (built by Messrs. Richardson, Duck, and Co.), 130 ft.; breadth of beam, 16 ft.; depth of hold, 7 ft. 5 in.; propelled by a screw of 4 ft. 6 in. diameter. The steam-engines, which are non-condensing, are placed horizontally across the boat, working the screw shaft direct at 200 revolutions per minute. There are two 12-inch cylinders, making a 15-inch stroke, with a boiler pressure of from 80 to 100 lbs. on the square inch. The fire engines consist of three pairs of bucket and plunger pumps, worked from a three-throw crank in each pair, being placed at right angles to each other, and worked from the same throw of crank; the pump buckets are barely 10 inches in diameter, making a 12-inch stroke; the water is drawn from a perforated well in the side of the boat, each pair of pumps being fitted with a stop valve to allow of any pair being disconnected, so that one, two, or three pairs may be used at one time. There are also arrangements for attaching flexible suction pipes to pump from the holds of ships. The boilers are four in number, with horizontal brass tubes, three being sufficient to work the engines to their full power. The engines are connected on one side by a clutch with the screw shaft, and on the other side by a similar clutch with a shaft geared to the crank shaft by a mortice, wheel, and pinion. The floating engine was drawn up alongside the wharf opposite Messrs. Shand, Mason, and Co.'s premises in Upper Ground-street, and shortly afterwards proceeded up the river, having on board several gentlemen interested in such matters. The distance between Westminster and Vauxhall bridges being exactly a mile, taking the bend of the river into account, was considered a suitable place for trying the speed of the boat. The first mile up was made in three minutes and fifty-one seconds, and the second mile down in five minutes and twenty seconds, making an average speed of between thirteen and fourteen miles an hour. On returning, the boat was moved alongside the warehouses of the India Stores Department in the Belvedere-road, when Major-General Wilmshby, the principal storekeeper, came on board to inspect the working of the fire engines. The hose outlets are six in number, each provided with one of Captain Shaw's stop valves; to these six lines of hose were attached, with a jet of 1½ inch diameter at the end of each; with the engines in full power, the water-pressure reached over 100 lbs. on the square inch, indicating that a vertical height of upwards of 150 feet was reached by the water. Several diagrams were taken by Richards' indicator, the highest of which gave 190-horse power. This is the second complete self-propelling floating steam fire-engine constructed in London; the first was made by Shand and Mason for the London Fire Brigade in 1855, and is now in use for the protection of water-side property. All present at the trials expressed themselves as highly pleased with the smooth and uniform working of the engines, and the entire absence of heated bearings. The boat is made in segments, and will be immediately taken to pieces for shipment to India.

CREDIT FONCIER OF MAURITIUS.—The report of the proceedings of the Credit Foncier of Mauritius for the past half-year has been issued. It shows that the amount of mortgage investments at the end of 1866 was £250,450. 12s. 1d., the aggregate value of the property on which these investments are secured being appraised at £565,571. 12s. After allowing for all charges, including interest on debentures and loans, and the sums credited to the sinking funds, the accounts exhibit a net profit of £7,052. 3s. 7d. The total available surplus is £7,536. 14s. 4d., out of which the directors recommend that a dividend of 7½ per cent., free of income-tax, be declared for the past year. Of this sum 3½ per cent., or 7s. 6d. per share, has been already paid, in the form of an interim dividend for the first six months of the year.

THE DELHI RAILWAY.—A paragraph having appeared in several of the morning papers, based on the report of Major Warrand, R.E., upon an inspection of the works of the Delhi Railway, from which it might be inferred that some difficulty is apprehended in regard to the supply of rolling stock not being equal to the demands of the very large traffic that is anticipated, it has been authoritatively announced that every arrangement has been made for the provision of locomotives and carriage and waggon stock for the Delhi Railway, to meet the expected opening of the various sections, and that there is no risk of delay or inconvenience being experienced in this respect.

THE NATIONAL BANK OF INDIA held its meeting at Calcutta on the 27th Feb., when a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, and a bonus of 1 per cent., together making 4 per cent., for the half-year, were declared out of net profits for that period. The sum of £5,000 was also added to the reserve fund, and a balance of £2,708 carried forward. The progress of the bank was asserted to have been highly satisfactory, the deposits being now £380,152, against £160,015 in the half-year ending June last.

LONDON AND BOMBAY BANK.—In the course of some proceedings on Monday before the chief clerk to Vice-Chancellor Stuart's Court relative to the winding up of the London and Bombay Bank, it was stated that an agent was about to proceed to India to collect a call already made there on some 1,800 contributories, and that the London call would depend on the proceeds obtained in India.

BANK OF HINDUSTAN, CHINA, AND JAPAN.—It has been resolved by the liquidators of the Bank of Hindustan, China, and Japan to pay a dividend of 5s. in the pound early next month. Considering that the liquidation only commenced at the close of last year, the result is very creditable to all concerned.

LONDON AND DELHI BANK.—At a meeting on Friday of the proprietors of the Delhi and London Bank, the report of the directors was adopted, and a dividend declared at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum for the half-year, free of income-tax.

LUCKNOW, Feb. 16.—Mr. Davies, after all the numerous reports to the contrary, returns next week to this province as Financial Commissioner. Instead of coming to Lucknow he resumes his duties at Pertabgurh, where he has directed his camp to meet him on the 19th instant. Pertabgurh being within an easy distance of Allahabad, four or five days will be saved by this arrangement. Mr. St. George Tucker has left for England, and Colonel Barrow has taken up the duties of Judicial Commissioner. Mr. S. Reid, of Fyzabad, was expected to have been Mr. Tucker's successor, for whom he recently officiated, but none will regret that the higher post has been conferred on our popular Commissioner. Major Steel exchanges posts with Mr. Quinton, of Fyzabad, while Mr. Capper continues to act as Commissioner of the Lucknow division. These appointments are expected to hold good until the return of Sir George Couper, who should be here at the end of the current year. Mr. Strachey is still travelling about the province, and nothing as yet is heard of his coming in.—Delhi Gazette.

THE SANCY DIAMOND.—The celebrated Sancy diamond was forwarded to England by last mail, with a view to a purchaser being found in the home market. A description of this diamond is given in Harry Emanuel's work on "Diamonds and Precious Stones," as follows:—"This diamond is of an almond shape, and weighs 53½ carats. The stone was found on the body of the Duke of Burgundy, and was afterwards, in 1479, bought by the King of Portugal. In 1489 he sold it to Nicolas de Barly, Baron de Sancy, from whom it derives its name. Sancy sent it to the King as a present, by the hand of a servant, who being attacked by robbers, swallowed the stone, and after his death the stone was found in his body. It finally came into the hands of James II. of England, who sold it to Louis XIV. for Rs. 2,50,000. In the French Revolution it disappeared along with the renowned blue diamond. Some years later the Sancy was bought by Napoleon I., who sold it to Prince Demidoff."

ORIENTAL MANUSCRIPTS

(CHIEFLY PERSIAN),

SELECTED FROM THE LIBRARY OF

DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D.,

AND FOR SALE BY

MESSRS. WM. H. ALLEN AND CO., 13, WATERLOO-PLACE, LONDON.

* * In ordering from this List, please state the Number, first word of Title, and Price.

58. ABWABU-L-JINNAT.—"The Gates of the Gardens of Paradise." A highly-esteemed work on Religion and Morality. It is in a state of perfect preservation, written in a very clear Ta'lik character on fine India paper, partly of a pale white and partly of a dark yellow tint, strongly and neatly bound. Large royal 8vo. pp. 480, ll. 19. £2. 12s. 6d.

59. KHULASATU-L-NASA, I.H.—"The Essence of Good Counsels." A collection of Tales, Anecdotes, and Wise Sayings, compiled by BAHADUR 'ALI, who held an official situation in Jellalore (Bengal) in the reign of Aurangzeb. He tells us in his preface that being appointed to remove to the Deccan he found it inconvenient to carry with him his whole library, so he compiled the present work, which we may aptly call the "Beauties of Persian Prose." About one-third of the work is written in a very fair Ta'lik character, the rest in beautiful Naskhi; all on very fine paper variously tinted. The MS. is in the highest state of preservation from beginning to end. Small folio, pp. 651, ll. 21 (the Ta'lik), and ll. 22 (the Naskhi). £2. 12s. 6d.

62. BAHJATU-L-MUBAHJI.—"The Delight of the Cheerful," containing various anecdotes recorded of Muhammad, the four first Caliphs, and other illustrious personages. The MS. wants the first leaf, and the author's name has not been ascertained. It is most likely a translation of a similar work in Arabic by ABU BAKAR YAHYA, described in Stewart's Catalogue (p. 88), and entitled "Bahjatu-l-Mahafil," or "The Delight of Assemblies." This work is written in a fine bold Naskhi hand at least 800 years old, in a perfect state of preservation. 4to. pp. 551, ll. 21. £2. 2s.

63. INSHA, E ABU-L-FAZL.—"The Correspondence of Abu-l-Fazl," the author of the "Ajini Akbari" (v. No. 4), containing: 1. Letters written by the Emperor Akbar to the Kings of Turan and Persia, etc. 2. The Correspondence of Abu-l-Fazl himself with the various Nobles and State Officers of Hindustan; and lastly, A variety of Notes written to friends, various Literary Memoranda or Criticisms, etc. The MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a peculiar variety of the Ta'lik character. Transcribed in A.D. 1778. Large 8vo. pp. 414, ll. 15. £1.

65. AKHLAKU-L-MUHSANIN.—"The Morals of the Beneficent." A highly-esteemed work on Ethics, by HUSAIN VA'IZ AL KASHAFI, of Herat. The work is divided into forty chapters, each treating of some moral subject, inculcated by precepts and illustrated by examples. It is dedicated to Husain Mirza, the son of Sultan Abu-l-Ghazi, A.D. 1494. It is in a thorough state of preservation, written in a hand half Ta'lik, half Shikasta. Along with it is bound up the "Romance of the Four Darweshes" (v. next No.); pp. 162, ll. average 24. 18s.

65a. KISSAE CHAHAR DARWESH.—"The Tale of the Four Darweshes." A well-known Romance in prose, by AMIR KHUSRU, of Delhi (v. No. 12). This work is better known in its Hindustani garb under the title of "Bagh o Bahar" (v. No. 92), which has become a regular class-book in that language. This and the preceding work are in the same handwriting, transcribed in A.D. 1786. Large 8vo. pp. 134, ll. 21. Price of both works, in one volume, £2. 2s.

66. KUHLU-L-JAWAHIR.—"The Collyrium of Gems." A religious and moral work, containing numerous traditions of Muhammad and 'Ali, etc. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character on the finest Persian paper, with richly ruled margin. The sayings of Muhammad and 'Ali, etc., are given in the original Arabic, in a beautiful Naskhi hand, fully pointed. The author's name has not been ascertained. This copy of the work was transcribed in A.D. 1712. Large 8vo. pp. 523, ll. 17. £3. 18s. 6d.

67. DIWANI KHAMOSH.—"The Diwan of Khamosh of Delhi." This is a very recent poet, apparently a Hindu, judging by his real name, which is Ray Ram, poetically called Khamosh. He is said by Dr. Sprenger to have for some time held the office of Tahsildar, under Mr. N. Duncan, in the district of Benares, where he died at an advanced age about A.D. 1826. This Diwan is very bulky, consisting as usual of a book of Kasidas or Idylls, a book of Ghazals or Odes, and a book of Rubais or Tetrastichs. It is in a fine state of preservation, written in a clear Ta'lik character on very fine paper. Royal 8vo. pp. 845, ll. 17. £3. 8s.

69. KHAMSA, E NIZAMI.—"The Khamsa of Nizami." This MS. contains the six poems or Masnavis described under No. 40, and exactly in the same order. It is in perfect preservation, written on very fine paper, with ruled margin. The 'Anwans and opening pages of each poem are richly ornamented in gold and ultramarine. There are throughout the volume several curious pictures representing scenes of combat, hunting, and domestic life. The work is richly bound in the original covering. Transcribed in A.D. 1634. Royal 8vo. pp. 914, ll. 18, with eighteen additional couplets written round the margin. £10. 10s.

70. DIWANI HAFIZ.—"The Diwan of Hafiz" (v. No. 83). This is a very beautifully-written copy of this favourite poet in a very fine Ta'lik character, on the finest paper, with margins richly ruled. It is in the original Oriental binding, ornamented with gold. It has no date, but the handwriting strongly resembles that of Mulla Husain of Kashmir (v. No. 248). Royal 8vo. pp. 414, ll. 13. £3. 13s. 6d.

71. NABI-NAMA.—"The History of the Prophet Muhammad," in heroic verse, i.e., in the metre of the Shahnama, Sikandarnama, etc. It is written in a very distinct Ta'lik character, on very fine paper, without any ornament. It is in a state of perfect preservation, with the exception of a few lines in the last page but one. Small 4to. pp. 1168, ll. 15. £2. 12s. 6d.

72. DIWANI KHAKANI.—"The Diwan of Khakani," who died at Tabriz about A.D. 1186. The work consists: 1st, of Kasidas, which are chiefly panegyrics addressed to eminent persons of his time; 2nd, of Ghazals, treating of the usual subjects peculiar to that class of compositions; concluding, as most Diwans do, with a number of Rubais or Tetrastichs. The work is slightly worm-eaten on some parts of the outer edges, but the text is almost entirely intact. It is written in a fine Ta'lik character on variously tinted paper, with neatly-ruled margin. Royal 8vo. pp. 840, ll. 17. £2. 12s. 6d.

73. FIKHI MAZHABI AIMMAT.—"The Law respecting the Sect of Imams or Prelates." This work treats minutely and fully of the religious ceremonies inculcated upon the Imam class. It is written in a beautiful Naskhi hand on very fine paper, all of it in a state of perfect preservation. Neither author's name or date of transcription is given. Royal 8vo. pp. 500, ll. 18. £2. 2s.

74. ANWARI SUHAILI.—"This work is an elegant paraphrase in Persian of the ancient work entitled "Pancha Tantra," and known in most of the languages of Europe as the "Fables of Pilpay." The author of this version is HUSAIN VA'IZ AL KASHIFI (v. No. 66a). For a very full and complete description of it consult Stewart's Catalogue, p. 82. This copy is quite perfect, written in a clear and distinct Ta'lik character. Folio, pp. 706, ll. 17. £2. 2s.

75. DIWANI SA, I.B.—"The Diwan of Sa, i.b." This is a very fine copy of the work already described under No. 29, q.v. It is in a perfect state of preservation, only a few pages at the end partially soiled by damp, quite legible. It is written in a beautiful Ta'lik character on very fine paper, with margins richly and tastefully ruled. The date of transcription is not very legible. In a former catalogue it is stated to have been in A.D. 1596. This is clearly an error, for the poet died at Ispahan in A.D. 1670; hence it is rather unlikely that this MS. should have been transcribed fifty years before it was composed. Folio, pp. 928, ll. 21. £4. 4s.

79. KHAMSA, E NIZAMI.—"A complete copy of Nizami's Six Masnavis," already described. In addition to the Five Poems usually given as the Khamsa, this copy contains the Khirad Nama. It is written in a very beautiful Ta'lik hand, with margins tastefully ruled, and outside the ruling lines numerous notes, omitted passages supplied, and various readings given. The MS. is in a thorough state of preservation. Transcribed in A.D. 1587. Folio, pp. 630, ll. 23. £5. 15s. 6d.

80. RAUZATU-L-SAFA.—This is the second volume of the great historical work described under No. 86. It is entirely occupied with the genealogy and history of Muhammad and of the first four Caliphs, with a minute account of their conquests down to A.D. 664. The MS. is slightly defective both at the beginning and end. It is written in a most beautiful Naskhi hand; and, judging from its appearance, it must have been transcribed at least 350 years ago. Folio, pp. 474, ll. 25. £1. 1s.

81. BAGHI-URDU.—"The Garden of the Urdu." This is a translation of Sa'di's Gulistan (v. No. 96) into the Urdu or Court dialect of the Hindustani language. The work is very clearly and well written on good European paper. This copy was purchased by me at the sale of the late Dr. Gilchrist's MSS. It is evidently the copy from which the work was printed in Calcutta in A.D. 1802, under Dr. Gilchrist's own superintendence. It is in a perfect state of preservation. Folio, pp. 219, ll. 16. £1. 1s.

82. MUNTAKHABI SHAHNAME.—"An abridgement of Firdausi's Shahnama" (v. No. 101), by TAWAKKUL BEG, who lived in the time of Shahjahan, and compiled this work in A.D. 1652. It is a very useful precis of what we may call the Romantic History of Ancient Persia. It is dedicated to Shamsah Khan, then Governor of Ghazni, and is known sometimes by the title of "Shamsah-Khani," which some sapient wight has translated "The abode of the scimitar!" as may be seen in Dr. Clarke's Catalogue, and others of more recent date. Almost the whole of the work is accompanied by an English translation, neatly written on the margin, by the late JAMES ROSS, Esq. Folio, pp. 325, ll. 19. £2. 2s.

83. 'AINU-L-HAYAT.—"The Fountain of Life." An esteemed work on Muhammadan Ethics and Theology, by MUHAMMAD BAKIR, the son of Muhammad Taki. I have not been able to ascertain the author's time and place of birth. The work was transcribed in A.D. 1670. It is still in a state of perfect preservation, written in a very neat and small Ta'lik character on very fine paper. Folio, pp. 489, ll. 29. £1. 11s. 6d.

Mr. TOWLE.—Sir,—Having recently arrived from Bombay, and during our stay there myself and crew being violently attacked with dysentery, so general in India, Captain Clements, of the ship Marseilles, lying near us, seeing the condition we were in, kindly sent a bottle of your Chlorodyne from which myself and crew found immediate relief; and during the voyage home proved a most effective and valuable medicine. Having been instrumental in saving my own life and that of others, we feel it a duty and pleasure to send this statement of facts, to make what use of you think proper believing that no vessel ought to leave port without a good supply in her medicine chest.

A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly London.

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,

Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Mr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India not only deserves the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

THE HISTORY OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE IN INDIA.

FROM THE
APPOINTMENT OF LORD HARDINGE
TO THE
COMPANY.

BY
LIONEL JAMES TROTTER,
Late of the 2nd Bengal Fusiliers.

The first volume of this History embraces the period from Lord Hardinge's appointment in 1844 to the retirement of the Marquis of Dalhousie in 1856.

The second volume commences with the arrival of Lord Canning in India in 1856, and closes with his lordship's death in 1862. This being the most eventful period in the annals of the East India Company, including the Mutiny, great pains have been taken in its narration.

"Captain Trotter has done good service in providing the public with the sequel to a standard work. . . . And in every way his performance is worthy to take rank with that of his predecessor. . . . The thoroughly satisfactory manner in which the task has been performed is greatly to the author's credit. . . . We take our leave of the work, congratulating its author upon having produced an addition to the 'History of India' at once permanent in purpose and popular in execution; acceptable in every way to the wants of the public, and especially adapted for the enlightenment of young members of the local service, to whom the modern annals of the country which they help to administer are of far more importance than the history of remote periods having little or no relation to the present day."—Standard.

"Both the plan and execution of the work are deserving of high praise. Full of interest and animation, and narrates with clearness and brevity all that took place during the period of which it treats. . . . The second volume of Mr. Trotter's history possesses the same merits by which the first was distinguished. It is written with great animation, and often with considerable graphic power. It tells its story with perspicuity and without needless or tiresome digressions. It avoids as far as possible that controversial vein into which Indian politicians and historians are alike prone to fall, and it is as impartial as any work is likely to be which deals with times so near our own. . . . The narrative of the stirring events of the mutiny will of course have the greatest attraction for most readers, and it is in truth the best, as it is the principal part of the present volume. . . . It appears to us that Mr. Trotter has been eminently successful in his treatment of a very exciting and interesting period of recent history."—London Review.

"The volume is full of interesting matter comprising every event of importance during the exciting period of the rebellion, told in a concise, straightforward, and impartial manner, unincumbered by those copious extracts from documentary evidence which often serve no other purpose than increasing the bulk without adding to the usefulness of a work of this description."—Observer.

"Captain Trotter's reflections are few. . . . He has his own views, though he does not force them upon us in detail. . . . All this proves him to be far above the narrowness of the average Anglo-Indian. He speaks out boldly, too, in defence of Lord Gough. . . . A word as to our author's descriptive powers; they are such as his lighter writings would lead us to expect. . . . Whatever he has to tell Captain Trotter tells it in an animated and picturesque style. The night on the field at Ferozeshah . . . is admirably painted; so is the grand success of Goojat. The disarming of the veterans of the Khalsa . . . is a striking scene. Captain Trotter's book opens up many other interesting questions; it is full of notices of social changes; it points out the specially unfortunate way in which the annexation of Oudh was managed."—Fortnightly Review, May 15.

"Here we have before us the first volume of an eminently readable history. . . . The arrangement of the matter, the style, and above all, the spirit which pervades his pages, are worthy of great commendation. Mr. Trotter is singularly free from the faults of a partisan writer. The volume concludes with a masterly criticism on Lord Dalhousie's character and services."—Calcutta Englishman, March 17.

"We cannot say that he has dealt majestically by Lord Canning's memory. . . . A well-considered volume, in which the heartiest acknowledgments are paid to Lord Canning for his temperate wisdom at a time when there was no man more abused than he. . . . He writes thoughtfully, yet with a soldier's sense of the stir of a brisk military narrative. His history of this great struggle is full and impartial. . . . We need not follow him through his vigorous rehearsal of the well-known incidents. It forms a very lucid history, the several parts being well planned and well grouped, and no important point being omitted or misrepresented."—Express, September 15.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

The Bombay mail brings us our usual files of papers from Calcutta to the 7th of March, Madras also to the 7th, and Bombay to the 13th of that month.

The great event in Calcutta was the presentation of Mr. Massey's Budget on the 5th of March. Its chief features may be soon summed up:—The statement for 1865-6 shows a probable deficit of £336,000; the actual result for that year gives a surplus of £2,800,491. For the year ending March 31, 1867, the expenditure is estimated at £44,307,777, and the revenue at £41,912,530; the deficit, which includes public works' extraordinary charges, being £2,395,247. For the coming year, 1867-8 the revenue is estimated at £46,783,110, and the expenditure at £47,340,632; showing a probable deficit of £557,522; or, excluding public works' extraordinary charges, a surplus of £1,767,478. Mr. Massey proposes to raise a loan of £3,000,000, of which £2,000,000 would be devoted to irrigation works, and £1,000,000 to military buildings. In addition to the £1,000,000 to be borrowed for military buildings, a similar amount would be expended from the revenues of the year. The duty on saltpetre is to be abolished, and also that on machinery, as well as on a large number of articles on which only a trifling return is obtained. The export duty on grain is to be raised to three annas per maund. The import duty on champagne, sparkling wines, and liqueurs is to be raised from one rupee to one rupee eight annas per gallon, all other wines to remain at Rs. 1, and spirits at Rs. 3. A licence tax on professions and trades is to be imposed, the extremes being Rs. 200 per annum as a minimum, and Rs. 10,000 per annum as the maximum. Joint-stock companies are to be divided into three classes, and are to pay Rs. 2,000, Rs. 1,000, and Rs. 500 per annum respectively. Public servants are also to pay the licence tax, with the exception of officers in the army in the receipt of less than £600 per year; non-commissioned and privates not in civil employ; officers of the police force whose pay is less than a captain of infantry; and persons in Government employ in receipt of less than £100 per year. The revenue to be obtained from the licence tax is estimated at £500,000. The budget includes £410,000 for the purchase of grain for Orissa, of which it is expected £260,000 will be recovered, the difference representing the price between that at which it will be bought and the selling price.

The Budget appears to have given by no means entire satisfaction, though some of the papers are flattering to its author.

There was very little other news in the metropolis. The Government had appointed Mr. E. W. Malony a special commissioner to superintend the famine relief operations in Cutack, where it is generally expected the distress and famine will increase as the year advances. Lady Lawrence and the Misses Lawrence were expected to arrive at Allahabad from Calcutta on March 8, en route for the hill-station of Umballa, where they intend staying for some time. Lord and Lady Napier were about to leave the Presidency for Madras. It was stated that upwards of 300 persons opened floating accounts with the Agra Bank at Calcutta on the day of its opening; but according to another authority this is a pleasant exaggeration. So we give the story for what it may be worth.

It is stated that the Secretary of State has confirmed the decision of the Viceroy, on the application of the Nawab Nazim, of Moorshedabad, to be allowed to visit England. Lord Cranborne has also requested the Indian Government to submit the general report on the affairs at Moorshedabad, called for in August, 1864.

The Nizam of Hyderabad had arrived in Calcutta, and taken up his quarters at Cossipore. It is understood that the object of the Nizam is to urge his claim either to the surplus revenue of the assigned districts or to claim a half-share of the Mysore territory, on the ground that his troops joined in the conquest of Mysore. In these objects he does not appear likely to meet with much success, as the Viceroy has refused on both claims.

The Delhi Gazette's expectation of things being worse in Afghanistan in consequence of its Cabul letter not coming to hand, proves to be a mare's nest. Instead of another revolution having occurred it turns out the kossid was taken ill on the road.

There was a news-famine in Madras, where active measures were evidently necessary for the relief of the afflicted columns of the local journals. It was announced that Lord and Lady Napier were returning, but that we had already learned from Calcutta.

The best news from Bombay was the proposed relief of the unhappy Bombay Bank by union with the Bank of Bengal. The state of the negotiations on the subject is referred to in another column. Mr. W. Loudon had been elected a director of the Bombay Bank in the place of Mr. Cassels, resigned. The amalgamation of the Bombay Presidency Bank with the Royal Bank of India has been agitated in Bombay, with a view to providing a new exchange bank. The "Old Financial" is to be wound up, and its business transferred to a new company, to be called the Financial Association of India, Limited: shareholders in the former to receive Rs. 100 shares in the latter with Rs. 75 paid-up.

It is announced that the Bombay Government has appointed a committee of experienced officers to report on the working of the furlough regulations. It will be seen by an article in our leading columns that the authorities have been anticipated in directing attention to this subject.

Another emissary from the ex-Ameer Shere Ali, in the person of his first cousin, bearing the same name, has arrived at Kurrachee with proposals from his master to the British Government, which he wishes to deliver personally at Calcutta. The Commissioner of Sindh has been instructed to hear what he has got to say, but to hold out no hopes of the British Government offering assistance. The Ameer Shere Ali himself has been heard of at a place called Washeer, between Girishkh and Furrak. His present plan appears to be to strengthen the defences of Furrak and Herat, and himself to start as soon as possible across the Paropamisus, and join Fyz Mahomed in Balkh, who has thoroughly routed the Cabul troops sent against him, and is now represented as awaiting Shere Ali's arrival. The Ameer Uzul Khan in Cabul is looking out anxiously for Azim Khan's return from Cabul, in order that the expedition against Fyz Mahomed may be organised.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which may be expected in London on the 12th inst.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

FRIDAY, April 5, 1867.

WANTED—FRESH FURLOUGH REGULATIONS.

GENERAL NORTH and his friends have found their "occupation gone" since Lord Cranborne's handsome concession of the claims of the Indian officers. But there is another grievance—and an Indian officer's grievance also—which we can recommend to them as a good sound article, admirably adapted for agitation, and likely to keep them employed for some time to come.

We allude to the question of furlough regulations. Those at present in force require adapting to the requirements of the service in its amalgamated condition. The Friend of India has pointed out the necessity of the case in a very timely article, and we cannot do better than follow the arguments of our contemporary. There are three points, the writer considers, which thrust themselves most prominently into notice. The first relates to the difficulties which the regulations, as they at present stand, interpose under all circumstances between a working officer and his furlough; the second to the absolute nullity, in many cases, of the rule which professes to grant one furlough after ten years' service and another after twenty years; the third to the hardship entailed on officers who accepted of their own accord the new furlough rules in 1854, compared with the advantages which have accrued to the others who refused the new rules until their entrance into the staff corps forced them to make a definite choice.

With regard to the first point, it was possible before 1861 for an officer to take furlough and to return, at all events, not only to his regiment but to his proper place in the regiment. This cannot be done now. Regimental appointments having been made staff appointments, it follows that every officer going on furlough gives up his regiment and returns without any employment. With the majority of officers, therefore, furlough has become too expensive a luxury to be indulged in. Officers in the line are not exposed to the penalty; these return to the position in the regiment that they have left, and receive all the advantages of the promotion that may have taken place during their absence. Why, it is very reasonably asked, should not officers in the local service enjoy the same advantages? Such was the intention of the rules adopted in 1854; but since the amalgamation an officer's regiment having become his appointment, he vacates it upon taking furlough as he would a place upon the staff. This anomaly might be met by the simple plan of making the local officers an exception to the general rule in this respect, and the sooner such an act of justice is conceded the better.

The second point may be soon explained. In theory every officer has the power, if he has had no leave to Europe on sick certificate, of taking his furlough after ten years' service; but in practice the permission is almost a dead letter. It is found that very few officers are able to avail themselves of it. There is the loss of the appointment to be considered in the first place, and the want of funds in the second—for it is seldom that an officer has saved enough for the purpose during his first ten years' service. The consequence is that the majority of officers wait on in the country until their health thoroughly breaks down, and then they get twenty months' leave on sick certificate, which expires just when the change of climate is beginning to do them good. In order to meet this difficulty it is suggested that the rules of the Indian service should be assimilated to those of the Royal service—that fixed periods of leave to Europe, clogged as they are with impracticable conditions, should be abolished, and that the Government should grant leave when consistent with the exigencies of the service, but making the retention of the appointment a provision in all cases.

The third point has reference to the order which compelled officers who entered the Staff Corps on the new regulations to have all their leave counted against them, while it allowed officers on the old regulations to count all the leave taken by them while in India as service. This is decidedly a hardship to the former class, who may well ask for a consideration of their claims in this respect. The most generous and uniform plan, as our contemporary suggests, would be for the Government to declare that all leave taken in India prior to the 10th of April, 1861, should count as service.

The Friend of India counts upon Lord Cranborne to remedy the grievances here pointed out; but his lordship's career has come to an end as far as India is concerned, and how his successor is disposed to deal with such subjects remains to be seen. Sir Stafford Northcote's antecedents are, however, in his favour, and it can scarcely be doubted that the case will receive all due consideration if laid before him in a proper manner.

CORRESPONDENCE.

HIGH PRICES IN CALCUTTA.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

DEAR SIR,—In your issue of the 27th ult. there is a surprising piece of information about the price of meat, &c., in Calcutta, such as a leg of mutton being Rs. 5, and other items showing that meat and poultry have risen there in price double and treble what they were two years ago, when I was in India. Now as people in England would rather wish to know the reason why, if mutton in London rose to 2s. per lb., so we, who have to go back and live in India, would very much like to know the reason why in this case; which, if true, is a matter of the gravest importance to all who have to pass most of their lives in India. Would you, therefore, oblige those interested with further information on this head, for meat and poultry had, previous to my leaving India, in the course of several years, risen in price so excessively that it seemed that the distress had reached its height.—Yours truly,

ONE MUCH INTERESTED.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—A communication that appeared in the Times of the 23rd ult., and which purports to come from the pen of that journal's correspondent at Calcutta, will no doubt have attracted the attention of many of your readers, owing to the astounding effrontery of the writer's inferences, deduced from statements involved in a labyrinth of error and misrepresentation. In the remarks introducing the news of the fortnight, the Calcutta correspondent of the Times newspaper indulges in criticisms of some of the recent acts of the Home Government of India. According to his views the Local Government has been "brought into contempt" in consequence of the recent action of the Home Government in some particular cases which have been referred to England for decision. He deprecates any interference on the part of the Secretary of State for India with the Governor-general. Now it may safely be averred, whether in reliance on Sir John Lawrence's long residence in India, or from the confidence reposed in him by so many of his old friends in the London Council, or owing to the tendencies of successive Secretaries of State for India to leave the government of that country to its responsible Viceroy, that where one decision of the Government of India is reversed or even modified now-a-days ten questions were so treated by the late East India Company. However, in the writer's shortsighted and unjust views, it is better that any number of native rulers should be wronged than that one decision of a Viceroy should be modified. This being proved to the writer's own satisfaction he proceeds to speak in terms of unmeasured abuse of native chiefs, at whose "divine right," while he denounces them as tyrants, he takes the opportunity to indulge in a malignant sneer. He relates that in the course of his travels through many native States he has talked to our political officers and read all that has appeared on the subject, that is probably all the notions of the English local newspapers, and has come to the conclusion that the fearfully oppressed state of the people inhabiting these territories demands "more active interference" on the part of Sir John Lawrence. The question here suggests itself, why has he talked only to our political officers? Many of these, owing to various causes, may be biased in the opinions they hold. Why not have given the result of his conversation with some of the suffering and oppressed ones, supposing that in his search after the truth it ever occurred to him to question them on the subject of their distress? We all know the fable of the tiger when shown his portrait drawn by a man's pencil. It is very possible that a native encouraged to speak without reserve would have alluded in a different strain to his "status" under a native chief. And why not finally have given some elucidation of the well-known fact that in those districts where the peasantry might, by means of an unchallenged walk of half a mile, transfer themselves and all belonging to them across the open frontier, they far prefer to remain where they are, rather than place themselves under our unc congenial rule? The answer is simple. The writer has adopted views held possibly by some few of our political officers. He has read all that has emanated on the subject from the Serampore Press, and so become a disciple to the doctrines of a newspaper to which young India has attached an ominous sobriquet. He is convinced that the panacea for all native States lies in our "active interference," or, in other words, that those steps should be taken which lead by degrees to their being absorbed into our overgrown territories.

Having drawn a sufficiently harrowing picture of the state of the countries beneath the rule of our great native feudatories and properly prepared the reader's mind for that which is immediately to follow, the writer asks (hinc ille lacrymæ) whether it is to turn Mysore into what he graphically describes as "such a slough of misery and crime" that the English public are asked to help. Then follow the arguments, now worn threadbare, founded on the assertion that the treaty made with the present Maharajah is personal. Whether personal or not when made is exactly the point at issue. Farther than saying that in proof of the latter assumption there is abundant evidence that neither the Marquis of Wellesley nor his illustrious brother ever contemplated any such limitation, I will not here attempt to discuss the question, as the ground has been only so recently travelled over by Sir Henry Rawlinson in his able address to the House of Commons in behalf of a native Prince upon whom a flagrant injustice was about to be perpetrated.

The correspondent gives us news from Afghanistan. At Afzul Khan's request the Governor-general has acknowledged him as the de facto Ruler of Afghanistan. This is the second of the brother princes, sons of Dost Mahomed, the former being yet alive, that we have acknowledged as Ruler of Caubool since the father's death in 1863. We can only regret now that having deferred the recognition of Shere Ali, whom the Dost had nominated as his successor, we finally thought fit to acknowledge him when we were involved in a troublesome campaign against a tribe inhabiting Afghan territory, a period when our recognition of him as Ameer of Caubool might well have been regarded as a bid for his helping hand and countenance. It is still further a subject of regret that unwilling as we were to interfere in the affairs of Afghanistan, the Government of India had recourse to the insidious measure of recognising Shere Ali at all, so totally disregarding the claims of the elder brother, Afzul Khan. And now that victory has declared for him, lo! we change sides and appear as the dear friend of the present favourite of fortune. The writer in the Times closes his summary notice of the news from Central Asia with the following remark, "the country is cursed with princes, and the best thing for the people would be that the throats of half of them should be cut." When "own correspondents" are suffered to express themselves in these terms when speaking of the sons of an old and sincere friend, as the Dost proved himself to be, one can only deplore the large circulation the Times at present enjoys. Russia is busy in the countries beyond our North-West frontier. She keeps herself well informed of the relations of our Government with the States occupying territory in the road of her advance. If through her zealous agents she should intimate to the Afghan chiefs that our sentiments with regard to the members of the Royal Barukzades are the same as we usually entertain for the progeny of some abhorred brood of reptiles whose "throats should be cut" as the "best thing" possible, she probably would turn to good account the Christian-like and benevolent views held by her rival in the East.—I am, Sir, yours obediently,

BENGAL.

MR. MASSEY'S SECOND BUDGET.

PROFESSOR HOLLOWAY IN A NEW CHARACTER.—For the information of such of our readers as wish to make consignments of any kind to England, we beg to state that Professor Holloway will be happy to take charge of the same on the usual terms of commission. The Professor, having at all times large available funds at his command, can make advances, if necessary. His long standing and experience are sufficient guarantee that the greatest attention will be paid to the interests of those who may entrust their business to him, whilst the large sources of information within his reach, through agents distributed throughout the civilised and uncivilised world, will render his advice and interested connection with mercantile transactions invaluable.—Bengalee, March 2.

PRINCELY MUNIFICENCE.—The visit to Madras of the Rajah of Vencatagberry has been marked by an act of liberality which will cause his name to be ever revered by the native poor of the city. The Rajah has, we learn, bestowed the princely gift of Rs. 1,00,000, to be laid out upon the establishment of a Chuttrum for sick and destitute caste people upon the model of the Monegar choultry. The Rajah visited this institution and the attached Foundling Asylum on Monday evening, and was highly gratified with his visit, especially to the latter, than which he could not conceive any more benevolent or charitable object.—Athenæum and Daily News, Feb. 21.

A FIRE AT ALIPORE has caused considerable damage to the Jail. The army clothing agency's house had a narrow escape.

Mr. Massey's second Financial Statement resembles his first in its business-like character, in the clearness of its arrangement and in the excessive prudence of its estimates amounting to pusillanimity, if we may use his own word in an inoffensive sense. It rises superior to his statement of last year in the firmer grasp of Indian details and the bolder exposition of financial principles, which were to be expected after an experience of two years. The most striking feature of the Budget is the violent contrast between the necessities of the Government as well as the broad principles enunciated by Mr. Massey, and the means adopted to meet these necessities and carry into effect these principles. That contrast may be ascribed by some to the perfection of simplicity and of financial ingenuity which attempts to meet a deficit so large by resources so petty. Mr. Massey would have done better, however, to grasp manfully the whole problem of Indian taxation, the solution of which he has only postponed. The Indian treasury has lived from hand to mouth long enough. For another year, in the face of a seriously increasing expenditure, we are doomed to depend on the precarious opium monopoly for a sixth of our revenue, and the wealthier classes are allowed to go comparatively untaxed. Worse than this, for another year the Government of India is to be allowed the excuse of financial tightness, as a ground for stopping many reforms, for starving some of the official classes and for refusing to complete and extend the great trunk system of railways. We trust this risk is to be run, this injustice to be done, for only another year.

Mr. Massey was led to estimate that 1865-66 would end with a deficit of £336,000. Instead of this its close showed a surplus of £2,800,189. This marvellous fact is a commentary on the evil system of Indian accounts, which has been partially reformed. Upwards of a million of this was a mere matter of account, but no less than £1,772,000 was due to a reduction in the Home expenditure of £350,000, a saving in the expenditure on stores of £560,000 and a payment of £937,000 by the Bombay Railway Companies, which ought to have been sooner brought into the accounts. There is, therefore, little in this surplus on which we can congratulate ourselves. It proceeds chiefly from diminished expenditure, which, however, was only postponed, and not from that true test of prosperity, increasing because elastic revenue.

For the year closing with this month Mr. Massey expected a deficit of only £72,800. The amount has reached the serious proportions of £2,395,247. As usual the land did more than its duty. Although the large sum of £107,665 was remitted chiefly on account of Orissa, the land tax rose £10,835 above the estimate. Customs shows a loss of £135,868, only too truly reflecting the unparalleled commercial disaster and stagnation of the year. The Mint, having ceased to coin copper, yielded £140,200 less than was expected. But Bombay and opium are chiefly responsible for the alarming gap. The former failed to pay £460,000 for lands which were to have been sold, and on the strength of which the island received extraordinary advances. We trust that the security for payment hereafter is as ample as Mr. Massey believes. Opium yielded £1,624,000 less than the estimate, having sold at £124. 16s. a chest, instead of £130. But if we allow for the fact that this financial year consists of only eleven months, while the estimate was for twelve, and that 53,200 surplus chests were not sold, the actual loss on this head is only £240,416, and Mr. Massey's estimate of revenue proves to be wrong by little more than half a million.

The expenditure increased by £409,584 for guaranteed interest, due to the floods of last year, which arrested railway traffic, by £581,126 for the new transports, which are to be paid for in three years; by £193,989 for the Army, which was not reduced so rapidly as the Commander-in-Chief expected; by £66,902 for ships for the public service at Bombay, in the Gulf and in the Red Sea; and by £50,000 paid to the Nizam from Berar. But in proportion to these losses the cash balances were swelled and the Bombay debenture loan further helped to raise them to £11,132,133. On the whole, deducting something for the difficulties of account caused by the fact that this financial year contains only eleven months and allowing for the frightful monetary disasters of the year, we may set the surplus of his first against the deficit of his second year, and declare that Mr. Massey has hit the truth as nearly as any one who has to deal with the bad Indian accounts and the precarious Indian revenue could have done. And, at the same time, he has not only abstained from that infantile interference with details which his predecessor thought to be finance, but in a time of gloom he has legitimately assisted public credit which that predecessor did so much to shake.

We may introduce the year which opens on April 1 next by presenting the figures of the previous years, beginning with that in which Mr. Wilson's reforms first began to bear fruit. In every case the fluctuation of surplus and deficit may be said to be due to opium alone:

	Year.	Revenue.	Expenditure.	Surplus.	Deficit.
Actual.	1861-62 ...	13,829,472	43,890,100	—	50,698
	1862-63 ...	43,143,752	43,316,407	1,872,745	—
	1863-64 ...	44,613,381	44,534,085	79,296	—
	1864-65 ...	15,652,897	15,846,417	—	193,520
	1865-66 ...	49,935,220	48,131,729	2,803,491	—
1866-67—11 months partly actual	...	41,912,330	44,807,777	—	2,895,247
	1867-68—Estimate	47,783,110	47,340,632	—	557,522

In all cases the expenditure includes extraordinary charges for public works. Mr. Massey's provision for the coming year may be summed up in a word. He has first of all removed the new department of reproductive irrigation works from the Budget to the Debt account, and will raise a loan of two millions to carry them out in 1868-69. In 1867-68 the sum of £700,000 will be spent on such works from the ordinary revenue. We may mention also that the Straits Settlement disappears from the Budget, since it is about to become a Crown colony, and that Berar will be separately managed, as the surplus from that rich province must go to the Nizam. Mr. Massey has to provide for an extra expenditure of £585,000, made up of £240,000 for transport ships, £165,000 in payment of the debts and provision for Prince Azim Jah, £150,000 loss on the sale of grain in Orissa, and land revenue remitted to the amount of £30,000 on account of the famine. The revenue remains the same. First of all he has adopted the valuations and most of the recommendations of the Tariff Committee, which involve a loss of £140,000. This he has more than made up by raising the export duty on grain from 2 to 3 annas a maund, which will give £160,000, and by increasing the duty on each gallon of sparkling wine fifty per cent., or to Rs. 1-8. He very properly declined to reduce the duty on light wine, as it would not benefit consumers. Opium he estimates at £115 a chest, adopting the averages of the last four years. From stamps he hopes to receive half a million more. And from a tax on trades and professions he expects another half million. The £557,522 of deficit still left he ascribes to the enormous sums spent on barracks, a share of which posterity ought to bear, and proposes to raise a second loan of a million sterling, which will convert that deficit into a surplus margin of £442,478. He refused to increase or even equalize the salt duty, which bears so hardly on the large classes of labourers and peasants, agreeing in the views we have so often expressed that the poorest bear the lion's share of taxation.

Mr. Massey's manipulation of the Customs revenue will be received by all with satisfaction. He has bestowed an immense boon on the import trade at no loss to the State. We regret that he should have balanced this by increasing the export duty on grain, but the reasons he assigned, so opposite to those of Sir C. Trevelyan, disarm criticism. An extra anna on each maund of rice will not affect the export, while the natives will still believe that the duty will help, by checking it, to prevent famine. The increase is a step in the wrong direction, it is true, but like arsenic, which kills if taken in a quantity, it will do good in this moderate dose. The number who drink champagne in these hard times is not great, and it will merely be reduced by the fifty per cent. increase of duty. The debatable point of the Budget is the tax on trades and professions, looked at in the light of so low an estimate of opium as £115 on the one hand, and two loans so large as three millions sterling on the other. This year it is most probable that Mr. Massey's opium estimate will be exceeded. But sound and timid financiers, such as he has proved himself to be, must look more than a year before them, and he has therefore done well to take the average of the averages of four years. We trust no one will feel that he is taxed anew because opium has been estimated low. Only thus can the time be postponed when all must be taxed heavily to supply the gap which the decline or fall of the opium revenue will assuredly create. To Mr. Massey's proposed loan of two millions for irrigation works there can be no objections. Were he to go into the Indian market now he could easily raise it at par. But the barrack loan is a very different thing, unless it is to be raised in England. The one will compete with the other, and will drag the other down. The sensitive money market will doubt the perfect buoyancy of a system of finance which asks for three millions for objects so different when all the capitalised wealth of the country is left untaxed. That barrack loan is the blot of the Budget, for it is caused by the second mistake—for which, Mr. Massey knows, the public will easily pardon him at the moment—of raising only half a million by taxing the middle classes and poorer traders, instead of a million and a half by making the wealthier classes do their duty.

The new license tax falls too low and does not go high enough. It is an income-tax which exempts the wealthy. We put it thus strongly because the Bill is not to be passed till to-morrow, and there is still time for the public to express their views. The clerk on Rs. 834 a month is to pay as much, or Rs. 200 a year, as the official on half a lakh a month, or, much worse, the rich shroff and sett whose wealth is incalculable. The clerk on Rs. 417 a month is to pay half as much as the millionaire, or Rs. 100 year. This tax will irritate the country and add still more to the burdens which so heavily weigh down the middle class, unless its lowest limit is raised from incomes of Rs. 200 to Rs. 500 a year, as the Income-tax returns teach, and incomes above Rs. 10,000 are graduated fairly. It is absurd to say that the Income-tax is kept still in reserve, and to disguise this Bill as one on "profits." It is an Income-tax, we repeat, which falls on the middle class and excludes the rich. We trust the Viceroy's well-known sense of justice will see that incomes above Rs. 10,000 a year are taxed in the same proportion as those below that sum. The unfairness of the present Bill cannot be met by the section which allows the Governor General in Council to exempt "any tribe, class, or person dwelling or personally working for gain carrying on business in British India." Government will probably apply this exemption clause to missionaries, priests, the lower class of clergy, and others on a merely subsistence pay. But the privilege must be given sparsely and is sure to flood Government with petitions. On the whole, we recommend Mr. Massey to produce a measure which will for ever make capital contribute its fair share, proportionately, to taxation.—Friend of India.

THE LAST OFFICIAL NEWS FROM ORISSA.

In the already voluminous literature of the famine no document has appeared so full in its information and satisfactory in the view which the writer takes of the remedy as a resolution of the Commissioner on the state of the Cuttack district. The resolution is signed by "J. C. Geddes," special collector, and is dated 6th of February last. It refers to the last five weeks of 1866, when the price of rice averaged 14 seers a rupee, a rate at which a labourer on 3 annas a day could purchase only 5½ lbs. for himself and his family. The East India Irrigation Company employed daily 25,000 labourers in the whole of Orissa, and the number of paupers fed daily at thirty-six centres was nearly as much, or 20,000. In Cuttack district alone—one of the three—no less than forty people died every day, or 1,240 a month, "within the relief committee's own observation," and yet their exertions were "very strenuous," "to assuage this awful mass of human suffering." Then follows a passage which we give in all its hideous colours:—

The Commissioner is aware that numbers of the natives pinch themselves through many days of slow starvation, struggling to avoid the horror of losing caste, and of thereby entailing on themselves and their forefathers and descendants the imagined terror of a chundala's fate in this and the other world. Thus on religious grounds they defer resorting as casuals to the relief houses until all the feelings are swallowed up in the animal craving for food, and most of them who surrender even to this, the last of all the instincts, are too much emaciated to receive much benefit from the food distributed to them. The Commissioner knows and records with much pain that, however the committee might deal with hunger, they are comparatively powerless to contend with these superstitions.

And for the first time in all the past year of misery and death we have this allusion of the only true remedy which will enable the people of India to raise themselves above the fear of famines.

In view of these distressing effects of ignorance and of superstition, and in view of the enormous difficulty experienced throughout that famine in procuring reliable information and in obtaining intelligent agency, he is profoundly impressed with a sense of the duty which will rest on Government on the return of prosperity, to educate and improve the people on a far more extensive scale than hitherto, as a matter of good policy alone, apart from other considerations.

Yet these famines recur almost every decade. Commissions are sent, reports are written, and promises are made. But the personnel of the administration changes every five years, the pledges are forgotten, the people continue uneducated and again God's hand falls heavy on the land. Still it is much to have the necessity of education, as well as irrigation, thus solemnly represented to Government, after we have been for years lifting up our voice in vain.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

EXTENSIVE FIRE IN CALCUTTA.—On Sunday evening, about nine o'clock P.M., a fire broke out in a native grass merchant's shop in Jora Bagan, in the Strand-road. The flames spread with fearful rapidity, as there was no water to be obtained within 500 or 600 yards of the place where the fire broke out. The fire brigade under Major Revely and Mr. Superintendent Lynam arrived on the spot within twenty minutes after the alarm was given, and prompt measures were taken to arrest the progress of the flames. The fire had by this time gained considerable ground and was spreading in two directions, one southwards towards the Mint, and the other towards Hautcollah. On the Mint side the fire was checked by pulling down the adjacent houses. In the other direction the sparks (being blown by a strong south wind) after passing over a new pukka building belonging to Messrs. Ralli Brothers, and a native bazaar, fell upon a quantity of jute and cotton stored in the godowns of the Strand Pressing Company, setting it on fire in all directions. The fire was prevented from spreading farther in this direction by coolies being placed on the top of the huts with chatties of water to put out the sparks as they fell. The native bazaar was saved in the same manner. The fire was got under at about 2 A.M., but the brigade remained till 4 A.M., until every one working the engines was quite exhausted. The European seamen who were on the spot behaved very badly, with few exceptions, positively refusing to work unless they were paid beforehand, and although several gentlemen guaranteed that they should be paid, they still refused to lend a hand. With the exception of a few gentlemen, inhabitants of Calcutta, and some six or eight seamen, no assistance whatever was rendered to the brigade, either by natives or Europeans. Among the gentlemen who particularly rendered assistance were Captain Kennedy, aide-de-camp to his Excellency the Viceroy; Mr. Davis, late deputy commissioner of police, and his brother, and an elderly gentleman, whose name is not known, who remained until the last, taking their turn with the hose, and relieving the constable whenever the heat became excessive. The premises of the Strand Pressing Company are completely gutted. The godowns were quite full of jute and cotton at the time. The cotton that was stored there was uninsured, but nearly all the jute was insured for pretty well its full value. The premises were insured to the extent of two lacs of rupees in various offices in the city.—Englishman, March 5.

DEATH THROUGH INHALING CHLOROFORM.—We regret to record the death, on Friday evening (March 1), of Lieutenant C. B. Johnson, Personal Assistant to Colonel Pugh, of the Police. Lieutenant Johnson was suffering from internal hæmorrhage, and inhaled chloroform for relief. It would appear that during the absence of Mrs. Johnson he poured some chloroform on a sponge, which he placed in a bag for the purpose of inhaling it. He may possibly have become insensible and unable to remove the chloroform when he had inhaled sufficient to answer his purpose. On the return of his family Mr. Johnson was found dead. Medical aid was immediately obtained, but without effect.

INSPECTION OF TROOPS AT BARRACKPORE.—H. E. Sir William Mansfield, Commander-in-Chief, attended by Colonel Stewart, Adjutant General and Staff, have inspected the troops at Barrackpore. The troops consisted of two batteries 16th Brigade, Royal Artillery, the 17th Bengal Cavalry, and detachments of the 27th Foot, and the 17th Native Infantry, commanded by Colonel Matthews. The troops went through the usual manoeuvres in a very creditable manner.

BENGAL ASIATIC SOCIETY.—At their last meeting the Bengal Asiatic Society elected Dr. Fayer president, and Dr. S. B. Partridge, the Hon. G. Campbell, and Mr. A. Grote, vice-presidents. In his appropriate address Dr. Fayer mentioned the initiation of a movement, among several members of the society and others, for establishing a Zoological Garden.

RANGOON, Feb. 27.—Colonel Phayre has made over charge of British Burmah to his successor, Colonel Fytche, and leaves by the steamer Bushire to-morrow for Calcutta via Akyab. The surest test of the popularity of a high functionary is the sympathy evoked on the eve of his departure from amongst them. This has been exemplified in a most marked degree by all classes and creeds here towards our late Chief Commissioner. A meeting of the inhabitants of Rangoon took place the other day to take into consideration a substantial testimonial of the esteem and high respect Colonel Phayre is held in by the people throughout British Burmah. It was cheerfully responded to. The subscription list already amounts to several thousands of rupees, and whatever shape the testimonial may take, it will prove that the people of British Burmah entertain a just appreciation of a high public functionary, who has unceasingly studied the welfare of the community at large. Besides the getting up of a testimonial, the elite of Rangoon, merchants, and traders, have, during the past week, been vying with each other in getting up special dinners, balls, and suppers to one whom we may now be pardoned in claiming as our esteemed guest, and to all of which, notwithstanding Col. Phayre's impaired health, he has cheerfully responded. The eldest brother of the two rebel princes, the Mengoon Menthath, with an uncle of his and some followers, leaving the younger brother, the Mengoondine Menthath, behind, has decamped for the neighbouring Shan and Karennee States. Such repeated daring almost deserves success in making one more dash for the throne. The latest news by the steamer Nerbuddah, from Mandalay, is that a large rebel force from the Shan States is approaching the capital, and general panic has in consequence taken place in Upper Burmah. All those who have property there are converting it into what cash they can realise and hastening down to our frontier. Should a second rebellion arise in Upper Burmah Colonel Fytche will be equal to the occasion.

TEA AND SIR CECIL BEADON.—Sir Cecil Beadon's desperate efforts to regain a little of the reputation he has sacrificed would be less worthy of remark if they showed any sign of an honest desire to do what is right. After continuing to abuse his patronage and exempting from attendance at the courts men below the rank of ordinary barristers, his Honour has recommended the Government of India to appoint a commission of inquiry into the causes of the ruin in the tea districts of Assam, which he has done so much to precipitate and nothing to arrest. The heads of inquiry proposed are so drawn up as to suggest that the present state of Assam is due to any cause rather than mis-government. Now we are willing to admit that the planters themselves are greatly to blame; and that the legislation of which they justly complain was to some extent their own thought under pressure. But the root of the evil is in maladministration and neglect, such as would ruin any virgin district. Had such a commission been appointed two years ago much evil would have been prevented. Enough has been told by Major Lees, at the Viceroy's special request, by the officials and through public discussion since that time; and Mr. Morice, the Ceylon commissioner, who has just returned, declares Major Lees' picture to be only too true and exhaustive. We are sick of inquiry, and want action. This is a case in which a commission too favourable a remedy in these days—would only intensify the ruin which action on the part of the Government of India and Sir C. Beadon's successor ought to remedy. The commission is estimated to cost Rs. 5,500 a month for a year, a sum which would be much better spent on public works in the province.—Friend of India.

REDEMPTION OF THE LAND TAX IN THE CENTRAL PROVINCES.—The Government of the

Central Provinces has published, with the sanction of the Supreme Government, certain rules for the redemption of the land tax, of which the substance appears to be that on the application of the owner or lessee (on a term over thirty years), with the owner's consent, the tax may be redeemed at the rate of twenty-five times the ultimate annual jumma payable. The Deputy-Commissioner is to fix this jumma by ascertaining the quantity and cultivation of the land, and the description of its soil, as well as the village jumma payable per acre of cultivated land. If 75 per cent. or more is cultivated land, the jumma is not to be less than the village rate, multiplied by the number of acres of the lot proposed to be redeemed; when less than 75 per cent. is cultivable, the jumma is to be not less than 80 per cent. of such village rate; if, however, the land is better than the average of the village cultivable land, or is more advantageously situated, the rate into which the acres of the plot shall be multiplied must be increased in proportion to such advantages. When the jumma has been fixed, it has to be submitted to the Commissioner for approval, and to the Chief Commissioner for sanction. The amount of redemption money having been paid into the Treasury of the district, a patent, declaring the land free from land tax for ever, but subject to the cesses for schools, district roads, and posts, at a fixed rate, will be granted.

PROJECTED RAILWAY FROM SOOCHOW TO SHANGHAI.—It is stated, not officially but on good authority, that the Chinese Government has granted to the French Minister at Peking the right to construct a railway from Soochow to Shanghai. For a long time the project of introducing railways into China, which was of English origin, has been promoted by English capital and exertions. Sir Macdonald Stevenson, the well-known "Father of Railways" in India, organised a company for constructing railways in China, visited China for the purpose of seeing what could be done, had interviews with mandarins at Canton, had models constructed to show them what railways were like, and in short did all that a private individual could to further the scheme. Since then the enterprise has not been neglected. Two English engineers lately surveyed the country between Soochow and Shanghai, with the view to the possibility of constructing a line between those two places, and reported in detail to the English company. But because English diplomats are as lethargic as the French are energetic, the latter are likely to reap the fruits of English enterprise.—Friend of India.

THE HURDWAR FAIR.—We learn that the Hurdwar Fair this year will be on a scale of great magnitude. The people who are expected to assemble for bathing purposes might be calculated by millions, and it is anticipated that the collected crowd will cover an area of no less than ten miles. The fair is a very peaceable one, but a very large force is required to keep the roads, and to prevent the myriads of people who will be assembled from crushing each other to death. It is probable that the police will be comparatively helpless for this purpose without the aid of a military force, and it has been proposed to the Government of India in the Military Department that the Jat Horse, now stationed at Meerut, should be deputed for the purpose of aiding the constabulary force. For patrolling purposes, and for the maintenance of order over such a large tract of country, mounted men are absolutely necessary, and it is to be hoped that the military authorities at head-quarters will see the wisdom of complying with the Lieut. governor's requisition for a cavalry regiment.—Pioneer, Feb. 22.

MOVEMENTS OF TROOPS.—The detachment H. M.'s 38th Regiment, en route from Dugshai to Sealkote, will be at Umballa about the 10th; Loodiana, 17th; Jullundur, 20th; Umritsur, 25th; Meean Meer, 28th March; and at Sealkote on the 5th April.—H. M.'s 104th Regiment will be at Allypurl on 9th; Koorja, 11th; Secundrabad, 13th; and Delhi, 13th March.—The 1st Regiment N. I. leaves Gwalior en route for Dum Dum on the 1st March. They march to Agra, where they will arrive about the 6th, from whence they will proceed by rail.—The troops of the Hyderabad Contingent are to change stations at the end of the year. This move is to be made in consequence of the dearth of grain at some of the stations.—The A-16 R. A. arrived at Hazareebaugh on the 27th February.—The 104th Foot, en route to Dugshai, will be at Allypurl on the 8th, Delhi the 10th, Umballa the 29th, and Dugshai the 5th April.

MURDER AT SEA.—Alexander Murphy, a seaman on board the American ship Monanton, is in custody for the murder of Mr. Smith, chief officer of the same vessel. It appears on the 7th September last, whilst the Monanton was out at sea, that the deceased and Murphy had an altercation which gave rise to the deceased first wounding the prisoner with a pen-knife; after this he attempted to strike him again with a belaying pin, on which Murphy stabbed him in the side with a sailor's knife, and five minutes afterwards the mate was dead. The prisoner was examined, and his depositions taken by the American Vice-Consul at Point de Galle, who ordered his removal to Calcutta. It is believed that the prisoner remains here till such time as the Consul-general can make arrangements for his passage to America.—Englishman.

LIFE OF THE LATE BISHOP COTTON.—We rejoice that immediate steps are about to be taken for the preparation of a life of the late Bishop Cotton. No one is so competent for the duty as Mr. E. B. Cowell, now in England. Should he be unable to undertake it the bishop's widow is likely to do the sacred task much more justice than any chaplain who could be selected, and the requisite literary assistance would be amply supplied both here and at home. The late metropolitan kept a very full diary during his Indian career, and we believe that his valuable papers are in admirable order.—Friend of India.

CHANGES IN THE DIVISIONAL COMMANDS.—Consequent on the indisposition of Major-general T. Williams, c.b., Commanding in Oude, and Major-general D. Rainier, Commanding the Lahore Division, Brigadier-general J. W. Fitzmayer, c.b., Commanding Fort William, will officiate in the former, and Brigadier-general P. Hill, c.b., in the latter command. Colonel G. J. L. Buchanan, R.A., recently arrived from England, succeeds to the command of Fort William, and Colonel Alexander McDonnell, c.b., 3rd Battalion Rifle Brigade, to the Rohilcund District.

THE RAILWAY TO MEERUT.—We are sorry to hear that there is no immediate prospect of the railway being opened to Meerut. This will be a disappointment to the public, who have been led to expect that it would certainly be opened this month. The cause of delay is deficiency of rolling stock, a want which may not be supplied for the next month or two.—Delhi Gazette, March 7.

PUBLIC WORKS.—The expenditure on public works in India this current year has been in all £5,063,352, or nearly half a million less than the sum assigned, owing chiefly to the unavoidable delay in the issue of standard plans, and in the determination of the final arrangements for new cantonments. The special fund for Bombay spent £406,615 less owing to the collapse there.

MR. TEMPLE has, out of the valuable appointments offered to him, selected the readership of Hyderabad, according to the Friend of India.

THE 106TH REGIMENT arrived at Delhi on the 17th Feb. in good health. They proceeded to Meean Meer on the 19th.

PROGRESS OF THE PUBLIC BUILDINGS AT ALLAHABAD.—We are glad to be in a position to chronicle the steady progress that is being made towards the completion of the new Public Offices and the new Military Barracks at this Station. The elegant structure that is in course of erection for the High Court will, in all probability, be finished by the close of this year, and by July, 1868, the building opposite will be quite ready for the reception of the Secretariate Offices. It is sanguinely expected that nearly all the Public Offices will be fit for use by the close of 1868, or the middle of 1869. But there is something even more satisfactory in connection with these buildings than the rapidity with which they are being constructed. They are apparently intended to combine elegance of design with durability of work. The Military Barracks are also being rapidly built, and it is expected that the ruins of 1868 will see the European Infantry at Allahabad removed from their present unsightly and unhealthy habitation to the permanent and commodious quarters that are now in course of completion. We have good authority for saying that Government are very anxious to complete the erection of the new Civil and Military buildings at this station with as little delay as possible.—Pioneer.

LUCKNOW, March 4.—Owing to ill health General Williams proceeds home at once, to be succeeded, it is expected, by General Fitzmayer, commanding at Fort William. Colonel Buchanan leaves to take command of the artillery of the presidency division, and Colonel Barwell vacates the assistant adjutant-generalship to command a regiment of Native Infantry. Among civil officers changes are always taking place. Mr. Quinton, from Fyzabad, is well into his work at the Deputy Commissioner's office, where, to use a familiar expression, he astonishes the natives by the amount of work he gets through, and the despatch with which he determines cases. Mr. Harrington, at present in Calcutta as Assistant Secretary in the foreign department, is expected to return shortly to his old post, and to relieve Mr. F. Currie of his duties as junior secretary to the Chief Commissioner.

THE UNCOVENANTED SERVICE BANK (LIMITED) has declared a dividend at the rate of 8 rupees per annum, or rupees 4 per share for the past half year ending 31st December, 1866, and the balance of profits is to be carried to doubtful debt liquidation account. From the auditor's report it would appear that the bank is gradually recovering from the shock it sustained under the late management, and the shareholders may confidently expect that in the course of a year or two they will be enabled to draw higher dividends under the present manager.—Mofussilite, March 1.

CHANGES IN THE D.P.W.—We learn that Mr. T. Moss, who for many years has laboured so successfully as Assistant Secretary to the Government of these Provinces, in the Department Public Works, has obtained leave of absence to England for six months. He will be temporarily succeeded by Mr. A. D. Campbell, who has been recently transferred to this station from Futtyghur. We also note that Colonel Owen, Executive Engineer at Allahabad, has left for Roorkee, being relieved of his executive charge here by Captain W. Jackson.—Pioneer, March 6.

ECCLESIASTICAL.—A memorial signed by 23 Chaplains, addressed to the Venerable Archdeacon Pratt, to be forwarded to the Secretary of State for India, for the restoration of the former period of 15 years' service for pension, now lies at this office. Chaplains wishing to sign the memorial (a draft of which has already appeared in this journal) are requested to send in their names, which will, in due form, be appended to it, and the memorial will then be forwarded to the Archdeacon.—Southern Cross, or Indian Church Gazette, March 2.

THE INDO-EUROPEAN TELEGRAPH.—Much as the Indo-European telegraph in Russia is improving, its benefits are nullified by the gross mismanagement of the continuation in Persia. On 24th January last Mr. Walton reported from Kurrachee—"Most messages coming via Russia, notwithstanding constant interruption on Persian line; in last fifteen months Persian line interrupted wholly two hundred and sixteen days, partially one hundred and thirty-four." More than one-fifth of the messages sent from Kurrachee, via Persia, were returned because of interruption which still continues.

FYZABAD, March 2.—Mr. Quinton, Deputy Commissioner, has been transferred to Lucknow, which is a tacit acknowledgment, at least we assume so, of that officer's superior abilities. Captain Erskine, Assistant Settlement officer, has been appointed personal Assistant to the Financial Commissioner, vice Mr. Woodburn, transferred to Fyzabad, and Mr. Crawford, Assistant Commissioner, has gone to Sultanpore, vice Mr. Gibson, transferred to Fyzabad.

STERN JUSTICE.—Mr. Sapte, judge of Meerut, has decreed that Mr. Hall, of the Public Works Department, pay Rs. 1,000 as damages to R. W. Lancaster, formerly a private in the Sappers, for unjustly representing to Lancaster's superior that he had been dismissed from Government service for embezzlement.

OPENING THE RAIL.—The Chief Engineer is now confident that a train may be run through to Jubbulpore by June 1 next, and is of opinion that the through opening may be depended on quite as surely as a partial opening to Jokehi.

PRIVILEGE LEAVE.—It has been ruled by Government that military officers in the Public Works Department, or in civil employ, cannot be allowed privilege leave in continuation of leave to study the Native languages.

SCARCITY OF CIVIL SERVANTS.—In consequence of the paucity of junior civil servants in Oude, the Supreme Government has directed the appointment of military officers in their places.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION.—An officer of her Majesty's 42nd Highlanders was fired at a few nights since as he was returning from mess; the offenders were captured and made over to the police.—Lahore Chronicle, Feb. 23.

THE EAST INDIA RAILWAY will be partially opened for through traffic to Jubbulpore on June 1, but only one light train daily each way will be employed until the completion of the line.

THE BANK OF BENGAL RAISED ITS RATES of discount 1 per cent. on private bills and bank acceptances on March 7.

THE GOORKHA REGIMENT reached Delhi on the 22nd Feb. from Bhootan, and will proceed immediately to Umballa.

H.M.'s 104TH REGIMENT has reached Agra.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE NEW NAGPORE EXTENSION.—The formal opening on the 20th Feb. of the Nagpore extension of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway stands out, perhaps, as the most prominent event that has occurred since our last budget was made up. The ceremony was conducted with considerable display, as befitted the occasion; speeches were of course made in praise of everything and everybody connected with the undertaking, and the immense importance political, social, and commercial, of the railway to the districts it traverses particularly, and to the Central Provinces generally, were fully enlarged upon by Mr. Temple, the able and energetic Chief Commissioner, who, amongst other matters auguring well for the future development of the traffic on the new line, stated that the present imperfect trade of Nagpore Proper employs at least half a million of beasts of burden. The completion of the line to Nagpore, distant 520 miles from Bombay, makes the former the half way station between the latter and Calcutta. Travellers to the 'City of Palaces' have, however, still some four hundred miles of dawk travelling between Nagpore and Mirzapore, whence the rail runs direct to Calcutta. By the end of 1868 it is hoped that the through line via Jubbulpore will be completed. It appears from Mr. Temple's speech that 20 million pounds weight of cotton are exported from the Nagpore districts in the course of a year, and 10,000 tons of corn. Manufactured goods to the value of fifty lacs of rupees are also exported. On the other hand about thirty lacs worth of English goods, consisting chiefly of iron, hardware, and piece goods are annually imported into Nagpore from Bombay, besides 12,000 tons of salt. The trade of these central districts has enormously increased during the last few years, and a far greater extension will doubtless now result from the employment of the railway as a means of transport. Indian railway communications are further to be extended, according to the Friend of India, by a line connecting Lahore with the Peshawur valley, and ending in a fortified terminus facing the Khyber. Thus we may shortly see the commerce of Central Asia, the value of which has of late years attracted considerable attention, met by rail at Peshawur, and carried thence in the same way to all parts of India.—Madras Times.

THE NEW WATER-WORKS.—Lord Napier lately asked the Secretary of State to sanction the raising of a loan in England to carry out Mr. Fraser's scheme of water-works in and irrigation around Madras. Lord Cranborne replied that if the scheme would really yield nine per cent. the local government or the municipality should undertake it. Lord Napier has accordingly addressed the Secretary of State, soliciting authority for the Supreme Government to raise a loan of eight lacs, to be applied to the construction of the works necessary for the irrigation of 8,571 acres of ground, and for the supply of water within the municipal limits of Madras. The works are meanwhile going on from a grant of a lac of rupees from this year's Public Works budget. If the full grant is allowed, the works will be finished in two years.

AMENITIES OF JOURNALISM.—The Madras Athenaeum condemns, as the jobbery of a civilian clique, the appointment of Mr. E. F. Webster, a civilian of seven years' standing and a barrister-at-law, to act as a First Judge of the Small Cause Court for Mr. Busted, a pukka barrister. Mr. Ellis, a civilian barrister, was lately appointed to act for Sir Colley Scotland in the High Court. There can be no doubt that by such appointments the spirit of the law is violated. The writer condemns Lord Napier's civilian colleagues for this jobbery, and speaks of him as "poor Francis, Baron Napier," so true is it in India that personal questions more than principles are the standard by which the efficiency of men is judged.

THE MORTALITY AMONG THE MAIL HORSES.—The inquiry ordered by Government into the great loss in dak horses in these provinces has been brought to a close, and will, we trust, have its beneficial results. During the past eight years this epizootic has swept off 2,000 horses on the Bombay line alone, and this only extends from Kundwa to Agra, giving an average loss of 250 a-year. But this mortality, large as it may appear, does not show the correct number, as there are, unfortunately, no records of the casualties of 1860-61-62, which occurred between Indore and Agra, though it is well known the losses are larger. That the searching investigation, late as it is, will do much good, there can be no doubt. But the old adage of "shutting the stable-door when the steed is gone" is particularly applicable, as we regret to hear Mr. Quallett was not sent for till all, or nearly all, the horses were dead or dying. It is true two able reports are sent in, instructive for future guidance, but they cannot recall the great amount of property destroyed. Between Nagpore and Jubbulpore alone upwards of 500 horses died last year, and, taking their average value at Rs. 50 each, a loss is shown of Rs. 25,000; but if we add to this the 2,000 deaths on the Kundwa line, we may set down the total loss at Rs. 125,000 before the doctor and his able coadjutor, Mr. Hutchinson, were called in.—Central India Times, Feb. 23.

A CLERGYMAN IN CHARGE OF TROOPS.—I have just heard of a curious arrangement in the Madras Presidency. A clergyman is going home in charge of invalids, and although he is not entitled to a passage he receives £100 on arrival in England for the trouble of his command. This is the first time I ever heard of a clergyman taking charge of troops, but it is a losing game, as a passage home is more than the amount given as command allowance, because a married man can take his wife and family home for a very small amount when he himself has got a stern cabin.

THE KAMPTEE SCANDAL. The last phase of the Kamptee scandal, as reported to us by a correspondent, is that Lieutenant Watts has deserted the lady he eloped with, and gone with his corps to Cannanore; and that the young lady's father, who only lately received his commission for distinguished service, is under arrest.—Jubbulpore Commercial Advertiser, Feb. 27.

LORD AND LADY NAPIER were to leave Calcutta on the 7th, and may be expected at Madras therefore about Monday next, the 11th March. Lady Lawrence was also to leave Calcutta for the Hills to-day, but Sir John Lawrence is to remain some time longer in Calcutta.

BOMBAY.

MISCELLANEOUS.

PROPOSED AMALGAMATION OF THE BANKS OF BOMBAY AND BENGAL.—The most gratifying news Bombay has received during the past fortnight, says the Times of India, is that rescue is at hand for the unfortunate Bank of Bombay. From a statement made at a meeting of the shareholders of the bank—at which Mr. W. Loudon, C.S., was elected a director, in the place of Mr. W. R. Cassels, resigned—it appears that the directors of the Bank of Bombay have made certain proposals to the Bank of Bengal with a view to amalgamating the two institutions. In these proposals the directors of the Bank of Bengal have suggested some changes which will necessitate further correspondence, though there is now little room for doubt that the amalgamation of the two institutions will speedily be effected, ultimately resulting, in all likelihood, in the establishment of one State bank for the whole of India. After all the humiliations Bombay has passed through, it can afford to accept help even from so jealous a rival as Calcutta; and few indeed will be otherwise than well content that the Bank of Bengal should come to the relief of the shareholders of the Bank of Bombay. So far as we are able to gather from telegrams received from Calcutta, the basis of the arrangement proposed to be entered into by the two banks is, as follows:—the Bank of Bengal is to issue in Bombay shares for one crore of new capital—50 lakhs of it paid up. These shares, nominally for Rs. 1,000, are each to be offered to shareholders in the present Bank of Bombay, for every two shares in it held by them. The Bombay shareholder must pay up the Rs. 500 on the new shares, and the Bank of Bengal—through an agent immediately to be established—will take the two old shares as security for the unpaid Rs. 500. The present bank being at once put into liquidation, its assets will be handed over to the new institution to be placed to the account of the old shares or shareholders. If, when the liquidation of the present bank is completed, there should still be something lacking of the Rs. 1,000, the holders will then be asked to pay up the difference. Although, in taking the two shares of the present bank as security for the Rs. 500 unpaid on the new shares, the Bank of Bengal only reckons the old shares at Rs. 250 each—which is nearly 50 per cent. less than their present market value—there is taken into account the "goodwill" of the present business.

HORSES FOR INDIA.—The embargo placed a few years ago by the Sultan of Turkey on the exportation of horses from his dominions cut off India's best and most abundant supply of steeds. The countries bordering on the Persian Gulf had always been looked to as a never-failing source whence could be obtained, at very reasonable prices, horses not only "fit for saddle and harness," but also suitable as remounts for the cavalry regiments, and even for the artillery. To maintain a sufficient supply for the army, and also to procure an improved breed of horses independently of Arabia and Persia, the Government of India set about devoting greater attention than formerly to its own studs. Mares were imported from England, many of them really good animals; but several batches of stallions which followed, though selected for their high pedigree by officers appointed by the Secretary of State, were so wretchedly inferior that no improvement could be expected from them. In many Indian districts the breed of country horses is said to be at present so bad that a remount agent would have great difficulty in procuring a dozen serviceable horses from a whole province. Australia has done a great deal to supply the deficiency, but the change of climate and the risks of a long voyage, besides some other drawbacks, have prevented the Australian from taking the place of the Arab. It is therefore with great satisfaction that a telegram has been received from Sir Arnould Kemball, our resident at Baghdad, intimating that the remonstrances of the Indian Government with the Porte, through Lord Lyons, the Ambassador at Constantinople, had procured the rescission of the order prohibiting the exportation of horses. The number of steeds that will again be received from the Persian Gulf and the Red Sea will in all probability be greater in consequence of the long continuance of the prohibition now at length removed. —Times of India.

THE CAPTURE OF URATUBE.—The Invalide Russe gives the following account of the capture of Uratube, Ura Tinpia, not far from Kokan. The ancient fortress of Uratube was the chief bulwark of the Bokharians in the Syr Daria basin. The main route from Bokhara to Kokand passes by Uratube, which was the key to Kokand and Kokan. Russia found she could have no material guarantee against the Emir of Bokhara without the possession of this place. Accordingly, last September, troops were concentrated at Kojeud, composed of nineteen companies of infantry, five troops of Cossacks, and twenty-four guns, a month's provisions, 800 camels, and four months' medical stores. Count Dashkof spent three days in reconnoitring the fortifications. On the fourth, the Russian batteries played all night on the fortifications, and by the following evening, October 1st, breaches were made in the salient. The 2nd of October the storming took place, supported by the fire of artillery, among which were rifled cannon. An escalade was soon effected, the gates were broken open, and the defenders put to the sword, but a desperate fight took place, many Russians fell, the outward wall was assailed, and in an hour the city was entered. Many of the natives fought obstinately in the streets, but the citadel soon fell, and by seven in the morning the whole city was in possession of the Russian troops, with all its munitions of war. The Russians lost about 200 in killed and wounded, the Turkomans much more.

THE RIGHT HON. MR. SEYMOUR FITZGERALD was accompanied to Bombay by his sons, Captain Fitzgerald, who will be his private secretary, and Mr. M. Fitzgerald, who is as yet "unattached." His son-in-law, Captain Filgate, will hold the post of military secretary, and Captains Graham and Wake are his aides-de-camp. The right hon. gentleman took the oath and his seat before the Executive Council on the afternoon of March 6th, immediately after the departure of Sir Bartle Frere for England, by the P. and O. Company's steamer Malta. The new Governor held his first levee on the 9th March, in the Town Hall, at which upwards of four hundred persons were present. Mrs. Gerald Seymour Fitzgerald held a reception on the 11th March, which was also very numerously attended.

RAILWAY PROGRESS.—The special train from Bombay to Nagpore, on the opening of the line, did the whole distance of 520 miles in 24 hours. A model sleeping carriage for 12 bachelors had been sent out from England, and was used on this occasion. The special correspondent of the Bombay Gazette is enthusiastic in its praise. Closets and a tender for servants and baggage are attached. Carriages like those used on the East India line, with four berths in each compartment, have been ordered for ladies. Such accommodation will be indispensable in the three days' journey between Calcutta and Bombay.

FRONTIER POLITICS.—The Delhi Gazette says:—"We are glad to hear that there is every probability of the disagreement with the tribes in the neighbourhood of Dera Gaze Khan being settled amicably. The Ketran party of the late raiders was accompanied by Khadar Bukhsh Khan, son of Syud Khan, the brother of Babul Khan, the chief of the Ketranes. The latter sent a despatch to the Deputy Commissioner about a week after the raid, in which he indignantly disclaims any sympathy with the conduct of his nephew, over whom he said he had no control, and avers that the men who were with him were a lawless rabble, who almost entirely ignored his authority, and he prayed that he might not be held responsible for their acts. The question of course occurs, whether or no he was aware that his nephew with the marauders was going to join with Golam Hussain in a raid upon British territory. If he did not know it, of course he must be excused, but if he did know it, he assuredly failed in his loyalty and friendship towards our Government in not having at once communicated the intelligence of preparations for the proposed expedition. No doubt the Deputy Commissioner will be able to find out the truth of the matter. Surdar Khan has died of his wounds. This is the only death on our side, but it will probably be considered by the Mussosrees as a fair set-off against the death of Golam Hussain."

THE MARINE COURT OF INQUIRY appointed to report on the sinking of a native vessel in Bombay, in December last, by the P. and O. Co.'s steamer Emue, has exonerated the pilot from all blame, as the native vessel in question had not exhibited the prescribed lights.

COTTON EXPORTED FROM SCINDE.—The Collector of Customs at Kurrachee has submitted a statement to Government, from which it appears that during the last month 1,878 candles and 484 lbs. of cotton, of the value of 3,70,915 rupees, was shipped from the ports in Scinde to Liverpool and London.

IT IS STATED THAT THE G. I. P. RAILWAY is now desirous of changing the site of its terminus from Moody Bay to Boree Bunder, the reason assigned being that it could but be employed for goods and passengers instead of for passengers only.

A PROSPECTUS has been issued of the Bengal Science Association to promote the development of social science in that Presidency. The Hon. W. Seton Karr is to be president.

THE LATE CONFEDERATE STEAMER Shenandoah, having resumed her old name of the Sea King, is now in Bombay harbour. She has been purchased by the Sultan of Zanzibar, and is to be used as a pleasure yacht.

THE INCREASE OF AREA UNDER COTTON CULTIVATION in the Bombay Presidency is about 268,000 acres, with an estimated increase in crop of 40,000 candies, representing an export value over last year of £1,000,000.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, POONA, the first stone of which was laid by Sir Bartle Frere in August, 1863, was consecrated by the Bishop of Bombay on the 5th March.

THE MARSHAL OF THE BOMBAY HOUSE OF CORRECTION has been suspended for exercising undue severity towards the prisoners in his charge.

MAJOR GODFREY CLERK, who was Military Secretary to Sir Bartle Frere, is to be Assistant Transport Agent in Egypt in connection with the Overland Transport Service.

DR. LIVINGSTONE.—Intelligence has been received from Zanzibar confirming the sad news regarding the murder of Dr. Livingstone.

CAPTAIN WALTER PHILIP WALSH has been appointed Commissioned Instructor of Musketry to the Bombay Volunteers.

He had come over from Umritsar for practice; was walking on the morning of the 21st Feb. from one house to another, when passing the dak bungalow he felt so unwell as to induce him to go in for a glass of soda water. He lay down on a charpae and was found dead when the attending servant returned to the room.—Delhi Gazette.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

In reply to Mr. OLIPHANT,
Lord STANLEY stated that the garrison at Japan was maintained there with the perfect goodwill of the Japanese Government. The arrangement was of a temporary character, but its duration must depend upon the state of that country. There were not many papers on the subject, but what there were could be laid upon the table.

MISCELLANEOUS.

4TH HUSSARS.—It is understood that the majority, which will be created when the regiment is put on the strength of the Indian establishments in September, will be given to Major Wirgman, late of the Inniskillings. This will be rather hard on the senior captain, Browne, but it is only a choice of hardships, and some one must suffer under the present system, which is not the fault of the Horse Guards.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for Government bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 4th inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were: to Calcutta, 15,50,000 rupees; to Madras, 5,00,000 rupees; and to Bombay, 12,00,000 rupees. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 11½d. per rupee on Calcutta and Madras, and at 2s. on Bombay. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras, at 1s. 11½d. will receive about 61 per cent.; and on Bombay, at 2s., about 31 per cent. Those above these prices will receive in full. The fact that the rates obtained are about 2 per cent. higher than on the last occasion shows that the revival in the demand for the means of remittance to India still goes on.

COMMERCIAL BANK CORPORATION OF INDIA AND THE EAST.—A meeting of shareholders of the Commercial Bank Corporation of India and the East was held on Thursday (yesterday), at the London Tavern, when resolutions approving a project for resuscitating the bank on a plan somewhat similar to that which has proved successful in the case of the Agra Bank were carried unanimously. The creditors have already received 10s. in the pound, and it is proposed to obtain their consent to receive the remainder in four equal instalments, spread over two years.

AGRA AND MASTERMAN'S BANK.—A meeting of the shareholders of the Agra and Mastermans Bank (Limited) will be held at the London Tavern on Tuesday, 16th April, at one o'clock, for the purpose of receiving the report of the committee appointed at the meeting held in October last, and of passing such resolutions as to adopting the same and giving the consequent directions on the subject as in the opinion of the meeting shall be proper. And immediately after the termination of the above, the ordinary general meeting of the members of the Agra Bank (Limited) will take place.

SCINDE, PUNJAB, AND DELHI BANK.—At a meeting, March 27, of the shareholders of the Scinde, Punjab, and Delhi Bank, convened by the liquidators, resolutions were passed approving their accounts, and fixing their remuneration. The shareholders also passed votes of thanks to the directors of the bank, the liquidators, and the National Bank of India for the way the liquidation had been effected.

BANK OF HINDUSTAN, CHINA, AND JAPAN.—The first dividend of 5s. in the pound to the creditors of the Bank of Hindustan, China, and Japan was paid yesterday by the liquidators.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, March 28.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Euxine, with the heavy portion of the above mail, has arrived here. She brings thirty-four passengers, £3,121 in specie, seventy-two bundles of ivory, and ninety packages of sundries. Across the Bay and up Channel she experienced westerly winds. On the 20th inst. she spoke the steamer Syria, and on the 24th the China.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY INDIA AND CHINA MAILS. — (SOUTHAMPTON, April 2.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Tanjore, with the above mails, arrived here to-day with 171 passengers, £3,000 in specie, and a general cargo, including 973 bales of silk, value £85,000. From Gibraltar she encountered strong northerly winds and head seas.

THE LATEST THING IN HATS.—We have been requested to draw attention to a monster solar hat, patented by Messrs. E. L. Beke and Co., of this city. The hat measures twenty-seven inches in length, twenty-two inches in breadth, and is twelve inches deep; not only large enough to protect the head against sunstroke—its avowed purpose—but sufficiently large and buoyant, we should imagine, to serve as a canoe on occasions of emergency. We commend it to the consideration of all in want of a really serviceable article. In our travels in South Africa we have seen Caffre huts not very much larger.—Indian Daily News, Feb. 21.

A CHEQUE for three lacs and fifty thousand rupees drawn by one Toolseydass Vullubdass upon a certain bank, and payable to Mr. W. H. Crawford (solicitor), was discovered a few days ago by a boatman near the Apollo Bunder, who handed it to Mr. MacElwain, inspector of police, and the latter made it over to Mr. Crawford.

ORIENTAL MANUSCRIPTS

(CHIEFLY PERSIAN),

SELECTED FROM THE LIBRARY OF

DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D.,

AND FOR SALE BY

MESSRS. WM. H. ALLEN AND CO., 13, WATERLOO-PLACE, LONDON.

. In ordering from this List, please state the Number, first word of Title, and Price.

84. TAFSIRI KURAN.—“An Exposition of the Kur'an,” sometimes called “Tafsiri Husaini,” from the author's name, HUSAIN VA'IZ (v. No. 74). This is a very celebrated translation of and commentary on the Kur'an. The whole of the Arabic text is inserted, written in a fine bold Naskhi hand. The Persian translation and expositions are written in a smaller but very beautiful Nasta'lik. This MS. contains only the latter half of the work, but it is quite complete in itself. It commences with what in Sale's translation is styled the fortieth chapter, entitled “The True Believer,” containing eighty-five verses. It is in the highest state of preservation, written on fine strong paper. Transcribed at Ispahan, A.D. 1663. Folio, pp. 777, ll. 25. £3. 13s. 6d.

86. RAUZATU-L-SAFA.—This is the first volume of the great historical work which we have already partially described (v. Nos. 7 and 54). This first volume contains:—A general Preface. An Introduction to the Importance and utility of history, and the advantages to be derived from its study. An account of the creation of the world and of the deluge. Account of the Patriarchs, Prophets, and Kings of Israel, the Virgin Mary, St. John, Jesus Christ, the Seven Sleepers, and St. George. History of the Peshdadian and Kaianian Kings of Persia. Account of Alexander the Great and of the ancient philosophers. The Ashkanian and Sasanian dynasties, to Yazdajird, the last of the Kings of the race of Sasan. This MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, with several marginal notes and amendments. It is written on good Indian paper, in a fair Ta'lik character. Small folio, pp. 533, ll. 20. £2. 2s.

87. TUHFATU-L-HIND.—This is a very fairly-written copy of a work we have already described (v. No. 30), composed by MIRZA KHAN during the reign of Aurangzeb. It is in a perfect state of preservation. Small folio, pp. 357, ll. 20. £2. 2s.

88. SURAHU-L-LUGHAT.—This is a well-known and valuable Arabic Dictionary, explained in Persian. It is an abridgment of a much older Lexicon, entitled “Sihahu-l-Lughat,” by AL JAUHARI. The present work was transcribed in the forty-fifth year of the reign of 'Alamgir. It is in a very fair state of preservation, written in a clear Ta'lik character on good Indian paper, with ruled margins. According to Stewart, “it is one of the most useful Lexicons of the Arabic language.” (Along with the Surah is bound up a fragment of No. 126, ll. 28.) Small folio, pp. 1185, ll. 21. £3. 3s.

90. DIVANI MAULAVI RUMI.—“The Diwan of Maulavi Jalalu-l-Din Rumi,” author of the Masnavi (v. No. 65). This work is generally, though improperly, called the “Divan of Shams Tabrizi,” simply because Maulavi Rumi has adopted in the Ghazals the Takhallus, or poetic name of Shams, out of compliment to his venerated preceptor, Shams of Tabriz. This MS. is (so far as it goes) in a perfect condition, written on fine glazed paper, in a very fair Ta'lik character. It is imperfect at the end, but I know not to what extent, as I have not a second copy with which to collate it. Small folio, pp. 220, ll. 23. £1. 11s. 6d.

91. TOTA KAHANI.—“Tales of a Parrot.” A translation from the Persian Tuti Nama (v. No. 37) of Muhammad Kadari into the Urdu or Court dialect of the Hindustani. It is a well-known elementary work, and was published here by me thirteen years ago, and furnished with a vocabulary. The Urdu translator was SAYYID HAIDAR BAKHSI (v. Preface to my edition). This copy belonged to the late Dr. Gilchrist, and is written in a clear Ta'lik character. It was evidently transcribed early in the present century. It is in the highest state of preservation. Small folio, pp. 127, ll. 13. £1. 11s. 6d.

92. BAGH O BAHAR.—“The Garden and Spring.” A well-known work in the Urdu dialect, by MIR AMMAN, of Dihli. It is an elegant translation of the Persian “Kissae Chahar Darwesh” (v. No. 65b). It is in excellent preservation, written in a fine bold Ta'lik character similar to the preceding. It has been repeatedly published by me in this country, and furnished with a vocabulary of all the words. 4to. pp. 477, ll. 14. £1. 11s. 6d.

93. GULDASTA-E HAIDARI.—“Haidari's Nosegay.” This is another work in the Urdu dialect, by HAIDAR BAKHSI, the author of No. 91. It consists of three distinct treatises: 1. A collection of Tales and Anecdotes; 2. A Diwan, or collection of Ghazals, etc.; and 3. A Biography of Hindustani Poets, alphabetically arranged. This third portion has not been completed. The MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written on fine India paper, in a very fair Ta'lik character, pp. 463, ll. 13. £3. 3s.

94. SARF O NAHWI' ARABI.—“A Treatise on Arabic Grammar,” explained in Persian, by AMIR HAIDAR HUSAINI BALGRAMI, who composed the work in A.D. 1799. The MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written on good India paper, in a very clear Ta'lik character. The work is divided into two parts: 1. On Syntax, pp. 80; and 2. On Inflection, pp. 92; in all, pp. 172, ll. 15. To this is appended, in a different hand, a Treatise on Urdu Grammar, author unknown, pp. 100, ll. 8. Folio. £2. 12s. 6d.

95. MIFTAHI KULUBU-L-MUBTADIN.—“The Key (for opening) the Hearts of Tyros.” Valuable Selections of easy Tales and Anecdotes from various Persian authors, collected and written, as stated at the beginning of the volume, by the Lady of Mr. William Augustus Brooke. The MS. is in a state of perfect preservation, written on good Indian paper, in a very distinct Ta'lik character. Large 4to. pp. 322, ll. 15. £2. 12s. 6d.

96. GULISTANI SA'DI.—“The Rose Garden of Sa'di.” This is a well-known and much-admired work on Religion, Politics, and Morality, by SA'DI of Shiraz, already mentioned (v. Ho. 64, etc.). It is a favourite text-book with beginners in the study of Persian both in Asia and in Europe. This copy is in a state of perfect preservation, written in a plain Ta'lik character, on good strong paper, with numerous explanatory notes both in the margin and interlined with the text. Royal 8vo. pp. 212, ll. 15. £1. 11s. 6d.

97. DIWANI ANWARI.—“The Diwan of Anwari.” This is a very fine copy of the work already described under No. 68. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written on fine strong paper, in a beautiful Ta'lik character. It was transcribed in A.D. 1664. Royal 8vo. pp. 700, ll. 17. £4. 4s.

99. INSHA'E ABU-L-FAZL.—This is a copy of No. 63, already described. The first and second portions of it, containing the Correspondence, are well written in the Shikastamez. The third part, containing the Kachkol, is written in a very distinct Ta'lik character. The whole of it is in very good condition, in the original Oriental binding, 4to. pp. 600, ll. 15+17. £1. 11s. 6d.

N.B.—This work is sometimes called “Mukatabati 'Allami” or the Correspondence of 'Allami, the word 'Allami being the surname of Abu-l-Fazl.

100. SIYARU-L-MUTAKKHARIN.—“The History of the Moderns,” i.e. of the Mogul Empire, from the death of Aurang Zeb to A.D. 1780, at which time the author, MIR GHULAM HUSAIN KHAN, wrote. A portion of the work, comprising about one-fifth of the whole, has been translated by General BRIGGS. This MS. is in the highest state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character on very fine paper, with richly-ruled margin. 4to. pp. 398, ll. 19. £2. 12s. 6d.

101. SHAHNAMA.—This volume comprises upwards of 16,000 couplets, or about one-fourth of Firdausi's famous Epic Poem, the “Shahnama.” The work is so celebrated and well known as to require no description here. This copy seems to have been written in four volumes, of which this appears to have been the second or third. It is in the most complete state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on very fine paper, with neatly ruled margins, and interleaved throughout with fine writing paper. 4to. pp. 321, ll. 25. £2. 12s. 6d.

102. KHWANI N'IMAT.—“The Table of Bounty.” A work partly historical and partly literary, relating to the early part of the reign of Aurangzeb Alamgir. It was composed about the period described by N'imat Khan 'Ali. It is mentioned in Elliott's “Historians of India” as “Waki'ati N'imat Khan 'Ali.” This MS. is in a fair state of preservation, only slightly soiled by damp. It is written in a very fine Ta'lik character, on good Indian paper. Royal 8vo. pp. 229, ll. 15. 15s.

103. MASIRI TALIBI.—“The Travels of Talib,” by MIRZA ABU TALIB KHAN, who visited this country early in the present century. The work has been since translated by C. STEWART, Esq., 1814. The present copy is in the highest state of preservation, written in a very distinct Ta'lik character, on very fine paper, and richly bound in the Oriental style. The author's description of London and its institutions is highly interesting, as he was the first intelligent native of India that ever visited this country. 4to. pp. 658, ll. 15, £3. 3s.

104. GULISTANI SA'DI.—“Gulistan of Sa'di.” This is a copy of the work already described under No. 96. It is in a state of thorough preservation, written in a very distinct Ta'lik character, on good strong paper. The Arabic quotations are written in Naskhi and fully pointed. Transcribed in A.D. 1819. Large 8vo. pp. 295, ll. 11. £3. 3s.

106. GULISTANI SA'DI.—“Gulistan of Sa'di.” This is a most valuable exemplar of Nos. 96, etc. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written in the fairest Ta'lik character, on very fine Indian paper, with ruled margin. The text is copiously underlined with explanations of the more difficult words; and on the margin, which is very spacious, are inserted numerous extracts from the more esteemed commentators explanatory of the author's meaning in all doubtful passages. It is altogether a most valuable work for those who have made some progress in the language. Royal 8vo. pp. 220, ll. 13. £3. 3s.

107. KHAMSA-E NIZAMI.—“The Khamsa of Nizami.” This is another copy of that already described under No. 88, etc. Unfortunately it has been exposed to damp, in consequence of which many of the pages are scarcely legible, with the exception of the romance of “Laili and Majnun,” of the “Haft Paikar,” and the “Secandernama.” It is written in a very fine Ta'lik character, with neatly ruled margins. Transcribed in A.D. 1627. Small folio, pp. 683, ll. 22. £1. 1s.

108. TAZKIRATU-L-TIBB.—“A Treatise on Medicine.” This curious work may be called “The Physician's Vade-Mecum.” It treats of all kinds of diseases and their remedies. The text is written in verse and numbers 150 chapters, each accompanied with numerous notes and explanations on the margin. The author's name has not been ascertained. It is in a good state of preservation, written in a fair Ta'lik character, interleaved throughout. 8vo. pp. 152, ll. 17. £1. 1s.

THE HISTORY OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE IN INDIA.

FROM THE
APPOINTMENT OF LORD HARDINGE
TO THE
COMPANY.

BY
LIONEL JAMES TROTTER,
Late of the 2nd Bengal Fusiliers.

The first volume of this History embraces the period from Lord Hardinge's appointment in 1844 to the retirement of the Marquis of Dalhousie in 1856.

The second volume commences with the arrival of Lord Canning in India in 1856, and closes with his lordship's death in 1862. This being the most eventful period in the annals of the East India Company, including the Mutiny, great pains has been taken in its narration.

"Captain Trotter has done good service in providing the public with the sequel to a standard work. . . . And in every way his performance is worthy to take rank with that of his predecessor. . . . The thoroughly satisfactory manner in which the task has been performed is greatly to the author's credit. . . . We take our leave of the work, congratulating its author upon having produced an addition to the 'History of India' at once permanent in purpose and popular in execution; acceptable in every way to the wants of the public, and especially adapted for the enlightenment of young members of the local service, to whom the modern annals of the country which they help to administer are of far more importance than the history of remote periods having little or no relation to the present day."—Standard.

"Both the plan and execution of the work are deserving of high praise. Full of interest and animation, and narrates with clearness and brevity all that took place during the period of which it treats. . . . The second volume of Mr. Trotter's history possesses the same merits by which the first was distinguished. It is written with great animation, and often with considerable graphic power. It tells its story with perspicuity and without needless or tiresome digressions. It avoids as far as possible that controversial vein into which Indian politicians and historians are alike prone to fall, and it is as impartial as any work is likely to be which deals with times so near our own. . . . The narrative of the spirit-stirring events of the mutiny will of course have the greatest attraction for most readers, and it is in truth the best, as it is the principal part of the present volume. . . . It appears to us that Mr. Trotter has been eminently successful in his treatment of a very exciting and interesting period of recent history."—London Review.

"The volume is full of interesting matter comprising every event of importance during the exciting period of the rebellion, told in a concise, straightforward, and impartial manner, unimpaired by those copious extracts from documentary evidence which often serve no other purpose than increasing the bulk without adding to the usefulness of a work of this description."—Observer.

"Captain Trotter's reflections are few. . . . He has his own views, though he does not force them upon us in detail. . . . All this proves him to be far above the narrowness of the average Anglo-Indian. He speaks out boldly, too, in defence of Lord Gough. . . . A word as to our author's descriptive powers; they are such as his lighter writings would lead us to expect. . . . Whatever he has to tell Captain Trotter tells it in an animated and picturesque style. The night on the field at Ferozeshahur. . . . is admirably painted; so is the grand success of Goojrat. The disarming of the veterans of the Khalsa. . . . is a striking scene. Captain Trotter's book opens up many other interesting questions; it is full of notices of social changes; it points out the specially unfortunate way in which the annexation of Oudh was managed."—Fortnightly Review, May 15.

"Here we have before us the first volume of an eminently readable history. . . . The arrangement of the matter, the style, and, above all, the spirit which pervades his pages, are worthy of great commendation. Mr. Trotter is singularly free from the faults of a partisan writer. . . . The volume concludes with a masterly criticism on Lord Dalhousie's character and services."—Calcutta Englishman, March 17.

"We cannot say that he has dealt unjustly by Lord Canning's memory. . . . A well-considered volume, in which the heartiest acknowledgments are paid to Lord Canning for his temperate wisdom at a time when there was no man more abused than he. . . . He writes thoughtfully, yet with a soldier's sense of the stir of a brisk military narrative. His history of this great struggle is full and impartial. . . . We need not follow him through his vigorous rehearsal of the well-known incidents. It forms a very lucid history, the several parts being well planned and well grouped, and no important point being omitted or misrepresented."—Examiner, September 15.

DYSENTERY, CHOLERA, FEVER, AGUE, ETC. CHLORODYNE.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a certain cure in Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colic, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases." From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when all other remedies had failed."

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne; that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See the Times, July 13, 1864.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

DR. LOWE, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered the patient recovered.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the best and most certain remedy in Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is publicly acknowledged by the most eminent Physicians of London to be the most effectual remedy ever discovered. To prevent fraud, the Government have authorised a Stamp, with the words Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne engraved thereon, without which none can be genuine. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London. The immense demand enables the proprietors to reduce the price; it is now sold in bottles, 1s. 1/2d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s.

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the PEOPLE of INDIA

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,

Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"If the manufacturer studies this book carefully he may add thousands a year to his profits, and there are not five books in the world of which that could be said. Altogether this book is thoroughly creditable to Dr. Forbes Watson's industry and acumen, and to the liberality of the India-office."—Spectator, Jan. 5, 1867.

"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Mr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art, luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India not only deserves the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS.

—Fistulas, piles, excoriations, and strictures are speedily relieved and ultimately removed by applying this Ointment after fomentation with warm water. Persons suffering from these scourges of the human frame should arrest their progress at once, for it is both insidious and rapid. Fistulas, if allowed to go on unchecked, not only weaken the nervous system, but destroy life. The sooner these unsightly remedies are used the more certain is success; yet none need despair; hopeless cases have often yielded, and the sufferer has been saved a painful death. In excoriations, a few applications of this healing Ointment will cure, while the Pills, conjointly used, are especially beneficial in relaxing and removing strictures, whatever their situation or duration.

STOPPING and RESTORING TENDER and DECAYED TEETH.—Anodyne Cement instantly as hard as enamel, allays pain, and restores the tooth to use, even though broken nearly to the gum. An entirely new description of Artificial Teeth, without springs or wires, lighter, more durable, and economical than any yet introduced. Supplied only by Mr. ALFRED JONES, Surgeon-dentist to their late R.H. the Princess Augusta, the Duchess of Gloucester, &c. Daily from Eleven till Five. Mr. Alfred Jones has no connection with any person assuming his name.—64, Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

The Calcutta mail brings us our usual files of papers, from Calcutta to the 14th, Madras to the 14th, and Bombay to the 20th of March.

In Calcutta the Budget was not better liked on better acquaintance. The "Mon-grel" License Tax, as the Friend of India calls it, was especially condemned. It received the sanction of the Viceroy on March 8. An amendment, increasing the maximum amount paid by individuals from £20 to £50 per annum was adopted, but a proposal excluding incomes below £50 from liability to the tax was negatived. Incomes of £20 per annum are subject to the tax, and the measure has in consequence caused great dissatisfaction. It is said that the Bengal Chamber of Commerce have determined to remonstrate against the tax. The Friend says that Mr. Massey was obstinate in his adherence to the measure, adding:—"With the exception of Mr. Riddell, his colleagues, executive and legislative, were dumb. The non-official members, Messrs. Cowie and Skinner, aided by the Maharajah of Burdwan, fought stoutly for the poor—for raising the minimum from incomes of Rs. 200 to Rs. 500 a-year, or at least to Rs. 300. We have failed to obtain the official report of the discussion, the publication of which should not be so long delayed. But we cannot believe that Mr. Massey talked such nonsense as one of the Calcutta papers puts into his mouth, about the revolutionary danger of confiscating the property of the rich for the benefit of the poor. His sop to Calcutta and Bombay, of allowing the local licence taxes already paid to count towards the general tax, was weak, as we have shown elsewhere, and will be fruitless. To only one little instalment of justice would he consent, the taxation of a higher grade of incomes above Rs. 25,000, which are to pay Rs. 500 a-year. Mr. Massey must bitterly regret that he did not give the public the fair and fruitful tax for which all classes were prepared. This must yet be done, but the task will now be far more difficult for himself or his successor."

It was stated as not improbable that Mr. Davies, the Financial Commissioner of Oude, will be Mr. Temple's successor in the Central Provinces.

According to a Calcutta paper, the Government of India have issued a most extraordinary order. No officer, European or native, is, it is said, to be allowed to visit a native prince without previously obtaining the sanction of the Supreme Government. Our readers need scarcely be reminded that the great drawback upon our success in India is the want of personal intercourse between the European and native communities.

It is stated that Sir Walter Morgan, Chief Justice of the Agra High Court, is clearing out the Augean stable of the old Sudder and threatening some of the inefficient judges in the provinces.

The latest reports upon the famine will be found noticed in another column.

The news famine continues in Madras. The following is the only paragraph referring to the presidency in one of the local summaries:—"We have no local news of any kind to chronicle. Lord Napier is hourly expected at the presidency on his return from Calcutta, and the Commander-in-Chief, Sir Gaspard Le Marchant is at the Hills, whither he hurried without completing his tour of inspection." A few paragraphs, however, will be found among our extracts.

The latest news in Bombay was contained in a telegram dated Calcutta, March 8th, and is to this effect:—"It is proposed that the new bank to be formed by the amalgamation of the presidency banks shall be named the Central Bank of India. The directors of the Bank of Bombay want to pay their share of the new capital by instalments. The Bengal Chamber of Commerce have determined to remonstrate against the new Licence Tax Act."

The following appointments on the personal staff of H. E. the Hon. Seymour Fitzgerald have been officially announced: Mr. Gerard Seymour V. Fitzgerald, private secretary; Mr. Townley P. H. McCartney Filgate, late captain Scots Grays, to be military secretary; Captain J. Gordon Graham, 1st Royal Dragoons, and Captain A. J. Wake, R.A., to be aide-de-camp; and Assist.-surgeon J. Cruickshank, M.D., to be surgeon.

It will be seen that Captain Filgate, whose supposed appointment to the military secretaryship, after having sold out of the army, caused so much clamour, is simply private secretary, a post open to any man, whether military or civilian. There is an impression, however, afloat that the new governor is inclined to nepotism. One of the stories in circulation is that he has taken out nineteen members of the Fitzgerald family!

A circular has been issued making the announcement that—"A movement has at last been made in this presidency with the view of presenting a testimonial to some of those gentlemen at home who have so perseveringly advocated the interests of the officers of the Indian army. The concessions made in colonels' allowances alone, to say nothing of the increase of rank, pay, and allowances, are attributable to the exertions of the Home Committee; and when we bear in mind the very large number of officers who already, or must eventually, reap handsome pecuniary advantages, we cannot but hope that the amount realised will prove that disinterested exertions are sure to meet with reward. The officers moving in the matter have left the amount of subscriptions entirely optional, but lieut. colonels and majors cannot well subscribe less than from 75 to 100 rupees, captains 30 to 50, and lieutenants 10 or 15, or as much more as they like. If these sums are forthcoming from both local and Staff Corps officers generally, they will have no reason to be ashamed of the amount realised. The Oriental Bank Corporation, Bombay, will receive any subscriptions to credit of Lieut-colonel Cahusac, Amalgamation Committee Testimonial Fund.

Sir Robert Napier, the Commander-in-Chief of the Bombay army, is on a tour of inspection through the Southern division of the Presidency.

The official report for the Southern division of the Bombay Presidency shows an increase of cotton under cultivation over last year of 94,400 acres, with an estimated increase in yield of 10,000,000 lbs.

Mr. Justice Sargent has made an order for the immediate payment of the calls on all the contributories of the Alliance Financial Association of Bombay who have not yet paid up.

Mr. Justice Arnould has ordered the Bombay and Mahim Financial Corporation to be wound up by the High Court of Bombay.

Miss Mary Carpenter, of Bristol, leaves for England to-day (March 20). She has received several addresses from different sections of the native community.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay mail, which is due in London on the 20th inst.

RAILWAY PROSPECTS IN THE PUNJAB.

THE Delhi Gazette notices an official paper which places beyond a doubt the absolute necessity of the continuation of the Punjab line of railway down the valley of the Indus, and also establishes the certainty that the returns would be very handsome—a conclusion upon which, it appears, doubt has been expressed in certain "high quarters" in India.

In some papers published some time since on the subject of bringing railway accommodation nearer to the very important mart of Ferozepoor by means of an extension, from the present nearest point of the Punjab line to the right bank of the river, a table was given of the up and down Sutlej traffic, for seventy-one and seventy-seven days respectively. The number of boats moving up and down during those several periods was stated to be 221 up and 171 down, and the quantity of goods conveyed by them to have been 45,252 maunds up and 110,584 maunds down, giving a total of 155,836 up and down, or an average per day of upwards of 2,000 maunds. It was estimated in those papers, assuming that a considerable portion of this traffic would, on account of the very low prices of some of the items, such as wheat, gram, &c., continue to be conveyed by boat, that there would be quite enough left in the shape of goods of a higher price to pay a respectable interest on the proposed branch capital, while the additional traffic thus attracted to the Punjab Railway would materially improve the returns on that line, which so much requires the fostering assistance of branches and feeders. The correctness of the returns upon which these calculations were founded was challenged upon the grounds that they referred only to the most favourable time of the year; but this fact had, it seems, been allowed for, and some further papers referred to by our contemporary fully confirm the original statement.

The further return alluded to is one embracing the whole boat traffic on the Indus for the year 1855-56, from which it appears that the number of boats that left Ferozepoor during that year and passed Rajanpoor (below the junction of the Sutlej and the Indus), but not including those that may have stopped at intermediate stations, was 1,164; and that they conveyed goods reported to weigh 4,73,941 maunds, giving a daily average of close on 1,300 maunds. "Now, considering," says the Delhi Gazette, "that the railway calculations were obtained at the best season of the year, and that during some months the Sutlej is next to impassable, the discrepancy is, comparatively speaking, trifling, for about the very time that the returns were prepared we find from the official paper before us that 473 boats left Ferozepoor, while during the unpropitious months the number was only sixty-nine."

It is stated on the same authority that no less than 11,53,490 maunds of goods were conveyed upwards by country boats only, past Rajanpoor (the aggregate of the Oriental Company's and Indus flotilla freights would have increased this figure very largely), while the down traffic was represented by the enormous figure of 54,67,348 maunds, total up and down 66,20,838 maunds, affording a daily average of over eighteen thousand maunds, of which one-third certainly, but more probably one-half, would be conveyed by the line, were railway communication open between Mooltan and Kotree.

It is feared in India that the recent change in Victoria-street may retard the progress of the projected line; but it is not to be supposed that Sir Stafford Northcote is less alive than his predecessor to the great public object involved, and we trust soon to see the undertaking fairly set on foot.

The early construction of the line has, we believe, been urged both by Sir Donald McLeod, the Lieut-governor of the Punjab, and by Sir Bartle Frere, the late Governor of Bombay, on commercial as well as on strategic and political grounds; and, from the movements in Central Asia and from other causes already in operation, the speedy completion of this railway may soon become a near and pressing necessity.

"MASTERLY INACTIVITY."

MR. MASSEY's Budget is beyond all bearing. India, let us hope, is not yet a — "Land to hastening ills a prey,

Where wealth accumulates and men decay;"

but appearances point to such a state of things in the future. For it seems that as wealth becomes more, statesmanship becomes less, as the "ways" develop the "means" decrease—the position being one in which there is plenty of money but no finance.

Under the old system we were content to ascribe the chronic deficit to—the old system. But since the new system has been in force, and making both ends meet has become a recognised requirement, the break down assumes a serious aspect. A new policy is demanded, and as yet it has not been found. Finance is long but financiers are fleeting. Mr. Wilson sacrificed his life, Mr. Laing and Sir Charles Trevelyan their reputations, in attempting the task of reorganisation. Mr. Wilson was by far the most competent of the three; but all went too far in their several ways. Mr. Wilson exaggerated thoroughness, Mr. Laing exaggerated dexterity, Sir Charles Trevelyan exaggerated compromise. As for Mr. Massey, he exaggerates doing nothing at all. For as far as any idea of his own is concerned, the Budget is quite barren; while even the measures which he has adopted—with the exception of the decisive policy as to public works—are only a series of hand to mouth expedients.

A very brief glance at the scheme will show its weakness:—The deficit of the year about to expire is £2,395,247, but it may be set against the unexpectedly large surplus of the previous year, amounting to £2,800,189, a third of which is nominal, owing to the new system of keeping accounts. Putting reproductive irrigation works, for which a loan of two millions is to be raised, under the head of debt—estimating opium so low as £115 a chest—carrying out the Tariff Committee's recommendations so far as to increase the export duty on grain from 2 to 3 annas, and the import duty on sparkling wines from Rs. 1 to Rs. 1-8 a gallon, and taking credit for half a million from increased judicial stamps, Mr. Massey would still have £1,057,522 to meet. Half a million of this he hopes to get out of a tax on trades and professions, and the deficit of £557,522 he proposes to convert into a surplus of £442,478 by a second loan of a million sterling for the erection of barracks on which so much as £2,800,000 is to be spent in the coming year.

But one part of the measure is worse than weak. The tax upon trades and professions—which is really an income-tax in its worst and most invidious form—allows the rich to escape, while it rigorously racks the poor, and must have been intended to have that effect. According to the conditions laid down, everybody in India, except fundholders, landholders, regimental and police officers under the rank of field officers, and other officials who have less than Rs. 1,000 a year, will have to pay an annual sum rising from Rs. 4 on incomes of from Rs. 200 to Rs. 500; to Rs. 10 on incomes between Rs. 500 and Rs. 1,000; Rs. 20 between Rs. 1,000 and Rs. 5,000; Rs. 100 between Rs. 5,000 and Rs. 10,000; and Rs. 200 above Rs. 10,000. No income above Rs. 10,000 will pay more than Rs. 200 however large it may be. Joint-stock companies alone, which have no pocket in the same sense that they are said to have no conscience, are to pay higher rates. The company with a paid up capital of ten lakhs will pay Rs. 2,000, that between five and ten lakhs Rs. 1,000, and all below whose profits have been above Rs. 1,00,000 or have paid at the rate of five per cent. dividend a year in the previous half-year, will pay Rs. 500. The Government of India may exempt any tribe, class or person. Officials with salaries below Rs. 1,000 a year are very properly excluded, and the tax will be deducted from the salaries of the others.

The tax, indeed, seems expressly designed to please the powerful classes whom it wholly exempts or lets down very lightly, at the expense of the unhappy millions whose discontent can do no harm. And this pitiful policy, it appears, has for its object the gain of only half a million of money!

MASSACRES IN THE ANDAMAN ISLANDS.—A report has reached Liverpool from Mr. Barge, chief officer of the ship Assam Valley, recently arrived at Akyab from Bombay, that on the voyage the ship called at the little Andaman Island, and that the captain, second officer, carpenter, and five of the crew went on shore to cut spars. Those who remained on board the ship saw them surrounded in a short time by a large crowd of islanders, who are notorious for their savage and brutal propensities. The ship lay off the island for three days, but no human beings except the natives could be seen, and ultimately Mr. Barge thought the most discreet plan would be to sail for the nearest port and give information. The vessel is owned by a Liverpool firm, and managed by Messrs. Moran, Galloway, and Co., of Liverpool. About ten months ago six men belonging to an American barque went ashore on the same island and were murdered.

THE MALTA AND ALEXANDRIA TELEGRAPH CABLE.—A Malta telegram, dated yesterday, states that telegraphic communication between Malta and Alexandria, which had been interrupted since Wednesday last, was again restored.

SIR WILLIAM MUIR will probably resume charge of the Foreign Office in the course of a few days, after his brief visit to England. The hon. gentleman left Agra for England via Bombay immediately after the Durbar, on three months' leave. On Friday last he reached Nagpore on his return; and after spending a day or two with Mr. Temple, was to leave for Calcutta. In all probability Sir William will take charge of the Foreign Office on Thursday next.—Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, March 11.

BENGAL.

SIR WILLIAM MANSFIELD ON THE STRENGTH OF THE ENGLISH ARMY IN INDIA.

On the 9th March, after the Right Hon. Mr. Massey's Financial Statement, His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief discussed the health of the English army in India. Whilst he maintained that the Sanitary Commission had over-stated their case, they had been the means of awakening the public conscience to a great duty, for the performance of which the military and medical officers in this country had long been asking, but which had been set aside on financial considerations. He held in his hand a return which had been prepared in accordance with an idea suggested to him by the report of the Sanitary Commission; it was a return showing the health of every station in the army during each quarter. There was nothing that gave Commanders-in-Chief more trouble than being met by statements as to the unhealthiness of this or that station, which it was, of course, absolutely necessary that somebody should remain to garrison. Whereas, if reports come up from the commanders of regiments, from medical officers and from generals in command of divisions, representing the necessity of removing a regiment from a particular station, it put the Commander-in-Chief and the Government to great embarrassment and difficulty. Peshawur had had the credit of being one of the worst stations in India. His Excellency had ventured to contest that opinion, though, at the same time, he had great authorities against him. When he was serving in that station, he was himself in the field continually from October to July; there were troops always in the field throughout the cold weather, the hot months which followed, and a portion of the rains. In a country verging on the tropics, whose climate was so subject to malarious influences, no men could stand such exposure. Much of the sickness declared inherent in Peshawur might therefore be properly ascribed to constant active service in the field, to which troops serving in that station were more liable than any others. He had the satisfaction to say that, during the past year, 1866, Peshawur, instead of standing low in the list of stations placed according to health, stood well both as regarded casualties and men in hospital. It stood nineteenth on the list out of fifty stations, and below it were such stations as Chinsurah, Shajihanpore, Roy Bareilly, and so on. He did not wish to ascribe more importance to that circumstance than it deserved; but he thought it showed that Peshawur, besides having the natural influences of climate to contend against, was also a station where the troops were necessarily liable to more active service and exposure than in any other station. It also showed how much might be done by attention to sanitary measures, and where the power to amend sanitary conditions necessarily ceased. It further proved that there might be an explanation of the bare facts, as shown by returns of sickness and deaths, which constantly escaped the notice of the public, and even of scientific authorities, unless attention was specially directed to it. During the last three years an order had been in force, declaring that the area allotted to each soldier in barracks should be ninety feet: that was in accordance with a recommendation of the Sanitary Commission. Although no such order had been previously in existence, still, in a great majority of barracks, there was not a much less area given to each soldier, at all events during the hot season. It was a fact, as shown by medical officers, that if we would ensure the health of our troops, we must look not only to avoiding malarious influences, but also to over-crowding. This rule had now been stereotyped for ever by Government, and commanding officers could not depart from it, except at their peril. There was no one condition, no one order ever issued by a benevolent Government, which had so much conduced to health, as that to which he had referred. He recollected when Fort William was a Golgotha, when the amount of sickness in that Fort caused it to be dreaded by the troops worse than Sierra Leone. Now there was hardly a station which exceeded it in sanitary condition. Much the same might be said of several other stations. Conservancy and drainage defeated the malarious influences of the climate, and the result justified the expenditure which had been incurred in giving them effect by the Government of India.

He had observed it stated in England that opinions had been ascribed to him as if he had recommended a large diminution of the European force in this country. It would be in the recollection of the Council that, nearly two years ago, at the invitation of the Government, he considered the question of reduction, and with due regard to what he believed compatible with security he did prepare a scheme for the reduction of the number of the rank and file of British troops, and to this, perhaps, allusion had been made. That reduction had been commenced upon last year, and had not yet been entirely completed, but he believed it would be so in the course of this year. Since 1865 he had made no further proposals for the reduction of British troops, but had only, in the execution of his office, carried out the final resolution of Government. He had made no recommendation beyond the conclusions stated by him in 1865 with respect to the three arms, nor was he prepared to make any; on the contrary, he held very decided opinions that we could not safely make any further reduction in the British forces; in short, we had reached the proper limits of the establishments. We heard a great deal at home of what was called the large European army in India. It was believed by many people in England, and perhaps by some in this country, that we had a European force not much less than that which was here at the close of the mutinies. The facts were as follows:—In April, 1861, there were 82,000 men in this country, at the present date the actual number of British troops was under 61,000. If we compared that number with the army as it existed at other dates, we found that, in the year 1856-57, the year before the mutiny broke out, the strength amounted to 45,000 men; so that the difference between the present year and the year before the mutiny was only 16,000 men. He ventured to think that, after the experience of 1856-57, and the great lesson of native character which they had learned in those days, the present strength of British troops was not too much to ask for to ensure the securities of our empire in India. He made these remarks because he heard complaints adopted in England, and in some instances by men of authority, to the effect that we had greatly too large an European force for this country; that because there had been an improvement in fire-arms, that was a reason for a reduction of the force; and again because there were difficulties at home in the way of recruiting, that was a reason for reduction; and lastly, that because, according to the sanitary commissioners' report, there were great sickness and mortality amongst the British troops in India, which he ventured to say from the facts he had laid before the Council was not actually the case, and was not attributable solely to the climate, that that was a reason why we should not expose British troops to such danger in this country. But in his opinion all those reasons were absolutely illusory. With regard to improved arms, every one knew that the arms at present in the hands of the British troops in India were far superior to any that they would have to contend against, and he could therefore see no absolute necessity for giving breechloading arms to the troops in India under present circumstances, except the imperial and very sufficient reason that uniformity of arms should prevail among all the troops composing the British army, wherever they might be stationed. Again, with regard to the difficulties of recruiting, we had nothing to do with that; we must ask for the necessary garrison, as the great interests of India, and therefore of England, could not be imperilled. We surely should not forget the lessons of the past, and the dangers and loss we had incurred by inattention to such principles in the occupation of a vast country possessing an almost countless population. It took us two years to overcome the mutinies, and it was owing to the mercies of Providence that the struggle did not extend to ten years instead of two. We did not impose on the population of the United Kingdom a greater drain for troops than it could afford, and that was but a very small demand with regard to the enormous importance of the interests confided to the British garrison in India. In short, we could not afford to tamper with that garrison, the maintenance of which was an Imperial and by no means a mere local necessity. To do so would be as if the Government were to remove all bullion reserve, and trust to the paper currency by itself; that was the argument with which we should meet all those who asked us to reduce the number of British troops in India below that figure which experience and observation had proved to be indispensably necessary.—Friend of India.

SANITARY STATE OF BENGAL.

The last sanitary report for Bengal, which deals with the year 1865, and was published in July, 1866, informs us that in future three and a-half regiments and a garrison battery of artillery are to be stationed in the hills, and further adds that there are now five depots in the hills for convalescent soldiers, viz., at Darjeeling, Nynce Tal, Landour, Kussowlie, and Murree. There is also a small depot at Dhurmsala, and another on the Parishnath hill in Bengal. Lastly, that a sixth depot has been ordered at Dalhousie, and a small one at Jutogh. In the year 1865, 1,685 British soldiers whose health had failed were thus sent to these depots for the hot and rainy seasons. The great importance of these military stations and depots in the hills cannot be overestimated, and our object in now bringing the subject to notice is to urge on the Government to make a greater use of the hills than is even now done. The accommodation at all the depots can be increased, and sites for more regiments can be selected. The old argument against the use of the hills in a military sense cannot now carry weight; for the main line of railway from Calcutta to Mooltan is almost finished, and thus the formation of branch railways is practicable to the base of every hill in the empire. And the other argument, viz., that of expense, is almost unworthy of notice, for everything which promotes the health, welfare, and necessarily the efficiency of the British soldier in the end is the most economical of measures. In short, the power to locate 10,000 men in the hills at one time in this presidency would be a source of vast national strength; for we could thus give every regiment in Bengal a fair enjoyment of a good climate at least once, if not twice, during its sojourn in India, the result of which arrangement would be the diminished necessity of invaliding men to Europe for change of climate in the large number now done, and thus also a great saving of money would be at the same time effected.

We shall be told that there is no room in the hill stations for more men, and we reply, that ground in these places is wasted. We build in the hills as if we were in the plains; every dwelling has its large compound, instead of every inch of space being utilised. Space in reality is as valuable in the hills as it is in many places in England, and we treat it as if we had more than enough. At Simla, for example, what use is now made of the greater part of Jakko, except as the residence of leopards and other wild beasts? It is covered in a great part with forest, while the summit, if cleared and levelled, would form one of the grandest localities for a regiment which it is possible to conceive. There would be room for a barrack square, a parade ground, and a church, while the general effect in Simla itself would be very beneficial, for in that part of the station the prevalence of forests is prejudicial to health, especially during the wet season. While, therefore, we cordially admit that much has been done by the Government to provide the soldiers with a residence in the healthy climate of the Himalayas, we are clearly of opinion that much remains still undone, and we would earnestly urge on the Viceroy the need of more barracks for the accommodation not only of our convalescent soldiers, but for our regiments in the hills.

No one, we believe, now doubts about the comparative healthiness of the hills during the hot and wet months; but to add force to our arguments we will conclude this very important subject, for the present, with a statement of the condition of three regiments in the hills, and three in the plains in the year under review, viz., 1865: 915 men were quartered for nine months at Darjeeling, namely, from April to December, and their daily average percentage of sick to strength was 5.79; they had no cholera, and deaths from all causes numbered 14.20 per thousand of average strength; 889 men who were stationed at Dugshaie, from February to December, had an average daily sick of 3.78 per cent. of average strength, and the deaths per 1,000 of average strength were 13.50. They had no cholera. At Subathoo 601 men had an average daily percentage of sick to strength of 7.54, and the deaths numbered 4.99 per 1,000 of average strength only. They had no cholera. While in the plains at Agra, the strength was 876, the average daily sickness 6.61 per cent. of average strength and the deaths 21.69 per 1,000. At Allahabad the strength was 1,013, the average daily sickness 4.19 per cent., and the deaths 33.56 per 1,000 of average strength. At Meerut the strength was 1,783, the average daily sickness 7.14 per cent. of average strength, and the deaths 22.43 per 1,000 of average strength.

These very limited extracts, taken from one of Dr. Brydon's statistical tables, tell their own most important tale, and form of themselves the best of arguments in favour of more barracks in the hills. It should be observed that the average daily sickness of the men in the hills does not include the best months in the year, while in the statistics of the men in the plains, these are reckoned. If this be overlooked it might seem that, though the deaths in the plains are much higher than in the hills, the average daily sickness was much the same throughout the year.—Delhi Gazette.

THE FAMINE.

The Famine Commission have closed their sittings with the examination of Sir Cecil Beadon. In a published notice they invite information from the public, and especially the natives, regarding the previous famines and the past and present population of Bengal. A case has been reported to us of which both the commission and the Bengal Government ought to be made aware. A certain native deputy-collector was promoted to a higher grade just before giving his evidence. No one can suppose that his promotion, however ill-timed, was intended even by the Bengal office to affect the evidence given; but the fact has been a subject of remark all the more that the fortunate deputy-collector is said to have declared his intention to show his gratitude by the vagueness of his statements.

No later detailed official news from the Famine districts have yet been published than up to the 31st January from Orissa and 26th February from Midnapore. The Executive Committee should see to this, for the responsibility now rests with them. Their energetic chairman, Mr. Hobhouse, explained to a very meagre attendance of the general committee last week the need of, and the plans for, relief. In Cuttack, in the inundated district of Taldungah, over upwards of forty-two miles of country, no traces of cultivation are to be seen, and no rice is to be had. "The Government kist had prevented all rice from being imported." We thought the land-tax had been remitted. On the one hand the price of rice was rising, on the other numbers of people were still dying off. The two put together go far to show that something of a new famine is raging, said Mr. Hobhouse. A telegram from Mr. Malony, the Famine Commissioner, states that up to the end of February upwards of 300,000 maunds of rice had been imported into Orissa. In the remote hill districts, Gurjat and Sumbulpore, inland import was reducing the distress. "Cotton labour, light labour and the gang system," had been introduced into Cuttack. Sufficient rice is thus being poured into the province, and there are seven special covenanted relief officers with a proportionate staff of subordinates. They buy the imported rice from Government at Rs. 3-4 a maund, and distribute it or sell it at a low rate when they can get purchasers. The relief centres are avoided by the Ooryahs till at the last stage of starvation, while they demoralise the females and pauperise the whole country by taking the people from their houses. When rice is cheaper the paupers are to be sent back to their villages, relief depots are to be established at every market place, and the servants of the zemindars are to be employed in giving parish relief, notwithstanding the fraud and speculation of the class, under the supervision of the agents of the committee. As to the orphans those in Calcutta are provided for. The Rev. W. Omasch, a Lutheran missionary at Purulia, is willing to take charge of the 150 or 200 in Chota Nagpore at Rs. 3 a-head per month, but the native members of the committee object to their being trained as Christians. So far as the children are Sonthals the objection is baseless and will not be considered. Other cases are to be decided on "general grounds." The Loretto House nuns have offered to take charge of 1,000 orphans at the actual cost, and Mr. Hobbs, who superintends an orphanage at Magoorah has made a similar request for a smaller number, but a decision on the question is very properly postponed. Meanwhile, at Balasore, huts are being built for the orphans under Mrs. Muspratt's charge. The difficulty should be met by keeping the orphans in Orissa, under those who have had charge of them from the first, as has been done in Granjam. Mr. Hobhouse expressed the gratitude of the Committee to the Bombay subscribers. The total subscriptions up to this date are under three lakhs of rupees.

Midnapore begins to look a little relieved, in spite of the highly profitable export trade in rice which is going on. While the Zemindars, now sure of their rents, force rice into the market, the Mahajuns, in the hope of higher prices, keep back their stores which will prove a boon to the spendthrift villagers hereafter. Hidgellee rice in large quantities has of late passed Serampore, for sale to the non-agricultural population on the river bank, while exports towards Hidgellee are going on from Calcutta. A striking test of the intensity of the famine is its influence on the schools which are attended chiefly by children of the respectable middle class. In Orissa, the inspector reports, it will be years before the schools regain their former position, unsatisfactory as that was. In the schools of Pooree and Ungool alone the average daily attendance fell from 477 in 1865 to 229 in October, 1866. The deputy-inspector, who was also on the relief committee, describes the "miserable condition" to which the parents and guardians of the Piplee and other schools were reduced, yet they refused to accept the relief tickets under the conviction that their holders would be sent across the sea.—Friend of India.

MILITARY CHANGES.—We hear that Lieut. G. N. Channer, second wing subaltern of the 2nd Regiment N.I., has been appointed Quartermaster of the 35th Regiment N.I., vice Captain Wilcox, promoted.—The retirement of Captain G. D. Manning, of the late 52nd Regiment N. I., will promote Lieutenant T. J. N. Mackenzie to his company, from the 10th April, 1865, the date upon which he completed his period of two and a-half years' leave on furlough.—We hear that Major Bruce, 91st Highlanders, of the Quartermaster General's Department, is likely to succeed Major Nedham as Deputy Assistant Quartermaster General. Major Nedham, we believe, will obtain an appointment in the Commissariat Department.—We learn from a friend at head-quarters that Lieutenant Colonel Renny, formerly commandant of the 3rd Sikhs, and either on his way from England or actually in the country, has been appointed Assistant-Adjutant General of the Oudh division, in succession to Lieut.-colonel Barwell, nominated on the expiration of his tour of staff service to the officiating command of the 16th N.I.—Owing to the operation of the order limiting officers in military staff appointments to five years' tenure of office, several vacancies will occur. In the Quartermaster-General's department there are five officers who have exceeded the period laid down, viz., Major Nedham at Saugor, Captain Maxwell, Meerut, Captain Basevi, Captain Hall, and Major Hunter, all deputy-assistant quartermasters-general. On the divisional staff, Major J. Hudson, assistant adjutant-general, will have to vacate on the 9th July next. There are three on the brigade staff who will have to do likewise very shortly, viz., Captain Wemyss, Lucknow, on the 4th May; Captain Callander, on the 5th May, and Lieutenant-Colonel Fraser, on the 17th October.—Delhi Gazette, March 14.

PROMOTION IN H.M.'S 107TH FOOT.—We notice the 107th foot has just had another step by the retirement of Captain R. E. Anderson. This promotes Lieutenant F. L. Good to his Captaincy, and Ensign J. Jordan to his Lieutenantcy. Lieutenant G. H. Garbett's name has recently been removed from that regiment, he being a probationer for the Staff Corps. We hear that Captain Good is also likely to go into the Staff Corps. Within no lengthy period this corps has lost the following officers by death, retirement, resignation, and exchange:—By retirement, Major D. Kemp and Captain R. E. Anderson; by exchange, Captain and Brevet Lieutenant Colonel J. C. McNeill; by resignation Lieutenants R. Brown, E. A. Dain, A. W. Hearsay; by death, Captain W. C. Sterling, and Lieutenant F. W. Leman. We hear that three or four officers more are willing to retire if they could get a bonus, and one officer, we believe, is desirous of an exchange.

OPIMUM SALE.—The following is the result of the opium sale held by Mackenzie, Lyall, and Co., March 11, on behalf of her Majesty's Government:—

	Chests.	Average.	Proceeds.

THE KING OF BURMAH has agreed to furnish Captain Williams and his survey party with a permit which shall pass them across the Burman-Chinese frontier.

THE TEA INTERESTS IN ASSAM AND CACHAR.—We learn that Sir Cecil Beadon has recommended the Government of India to appoint a commission to inquire into the causes of the ruin of the tea estates in Assam and Cachar. This measure, which might have led to good results, if it had been originated and carried into effect two years ago, is not only too late, but rendered unnecessary by the exhaustive information derived from Major Lees' pamphlet, and other sources. The crying want in the tea countries is labour, and the withdrawal of Governmental interference between the planter and the labourer, with a modification of the enactments regarding the labour in transit. The charge made against the planters of ill-treating their labourers, that led to the unwise legislation which has all but ruined the plantations, has been abundantly refuted by Major Lees, and by the unanimous report of all the Government officials in the tea districts. A Commission to inquire into the causes of this ruin would be unable to throw any new light on the subject, and its practical result would only be to delay those measures which, if promptly adopted, might still save this important industry from total annihilation. Under cover of such a Commission the present Lieutenant-Governor will quietly vacate his post, and cast upon his successor all the responsibility and odium of a catastrophe—inevitable if not immediately dealt with—which assuredly will cause a profound sensation in England, when it becomes fully realised. We hear that the proposed Commission is to be composed of three gentlemen, a civilian, a medical man, and a non-official—and that it is estimated a year will elapse before their labours can be completed, and the cost will not be less than a lac of rupees. Let the Government at once devote this sum to the importation of labourers to carry on their own works, instead of seducing by higher pay the imported labour of planters, and let Act VI. of the Bengal Council be so amended as to abolish protectorships, and abstain from regulating wages, or other direct interference between the planter and labourer, and this great and national interest may yet be saved. The treatment of the labourer may well be left to the planters and proprietors of plantations, and any exceptional cases of violence or ill-treatment can be dealt with by the local magistracy, the same as ordinary breaches of the law. The Hon. Mr. Grey, the present Member of Council, and future Lieutenant-Governor, ought strenuously to oppose the appointment of a Commission which will shelve the question for a time, and produce a temporary lull, which will assuredly be followed by a tempest of indignation when the ruin of the plantations is completed, and remedial measures will be of no avail. Now is his time to act; if he does not, when he becomes Lieutenant-Governor he will have to deal with a caput mortuum; a defunct enterprise which no healing powers of statesmanship can again restore to existence.—Englishman.

MR. JUSTICE PHEAR, says the Friend of India, would do a great deal in his public appearances before both natives and Europeans if he avoided extreme opinions which, unbecoming in all, are dangerous in a judge. In a lecture before the Dalhousie Institute on Art as an element in education he placed the cultivation of art almost on a level with the duty of abstaining from idolatry, theft, murder, and adultery. "I take it that the sense of refinement and beauty is a thing to be cultivated by the requirement of a duty almost as paramount—I was going to say,—as those which rest upon the prohibitions of the Decalogue." When Mr. Phear has obtained more experience in India he will doubtless purge himself of such extravagant opinions as he has too frequently given utterance to. He is to be valuable, and judges who take a personal share in promoting progress are too few for us to let such remarks pass unnoticed.

THE CASE OF CAPTAIN CUNNINGHAM.—The Lahore Chronicle of the 6th ult. says:—The court-martial ordered to assemble for the trial of Captain Cunningham, the late Paymaster of H.M.'s 88th Regiment, has been again delayed in consequence of an application on the part of that officer to be allowed to file a suit in the Civil Court against Colonel Maxwell for false imprisonment, &c. It is highly improbable that this request will be conceded by the military authorities, as most peremptory orders have been issued by the Commander-in-Chief for the trial to take place at once. A later paragraph in the Delhi Gazette of March 16, adds:—The case of Captain Cunningham, paymaster of the 88th Connaught Rangers, who was arrested at Delhi on a charge of desertion preferred by the officer commanding the regiment, came on last Friday before the Hon. Messrs. Ross and Turner. Mr. Warner made application to have the proceedings taken by the magistrate quashed. From the papers laid before the Court it appears that Captain Pearson, the Brigade Major, wrote by order of the Colonel to Mr. Halsey, the magistrate of Cawnpore, on the 13th of October, 1866, charging Captain Cunningham with desertion, and requesting him to take steps for his arrest. Captain Cunningham was arrested under a warrant at the dawk bungalow at Delhi on the 16th of October, and brought to Cawnpore, where he was made over to the Colonel and remained under arrest till the regiment left. The Court decided that there was no reason to interfere and passed "no orders."

THE SALT MARKET.—The Gazette contains the report of the Salt Market for the third-quarter of 1866-67, from which it appears that a large increase has taken place in the quantity of Government salt sold under Rowannahs, amounting to 143,971 maunds over the monthly average of the corresponding quarter of the previous year, whilst the sale of excise salt only amounted to 200 maunds, against 525 in the corresponding quarter. The quantity of salt despatched to the west of Hooghly by the Ballikhal and Sankrail chowkeys, and the East India Railway, has only increased by 13,187 maunds, whilst the total importations by sea have decreased by 135,301 maunds, and the clearances by 443,247 maunds, as compared with the corresponding period of last year. This is, of course, attributable to the reduction in the price charged for Government salt since December last, and the decrease in price in Liverpool salt from Rs. 117 to Rs. 98 is also to be assigned to the same cause; but the prices of Madras Kurkutch rose at the commencement, and fell towards the close of the quarter, whilst that of Bombay fell at the commencement, and rose one rupee towards the end. Licences for the manufacture of salt in Cuttack and Balasore, to the extent of 110,000 maunds, have been granted during the present season.—Englishman.

THE CATTLE DISEASE.—In July, 1866, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal called upon the Commissioners, and others in charge of districts, to report if any cattle disease, of a similar character to that which appeared in 1864, had since made its appearance, and these reports have been published in the Gazette. In Assam it appears that no reports of any similar disease have been made, though in the Cossyah Hills, in 1865, the cattle suffered considerably from another complaint, not identical with that of the previous year. In some parts of the Dacca Division, particularly in the Backergunge district, a disease, called a violent epidemic fever, raged to an alarming extent; in the Tagrah Thannah alone 13,199 head of cattle are reported to have died, and in the whole district nearly 40,000. Mr. Buckland recommends that copies of Dr. Bensley's instructions for the treatment of the disease should be printed in Bengalee, and distributed amongst the zemindars, but experience of this disease has shown that nothing short of the prevention of all communication, as well as the destruction of all tainted animals, and a thorough cleansing of their sheds, can put a stop to its spreading. The Commissioner of Cooch Behar and the Dooars report that a somewhat similar disease is not uncommon in those districts, and that it proved particularly fatal during last year; whilst in Chittagong it appeared for only two months, July and August; in 1865, but with very fatal results, as the cattle were left to nature. In the Patna division a few cases only occurred in 1866, although other diseases, such as gootee, or small-pox, and khang, or hoof disease, are generally more or less in the district. This latter destroyed a great number of cattle in the Soonderbuns in March and April last year. Burdwan appears to have escaped the ravages of this particular complaint, and in the Bhagulpore division no mention of it is made except at Darjeeling, where it destroyed nearly all the animals belonging to the bullock train. Cuttack has not been visited with this in addition to its other misfortunes, and the Chota Nagpore division has also escaped its ravages, whilst it appeared slightly in some parts of the Rajshaye division in May last.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE DEFENCE OF DARJEELING.—We find that the arrangement of placing the wing of the British Infantry Regiment at Sinchal, the Battery of Garrison Artillery at the south end of the Jullapahar, and the Convalescent Depot along the same ridge, to the northward, may be regarded not only as the best arrangement for the defence of Darjeeling, but as really meeting all the requirements of the case, whether regard be had to military considerations, to the convenience of the civil residents, to the protection of the civil station—both as it now is and likely to be—to the protection of the district generally, or to the influence of the British force on the neighbouring States. The sites at Darjeeling are quite equal, and, in some cases, superior to the sites in the Simla and Kumaon Hills; at Darjeeling all dormitories can be placed on the crests or ridges of the hills, with a thorough circulation of air around them, and free from the baneful effects arising from want of air and from the dampness which is inseparable from buildings constructed on ledges or terraces cut in the side of hills.—Englishman.

THE HIGH COURT OF THE N.W.P. has lost the valuable services of the Hon. Mr. Pearson, who, we understand, has availed himself of leave preparatory to proceeding to England, with the view, we believe, of retiring from the service. Mr. Pearson was junior in the service to the other civilian judges. He came out in 1840, and formerly held the office of registrar of the Sudder Court, which post has generally been held by officers who have subsequently risen to some of the highest appointments in these provinces. We are sorry to hear that the Hon. Mr. Edwards also is about to retire, having sent in his papers to resign the service. Mr. Edwards may be said virtually to have retired from the date on which he went on leave in the spring of 1866, as he only returned to the country in January to complete a short period then wanting to make up his full term of service. One of the vacancies made by the retirement of these gentlemen has been filled by Mr. Spankie, and the other will be filled, we presume, by Mr. Turnbull, who was lately officiating.—Delhi Gazette.

DEATH OF THE REV. MR. MADDOCK.—It is with extreme regret that we announce the death at Mussoorie, on the night of the 7th, of confluent small-pox, of the Rev. Mr. Maddock, so well known in this part of India. That which makes the event especially sad is the fact that Mr. Maddock, after a long career of usefulness in India, was about to return home, having made over his school to the committee of the Bishop's School Fund, established by the late Dr. Cotton. Mr. Maddock had taken his passage and went up to Mussoorie just to see the school opened under Mr. Hardy's auspices. On the very day it was opened he was taken ill, and the disease soon declared itself, but there did not appear any particular cause for anxiety. Daily bulletins were received in this station, and on Saturday the account was most favourable, but on Sunday morning the news of his death reached. He died at midnight on the 7th instant. His loss is a matter of unfeigned sorrow to all his friends. It seems but yesterday, as it is indeed a very short time ago, that we saw him here full of health and spirits, looking forward with almost youthful eagerness to re-visiting his native land, which he hoped to do in time to keep his father's birthday, a day always much honoured by him, and which was always kept as a holiday at the Mussoorie school. In addition to his many estimable qualities, which made him a universal favourite, and the energy with which he devoted himself to his duties, in itself a prelude to success, he was an excellent preacher. When last at Agra he preached an impressive sermon upon the text, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" when he dwelt with what seems now almost prophetic force upon the uncertainty of human life and the duty of submitting all cherished plans to the Divine Will, and of being ever prepared for a summons to another world; little knowing that he was himself so soon and so forcibly to illustrate the truth of his remarks.—Delhi Gazette, March 12.

TAKING THE VEIL.—As we announced last week, the ceremony of the reception and profession of some Nuns took place at St. Thomas' Church on Saturday, 2nd March. Miss V. Seyers, of Chandernagore, received the white veil, and Miss M. Crohan, of Lahapore, together with Miss Jackson, of this city, made their profession, and took the black veil. A large and very respectable congregation, consisting principally of protestants, witnessed the ceremony. A party of four persons from Government House was also present, amongst whom were the two daughters of the Viceroy. We were glad to observe that the strangers without exception behaved with the greatest propriety and reverence during the whole time, and appeared much interested in all they saw. A short sermon of about half an hour's duration, on the nature of religious vows was delivered by the Rev. Fr. De Vos. The whole ceremony occupied two hours, terminating at a little after 10 A.M. — Indo-European Correspondence, March 9.

THE FINANCIAL COMMISSIONER OF THE PUNJAB.—Mr. Philip Egerton will act as Financial Commissioner of the Punjab in the room of Colonel Lake, until Mr. A. A. Roberts may be ready to take up the officiating appointment. Mr. Roberts is undoubtedly the fittest officer who could be found for the post, but as senior Judge of the Chief Court he draws Rs. 42,000 per annum, and it is a question whether he can be allowed this salary if he were to accept the Financial Commissionership. The matter has been referred to England, and, meantime, Mr. Roberts has been informed that if he accepts the appointment he will do so on the understanding that he must risk the chance of the Secretary of State refusing to act upon the recommendation of the Local and Supreme Governments, and to grant him the difference between his present salary and that recently sanctioned for the Financial Commissionership. — Englishman, March 12.

ANOTHER MILITARY SCANDAL.—We hear that Capt. R. A. Dobbin, of the late 6th European, and barrack master of Darjeeling, is under arrest, and may possibly be tried by general court martial. He has been superseded in his appointment.—Indian Daily News, March 13.

THE VICE-CHANCELLORSHIP OF THE CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY.—The number from whom the Viceroy can select a vice-chancellor of the University of Calcutta is very limited. Bishop Cotton would have adorned the office, and probably also Dr. Duff, and Dr. Wilson in Bombay, but for doubts as to the expediency of its being filled otherwise than by a layman. Such doubts imperil the Catholic constitution of the Indian universities, and should be dispelled by Dr. Wilson's appointment on the next vacancy in Bombay. None of the universities have yet seen a non-official in the office either of vice-chancellor or registrar. As the vice-chancellor ought to be always in Calcutta, the area of selection is confined. But for this Sir W. Muir would be the best appointment. It is to be regretted that Sir Barnes Peacock has always been so much absorbed by his proper duties as to have abstained from showing that sympathy which he feels with native progress. There remain only Justices Seton-Karr and Phear. The latter has had too short an experience of India, and has propounded too many extraordinary opinions to make his appointment desirable at the present time. Mr. Seton-Karr possesses almost all the qualifications required—in his interest in native education, his familiarity with Indian progress, his Haileybury career, and his ability as a public speaker.—Friend of India.

THE RAILWAY BETWEEN ALLAHABAD AND JUBBULPORE.—The Government authorities have now finally decided to open the East Indian Railway line between Allahabad and Jubbulpore as soon as it is possible for a train to run over that road. With regard to fencing, a work, the completion of which has hitherto been considered a sine qua non by the Government before any Indian line could be opened for public traffic, an important concession has been made, his Honour the Lieutenant-governor of Bengal having decided that the line in question shall be utilised without waiting for the completion of the fencing, provided the engines are supplied with cow-catchers. There is every probability of a train running right through to Jubbulpore before the 15th of next month, and in a month afterwards, or at latest the 1st of June, the line will be opened (let us hope with all that pomp and circumstance the occasion demands) to the public. It is to be presumed that no time will be lost by the Postal Department in arranging for the transmission of the mails from Bombay over the new route, as thereby a saving of about thirty-six hours will be effected in the receipt of their letters by the inhabitants of Calcutta, Allahabad, and the North-West Provinces generally. The new capital of the North-West will thenceforth enjoy that privilege in the way of early news which has so long been in the possession of its waning rival.

THE DISCONTENT AMONG THE PUNJAB UNCOVENANTED CIVILIANS, due to recent instructions from the Secretary of State, threatens seriously to impair the efficiency of an important branch of the public service. The Punjab Uncovenanted Civil Service stands on a peculiar ground, and is entitled to some special consideration. The European members of it are in many respects justified in expecting an equal consideration with military civilians. The Secretary of State has restricted the promotion of the former to the general administration, to what are vaguely enough styled special cases. There would seem to be no question as to the unfairness of, at all events, applying this rule retrospectively to officers who entered the public service with expectations fully justified by the Acts of Government at the time. This is the case of officers who were appointed after the mutinies, and when the treatment of the Uncovenanted Civil Service by the Government attracted a better class. As it is several officers have resigned in disgust and joined the local bar. Sir Donald Macleod has the reputation of being strictly impartial in the distribution of his patronage. He expressed himself favourable to the Uncovenanted Civil Service when a commission was projected to examine into grievances set forth by the covenanted against military civilians long ago. The uncovenanted in the Punjab will be glad to abide by his decision in their case.

THE COURT-MARTIAL ON LIEUT. HOME.—A Calcutta paper says:—"A general Court-martial, presided over by Colonel Glyn, C.B., commanding the rifle brigade, has just closed its sittings. The prisoner tried before it was Lieut. Home, of the general list infantry. It is believed it will be proved that he is "non compos mentis," and therefore irresponsible for the acts which have brought him to trial. It would have been better had he never been tried. The discipline of the army is not kept up a whit better by such unnecessary proceedings." Later accounts state that Mr. Home has been acquitted of the charge brought against him. He has been a severe sufferer from Bhootan fever, and had previous to his trial passed the board of sick leave to England, which he will now take advantage of.

A SECOND INSPECTOR OF HOSPITALS FOR BOMBAY.—The Government general orders just published notify the "retention" of a second Inspector-general of Hospitals for the Bengal Presidency. This "retention" is, properly speaking, the creation of a new appointment. When the recent alteration in the administrative ranks of the medical service was made, an inspector-general of the Indian service was allowed to each presidency. It was represented that the Bengal presidency, being more than double the size of the others, ought to have an additional inspector-general, and accordingly it has been allowed, and Dr. J. Murray has been confirmed in the appointment.—Delhi Gazette.

HOW TO KEEP IN CASTE.—From Indore we learn that Holkar, having determined to send a deputation of Pundits to England, assembled all the learned and holy men of his territories, and desired them to consider the question, whether the Pundits he wished to send to England would, as a consequence of their undertaking the journey, lose their caste, considering they were on the Rajah's business. After considerable discussion, it has been held that, although a Pundit going on his private account to England would infallibly lose his caste, yet that a deputation crossing the seas on the business of the State, must be held to be free from the usual penalties.

RETIREMENT OF LIEUT.-COLONEL TERROT.—Major and Brevet Lieut.-Colonel C. S. I. Terrot, late 29th Regiment N.L., has retired from the service, which he entered in 1837. This retirement promotes Captain (Lieutenant Colonel in the Staff Corps) W. Agnew to Major, and Lieut. E. C. Garstin to Captain. Captain G. H. Hale, late 57th Regt. N.L., has also retired from the service. This casualty promotes Lieut. E. Y. Walcott to his captaincy. Captain Hale's retirement throws open the appointment of cantonment magistrate of Cawnpore, which will, no doubt, be given to Captain H. B. Sanderson, who has been officiating for him.

SIKHS FOR HONG KONG.—According to the Indian Daily News the Governor of Hong Kong has applied to the Government of India for the services of a body of one hundred Sikh policemen, and Sir John Lawrence does not object to meet the wishes of Sir Richard MacDonnell. Mr. Creagh, now an assistant-superintendent of police in the Punjab, will accompany the men and remain in Hong Kong with them during the period of their service. The evils of the Ceylon experiment will be doubtless guarded against. The only drawback is that the Sikhs will have not a little to do with the many European rowdies of Hong Kong.

PESHAWUR, March 7.—In continuation of my letter of the 22nd of last month I write to say that poor Mr. Bean is still alive, but that is all that can be said in his favour. The sword-cuts on his hands and arms are healing, but the shattered thighbone is a wound that seems beyond the reach of medical skill to do much for.—Correspondent of Delhi Gazette, March 12.

THE VALUABLE ORIENTAL MANUSCRIPTS, purchased by the Government of India after the fall of Delhi, described as consisting of rare works in Arabic, Persian, and Urdu, on various subjects, are to be publicly sold by Messrs. Mackenzie, Lyall, and Co. at the Madras College, Calcutta. Why not keep them for the new museum? This sale looks like Vandalism.

A MEDICAL OFFICER FOR CASHMERE.—The Governor-general has sanctioned the deputation of a medical officer to Cashmere during the season of 1867, who is to receive the same pay as an officer in medical charge of a native infantry regiment.—Pioneer, March 11.

COLONEL ORR, who has been appointed to succeed Colonel Orfeur Cavenagh as Governor of the Straits Settlements, has arrived at Galle. The Home Government appears to have treated Colonel Cavenagh and the other officers of the settlement with very scant ceremony.

MAJOR-GENERAL MULCASTER (new promotion) has made over command of the Agra Brigade to Brigadier-general H. J. Stannus (new promotion).

THE 79TH FOOT is so unhealthily that it is very probable they will be sent to the Hills, in which case the 104th Foot will take their place.

THE 39TH N.I. reached Lucknow on Sunday, March 10.

CHANGES IN THE CIVIL SERVICE.—What with retirements from the service and absence on leave, there have been and will be considerable changes in the Civil Service during the present year. Mr. Brett, the senior member of the Board of Revenue, is just about to retire, and rumour mentions Mr. G. S. Forbes, the able and hard working collector of Ganjam, as his successor. In this case the col-torship will become vacant. Messrs. J. A. C. Boswell and W. S. Whiteside, both comparatively young men in the service, have just been gazetted acting collectors of Nellore and South Canara respectively, in the places of Messrs Dykes and Cadell, who go on leave. It is understood, too, that Mr. Fane, the collector of Madras, will retire shortly. Altogether the junior men in the service have no cause to complain of the slowness of promotion.—Madras Times.

CIVIL DISPENSARIES.—A despatch from Lord Cranborne, in reply to a minute of Lord Napier's on the management of Civil Dispensaries, has been published, and has given great offence to the medical service in this presidency. While Lord Cranborne has not spared his censure on both medical and civil officers, he has directed that "means should be taken for ensuring the truthfulness of the reports and the accuracy of the returns furnished annually by the medical officers of different grades in charge of the dispensaries," and suggest that civil officers should be required to certify such reports. The medical men are, and not without reason we think, somewhat indignant at this slight, and protest against this interference with their duties. We ourselves doubt the necessity and question the usefulness of Lord Cranborne's order.

BOMBAY.

THE PROPOSED AMALGAMATION OF THE BANKS.

Though we cannot report great progress in the negotiations for the amalgamation of the Bank of Bengal and Bombay, the strong favour with which the proposal is regarded by the shareholders of both banks, and the mercantile public generally, renders the ultimate and speedy completion of the negotiations a matter of tolerable certainty. The delay in the meantime has been caused, not by any difference of opinion as to the desirability, amounting in the case of Bombay to an absolute necessity, of carrying out the proposed amalgamation, but by a natural desire on the part of each party to strike, if not a hard, at least an advantageous bargain. The directors of the Bank of Bombay have suggested certain slight alterations in the terms proposed by their Bengal brethren, in order to obtain somewhat better terms for their shareholders,—or perhaps to maintain, as long as possible, the semblance of vitality and apparent absence of constraint.

The origin and progress of the negotiations are as follows:—The directors of the Bank of Bombay received from Mr. Dickson, secretary to the Bank of Bengal, a long minute, treating of the general subject of one State Bank for all India, and strongly advocating the establishment of such an institution. The extension of the business of the Bank of Bengal to Bombay was viewed by him in two aspects:—first, the establishment of a branch of the former institution independent of all connection with the Bank of Bombay, and second, the fusion of the three presidency banks into one State bank. The latter course has been considered to be in every way the preferable one; and, pending the legislative enactments which the unavoidable changes in the charters would render necessary, it has been proposed that the Bank of Bengal should enter into provisional arrangements with the Bank of Bombay in virtue of which immediate advantages would accrue to the latter institution. The provisional arrangements suggested by the Bank of Bengal are, the raising of a crore of rupees by the issue of 8,000 new shares at 25 per cent. premium among its own shareholders, and a crore and a quarter by the issue of 10,000 shares to the proprietors of the Bank of Bombay, at the same rate of premium. According to this arrangement the position of the amalgamated Banks would be this:—

	Shares.	Capital	Reserve.
Bengal { old ...	22,000 ...	2,20,00,000 ...	20,00,000 ...
new ...	8,000 ...	80,00,000 ...	20,00,000 ...
Total ...	30,000 ...	3,00,00,000 ...	40,00,000 ...
Bombay ...	10,000 ...	1,00,00,000 ...	25,00,000 ...
Grand total ...	40,000 ...	4,00,00,000 ...	65,00,000 ...

In dealing with the Bank of Bombay, nothing but cash would be taken towards payment of its quota of capital; but as instalments might be made at progressive dates, the proceeds of the liquidation of the present bank could be applied to this purpose.

In reply, the directors of the Bank of Bombay demurred to paying 25 per cent. premium for the new shares, holding 15 per cent. to be sufficiently high, as the reserve fund that would then be secured would bear the same proportion to the new capital as the present reserve fund of the Bank of Bengal does to its present capital. They also ask that to the Bombay shareholders be conceded the option of paying the full amount of the new shares at once, instead of by instalments, so as from the first to be on a footing of equality with the Calcutta shareholders. No written answer to their letter has yet been received from Calcutta; but whatever that answer may be, the speedy amalgamation of the two banks may be looked upon as a certainty. Meanwhile, in prospect of this consummation, the shares of both banks have taken a sudden and, as it appears to some, an unaccountable rise in price.—Times of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE INDO-EUROPEAN TELEGRAPH.—In consequence of the continued unsatisfactory working of the Persian section of the Indo-European Telegraph, Mr. Walton, the director, lately telegraphed from Kurrachee to Sir Arnould Kemball, K.C.S.I., the British Resident at Bagdad, requesting him to supply some information regarding the general state of communication between Bagdad and Teheran, for the guidance of the public. Sir Arnould Kemball, in reply, stated that the interruptions which had taken place during the past six months, amounted in all to seventy days, that communication had been difficult for the space of nine days, and even when the line was open, restricted to from six to eight hours a day. For fuller statistics, a reference had been made by Major Smith, the acting director on the Persian line, but as telegraphic communication had been interrupted for a fortnight, in consequence of the bursting of the bund of the Tigris above Bagdad, an answer would not be received for some time. The Persian line, Sir Arnould says, is at present in a transition state. There has hitherto only been a single wire, the use of which has had to be shared with the Persians; but a second wire is now being added, and more than half of the posts are being renewed. When these improvements shall have been completed, one wire will be set apart for European messages, and offices will be kept open day and night.

THE BALLET has come to an untimely end in Bombay, and a Mr. Stringer and a Signor Reint, who were responsible, have decamped to China, leaving seven ballet girls (Italians) penniless. A barrister represented their case to the police magistrate, and later in the day arrangements were made to send the troupe home at once to Ancona. The Italian Consul agreed to subscribe out of his own pocket; he had already expended a large sum of his own money in sending home and assisting artists, as no allowance whatever was made by the Italian Government for such emergencies. Meanwhile a charitable lady had fed the girls who were dinnerless. There is no worse class of men than the low contractors for opera troupes, who induce Italians to leave for the Levant and Egypt on false pretences, and too often, as in this case, disappear with their earnings. No little ruin is done in this way every year.

NATIVE ADDRESS TO MISS CARPENTER.—At a meeting of the native inhabitants, Mr. Sorabjee Pestonjee Framjee in the chair, an address has been presented to Miss Mary Carpenter thanking her on behalf of the native community for her efforts in favour of promoting native female education, and Mr. Sorabjee Shapoorjee Bengalee stated that it was their intention to present Miss Carpenter with a silver tea service, as an acknowledgment of her services. Miss Carpenter replied, and cordially thanked the meeting for the address and for their kind present.

INCREASE IN THE RATES OF COMMISSION.—The Bombay representatives of the native East India houses in London have resolved to raise their rates of commission to meet the increased risk in consequence of the extraordinary fluctuations of late in the prices of the staple imports and exports.

CHINA & JAPAN.

The Hankow Times of February 2 says:—"There is but little news of the Nienfei during the past week. They are said to be within the limits of the district of Hiao-kan on the north, but not inside the city. The proximity of this place to Hankow, it being only some 100 leagues distant, would drive the Chinese here into the utmost consternation; but the Nienfei have been so roughly handled during the campaign, having been beaten with a loss of 800 men at Kewkow, by Tan, eight days ago, that their spirit is said to be quite broken. Their funds too are at as low an ebb as those of the world in general, and their only desire appears now to be a safe return to their dens. They were on the retreat when they were encountered by Tan, at Kewkow."

The Overland China Mail says that the Harbour and Coasts Ordinance, intended to regulate Chinese shipping and check piracy, is working satisfactorily, over five thousand registries having been effected by Chinese.

The Japan Herald announces the death of the Mikado, or spiritual Emperor of Japan, in the following terms:—

"Scarcely has Japan had time to cast off her mourning for the death of the late youthful Shogoon—Minamoto Iyemochiko—when she has been called upon to don her deepest weed to mourn the death of her venerated sovereign—the Mikado, whose reigning name was Kingo Koo Thei. He died on the 3rd instant, at Kioto, in the thirty-seventh year of his age and 25th of his reign. He leaves a son sixteen or seventeen years old, who, in all probability, will succeed to the throne. The usual period of mourning for the death of a Mikado is now fifty days; at the end of which time the ceremonies appertaining to the accession of a successor are proceeded with, and they generally occupy thirty days. In the meantime no Governmental or other business of the country, requiring a reference to the court of the Mikado, can be transacted. The death which we announce would in any case deeply affect the nation; but in this instance we hear that it is held to be peculiarly deplorable and unfortunate, inasmuch as he died of small-pox—a disease which, although quite common to the country since the time of the first Mikado, Jingnnoo Ten-o, who reigned 2,563 years ago, has never been known to attack the sacred person of a Mikado until now. It is not surprising, therefore, that many simple people now shake their heads, and give one to understand that since the Mikado's divinity has departed and left him a prey to small-pox like an ordinary mortal, there is no telling what calamities may befall the country."

The Japan Times seems to regard the news of the Mikado's death with some hesitation. It says:—"Our contemporary, the Herald, has killed the Mikado with an attack of small-pox. The rumour is disbelieved by the natives. Small-pox, however, we regret to say, is very prevalent in Yokohama at this moment, and the Japanese state that in the native cases it is unusually fatal."

COURTS MARTIAL.

Adjutant Gen.'s Office, Calcutta, Feb. 21.—No. 32.—In continuation of the orders (G.O. No. 169, Aug. 15, 1866, G.O. No. 236, Oct. 24, 1866), the C. in C. is pleased to direct the publication, for guidance in the three Presidencies, of the following Horse Guards G.O. No. 897, dated Nov. 9, 1866, the following instructions and regulations are, by command of H.R.H. the F.M. C. in C., issued as supplementary to the memorandum attached to the above quoted circular memorandum, with a view to regulate and render uniform the procedure of general courts martial, in respect to addresses to the courts from the officer conducting the prosecution and from the prisoner.

1. With respect to addresses to the court on the part of the prosecution and the defence respectively, the procedure has not hitherto been uniform,—and the practice of the prisoner having a rejoinder to the reply of the prosecutor being regarded as an irregularity,—the following regulations, appointing what addresses should, and what should not be allowed, as well as the procedure to be followed, in all cases, having met with the approbation of H.R.H. are to be strictly adhered to.

2. The officer conducting the prosecution is allowed an opening address. At the close of the evidence for the prosecution, deputy judge advocate will ask the prisoner if he intends to adduce evidence. If the prisoner then replies in the negative, the prosecutor will proceed to address the court a second time, for the purpose of summing up his evidence, after which the prisoner will address the court in his defence. At the conclusion of his address, the deputy judge advocate will, in open court, sum up the case to the court.

3. If, in answer to the deputy judge advocate, the prisoner states that he intends to adduce evidence, he will then open his case with an address, before calling his witnesses, and at the conclusion of the evidence he may again address the court, after which the prosecutor will be entitled to a reply.

4. In those special cases where evidence is allowed in reply, the second address of the prisoner will be after such evidence, and immediately before the prosecutor's reply.

The address in open court of the deputy judge advocate, summing up the whole case, will then follow the prosecutor's reply.

After the deputy judge advocate has spoken, no other address is to be allowed, and the court will retire to consider its findings.

5. If any question should arise incidentally during the trial, as upon the admissibility of evidence, the party, whether prosecutor or prisoner, requesting the opinion of the court, will speak first, the other party will then answer, and the first party will be allowed to reply.

BAND AND MESS.

As it appears that a different practice prevails in many regiments regarding the application in India of H.M.'s regulations for the payment of certain mess and band fees, it is to be understood henceforth that the contribution of 30 days' pay to the regimental mess, and of 20 days' pay to the band, on an officer's appointment, or on his subsequent promotion, which is charged on the original net pay of his rank, affect English rates of pay only, and not the Indian rates.

On the other hand, the annual mess and band subscriptions may be paid on Indian rates of pay, according to the provisions of the adjutant general's confidential circular, dated July 19, 1856, the term "contribution" therein being read, and in future held to mean "subscription."

HOME.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

CLAIMS AGAINST OUDE.

Mr. BLAKE asked the Secretary of State for India, with reference to the statement made by his predecessor on the 23rd of July last, that the claims against the late State of Oude, which have been investigated and reported upon by a commission in India, "were claims of a moral character;" and to the fact that a notarial copy of the bond granted to Captain Thomas Edwards by the Vizier of Oude, as admitted in the report of the commission, was produced before it from the archives of the Supreme Court at Calcutta; what arrangement he proposed to make with a view of coming to a settlement of the amount due under the bond, in order to carry out the pledge which was given to this House by the President of the Board of Control, on the 12th May, 1857, "that all the public and bona fide claims against the State of Oude would be paid out of the revenues of the country."

Sir S. NORTHGOTE said the question was a rather peculiar and unusually argumentative one. The only answer he could give to it was, that the question was considered by his predecessor in council, upon the report of the commission. He need not inform the hon. member that in matters of evidence the Secretary of State had no power to act except with the consent of the Council, and this matter had never been brought before the Council. He had looked into the evidence, and was disposed to believe that in the form in which it was presented to the commission, and afterwards brought before his predecessor, the conclusion which had been arrived at was a correct one. It was now said that there existed certain evidence which had not been brought before the commission, and which might if before them have affected their opinion. If such were the case he was perfectly willing to refer that evidence to them, and to ask them whether they would have arrived at a different conclusion had it been before them. The claim in question was of a very old date, arising seventy years before the annexation of Oude, and it had previously been repudiated by the sovereign of Oude. If the annexation had not taken place there would have been no chance of the alleged creditor being ever paid.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—APRIL 8.

EXAMINATION OF CIVIL SERVICE CANDIDATES.

Mr. H. LEWIS asked the Secretary of State for India whether he would lay upon the table of the House the system of marking proposed to be adopted by the Civil Service Commissioners at the examination of candidates for the Civil Service of India at the examination commencing on the 9th inst.; and whether it had been proposed by the Commissioners to deduct a certain number of marks; and, if so, what number of marks on each subject before a candidate could be allowed to count any marks to his credit.

Sir S. NORTHGOTE said the marks would be the same as had been adopted on former occasions. The system of deduction was this, that 125 marks were deducted from every candidate in every subject except in that of mathematics, in which no deduction whatever was made.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—APRIL 11.

THE IMAM OF MUSCAT.

Sir F. BUXTON asked the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs if the treaty with the Imam of Muscat concluded September 10, 1822, was considered to be in force so far as it related to the territories of the Sultan of Zanzibar, now that his dominions were independent of Muscat.

Lord STANLEY was understood to say that upon the treaties and the advice of the law officers of the Crown it was considered that those territories were independent of Muscat.

THE FAMINE IN ORISSA.

Mr. SMOLLETT asked the Secretary of State for India whether he was willing to put upon the table of the House all the correspondence that had passed up to the present time with the several governments in India relative to the famine in Orissa, and to the alleged enormous loss of human life from starvation in that province in the year 1866; a subject prominently noticed in her Majesty's speech to Parliament at its opening upon the 5th of February last, but upon which no official information whatever had been communicated by Government to the House of Commons.

Sir J. FERGUSSON: The report had been so long delayed that the Secretary for India had telegraphed in reference to it. If it did not come soon all the correspondence, so far as it had gone, would be laid on the table.

THE AGRA BANK.—The report of the directors of the Agra Bank (Limited), to be presented at the annual meeting on the 16th inst., states that the support given to the resuscitated bank has been most encouraging. The Edinburgh branch has been reconstituted. Mr. M. Balfour, the general manager, has visited India, and the various branches at Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, Kurrachee, Agra, and Lahore once more became working banks on the 1st of March. Almost throughout India the old constituents of the bank have hastened to its support. At the China branches the settlement of affairs is being pushed forward, but the directors "have not yet decided upon the advisability of re-opening them for future business." The Australian branches they have determined upon closing permanently. With regard to the probable ultimate out-turn of the assets of the liquidation, the board "see no reason to apprehend that the result will fall short of what has been anticipated." The report concludes with an undertaking on the part of the directors that the bank's operations shall be strictly confined to "transactions of a perfectly sound and legitimate character." Accompanying the directors' report is a little pamphlet of eighteen pages giving an account of the proceedings of the committee of shareholders appointed at the general meeting on the 18th October.

LETTERS FOR CHINA AND JAPAN.—The Postmaster-general has just issued the following notice:—"Letters addressed to any part of China or Japan, upon which the postage has not been fully prepaid, or which have been posted wholly unpaid, will, in future, instead of being stopped and returned to the writers, be treated in all respects as letters for Hong Kong, i.e., they will be sent forward charged with the deficiency and one rate of postage in addition as a fine."

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, April 9.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Delta, Captain Kellock, with the heavy portion of the above mail, arrived here to-day. She brings ninety-three passengers, specie £500, also 509 packages of cargo, including 245 bales of cotton. The Delta experienced along the African coast and across the Bay of Biscay strong north-westerly winds and heavy sea, up the Channel fresh breezes and fine weather. On the 7th inst. she spoke the steamer Pera, with the outward mails of the 4th.

JAPANESE FARE.—A letter from Marseilles, speaking of the Japanese now in Paris, says that they take two meals a day of food dressed in the French manner, but about noon they also partake of a dish of their own country, which would be hardly appreciated in France. It consists of raw fish cut into small pieces, on which is poured an Indian curry sauce, so strong that they cannot possibly know what they are eating. This they take with evident relish.

DESPATCH OF THE BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, April 12.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Ceylon, Capt. Evans, sailed hence to-day with the mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Bombay, &c. She took out forty passengers, a full cargo of general merchandise, including bar silver £35,000, and jewellery, &c., value £773.

ORIENTAL MANUSCRIPTS

(CHIEFLY PERSIAN),

SELECTED FROM THE LIBRARY OF

DUNCAN FORBES, LL.D.,

AND FOR SALE BY

MESSRS. WM. H. ALLEN AND CO., 13, WATERLOO-PLACE, LONDON.

* * In ordering from this List, please state the Number, first word of Title, and Price.

110. ASARI AHMADI.—“Memoirs of Ahmad or Muhammad.” A full and minute history of the Prophet Muhammad and the twelve Imams, with various and numerous anecdotes respecting them, by MUHAMMAD JANI. The work is in the most perfect state of preservation, written in a fine and very distinct Ta'lik character, on excellent Indian paper. Folio, pp. 885, ll. 19. £5. 5s.

114. MUNTAKHABI SHAHNAMA.—“An Abridgement of the Shah-nama,” by SHAMSHER KHAN. This is a very superior copy of No. 82, q.v. It is written in a very fine Ta'lik character, on strong Indian paper, with ruled margins. The whole of it is in the most perfect state of preservation, neatly and strongly bound. The work concludes with Firdausi's famous satire on Sultan Mahmud of Ghazni. Large 8vo., pp. 376, ll. 18. £3. 13s. 6d.

115. PADSHAHNAMA.—“The History of the King,” consisting of Memoirs of the Emperor Shahjahan, from his birth to his death, by MUHAMMAD AXIN AL-KAZWINI. The book has been exposed to damp, but it is quite legible throughout. It is written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on fine Indian paper. The work is fully described in Morley's Catalogue, to which I refer the reader for more full particulars of the author. Large 8vo., pp. 286, ll. 17. £1. 1s.

116. MIZANI ALFAZI 'ARABI.—“Measures of Arabic Words” employed in Persian, originally drawn up by learned Maulavis in Bengal, under the superintendence of the late Colonel BAILLIE, the first Arabic scholar of his day. The Tables have been since printed at Calcutta, but this is a beautifully written copy, transcribed about A.D. 1801, for the use of Charles Lloyd, Esq., of the Bengal Civil Service. The MS. is in the most perfect state of preservation, written on pale Indian paper, in a very fine Ta'lik character. It is also very strongly and neatly bound in green morocco. pp. 322, ll. 7. £3. 3s.

117. KISSAE HATIM TAL.—“The Adventures of Hatim Tal.” An entertaining romance, written in an easy style. Of this work a more ample description will be found under No. 200 q.v. This MS. is written in a very fine Nasta'lik character, on good Indian paper, with ruled margins, all in a perfect state of preservation. Small folio, pp. 474, ll. 17. £2. 2s.

119. NIGARISTANI WAKI.—“The Gallery of Pictures,” consisting of detached relations or anecdotes of various dynasties, who have ruled in the East from about the time of Muhammad till the middle of our sixteenth century, by AL GHAFARI AL KAZWINI. This MS. is in the highest state of preservation, in richly embossed native binding, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on very fine strong paper, with richly ruled margin. It was transcribed in A.D. 1589. 4to., pp. 532, ll. 17. £4. 14s. 6d.

120. DIWANI WAHSI.—“The Diwan of Wahshi,” consisting of the usual assortment of Kasidas, Ghazals, Ruba'is, etc., together with a short Masnavi, entitled “Farhad o Shirin.” The work is in splendid condition, written in the finest Ta'lik character, on glazed paper, variously tinted, with richly ruled margin. It wants the first leaf, which some rascally person seems to have cut away for the sake of the ‘Anwan. pp. 602, ll. 15. £3. 8s.

121. FAWATIHI HUSAINI.—“The Expositions of Maulana Muhammad Husain Maibudi.” It is a comment on the Diwan of 'Ali, the son-in-law of Muhammad. A more ample description of the work will be found under No. 180, q.v. This MS. is in an excellent state of preservation, a little worm-eaten on the top margin of a few pages, but the text quite uninjured. It is written in a fair Ta'lik character, and the Arabic quotations in Naskhi, on good strong paper. It was transcribed in the reign of Shah 'Alam, A.D. 1785. Large 8vo., pp. 316, ll. 15. £1. 11s. 6d.

123. GULISTANI SA'DI.—“The Rose Garden of Sa'di.” This is a splendid copy of the work already described in No. 96. It is written on very fine strong paper, with ruled margins, in a bold and most beautiful Ta'lik character; accompanied throughout with the vowel points, and an interlinear Hindustani translation. It is in a fine state of preservation, excepting a few worm marks on the margin, no ways affecting the text. It will prove a valuable book to a learner who wishes to accustom himself to the very finest specimen extant of the Ta'lik handwriting. Large 8vo., strongly bound, pp. 658, ll. 14. £4. 4s.

126. KASHFU-L-LUGHAT.—“Exposition of the Dictionaries.” A valuable Persian and Arabic Lexicon, excluding all such words as are common or familiar. All the words purely Persian are discriminated by the letter Farsi prefixed. The author was 'ABDU-L-KAHIM BIN AHMAD SUYUR. The work is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a beautiful Ta'lik character, on very fine paper, with margins ruled, strongly bound in half-russia. Small folio, pp. 1236, ll. 19. £5. 15s. 6d.

128. KISSAE HATIM TAL.—“The adventures of Hatim Tal.” This is an Urdu version of the work described under No. 117. It is a very free translation, if we may so call it, though the hero and heroine of the tale as well as the general subject are the same. The author is SA'YID MUHAMMAD HAIDAR BAKUSH, mentioned in No. 93. The MS. belonged to Dr. Gilchrist, and is evidently one of the earliest transcripts of the work. It is in the finest state of preservation, very distinctly written in Dr. Gilchrist's reformed Ta'lik character, on very good Indian paper. pp. 572, ll. 13. £2. 12s. 6d.

129. GULISTANI SA'DI.—This is a very fine copy of what we have already described under No. 96, etc. It is in a perfect state of preservation, neatly bound in flowered silk cloth, written in a most beautiful large Ta'lik character, on very fine paper, with neatly ruled margin. The Rubrics are finely written in red or green. The Arabic quotations are fully pointed, underlined with a literal Persian translation. pp. 322, ll. 10. £3. 13s. 6d.

133. MASNAVI MAULAVI RUMI.—This is another copy of the work described under No. 124 and elsewhere. It wants the first and second books. The remaining four books are in fair condition, but slightly injured by damp. The ‘Anwans and the first two pages of each book are in a beautiful state of preservation, most splendidly illuminated. The work is written on a very fine paper in the Ta'lik character. Folio, pp. 484, ll. 21. £3. 13s. 6d.

134. LAILI WA MAJNUN.—“Laili and Majnun,” a romance in imitation of the Persian poets Nizami, Amir Khusru, etc., by the Urdu poet HAJJI, surnamed TAJALI, who flourished in the latter part of last century. This copy belonged to Dr. Gilchrist, and is in the most perfect state of preservation, written in A.D. 1791, in a very clear bold Ta'lik character, on very fine Indian paper. Folio, pp. 282, ll. 11. £2. 12s. 6d.

135. KULLIYATI KHAKANI.—“The whole Poetical Works of Khakani.” This is a very good copy of the work described under No. 72. It is written in a fine Ta'lik character, on good straw-coloured paper, with ruled margins. It is slightly worm-eaten on the outer margins, but the text remains quite unscathed and is in excellent preservation throughout. Folio, pp. 740, ll. 19. £2. 12s. 6d.

136. RISALA UL 'ALIYA.—A Treatise on Morality, divided into Eight Chapters or Principles, by HUSAIN VA'IZ AL-KASHIFI, author of the Anwari Suhaili and Akhlaku-l-Muhsanin, q.v. It is written in the Ta'lik character, with all Arabic quotations fully pointed in Naskhi, on excellent pale-coloured paper, the whole in a perfect state of preservation. Folio. Bound with the following book:

136a. MASABIHU-L-KULUB.—“Lanterns to Enlighten Men's Hearts,” by HASAN SABZVARI. It is of the same nature as the preceding, written by the same hand, and on precisely the same kind of paper. It is divided into fifty-three chapters, and, like the preceding work, it is in the highest state of preservation. It was transcribed in A.D. 1631. Folio. Both works together amount to pp. 544, ll. 19. £4. 4s.

138. ANWARI SUHAILI.—“The Rays of Light of Canopus.” This work, as we have already mentioned, is an elegant translation or paraphrase from the Sanskrit of “Pilpay's Fables.” It was formerly translated into the Old Persian or Pahlavi language, under the title of “Humayun Nama,” i.e., “The August Book.” The Sanskrit name is Hitopadesa, under which title there are now several European translations made immediately from that language. This copy is in a perfect state of preservation, written in a plain bold Ta'lik character, on very fine Indian paper. It is strongly bound in morocco. Folio, pp. 912, ll. 12. £1. 11s. 6d.

139. HUMAYUN NAMA.—“The August Book.” This is a very literal translation of the preceding work into the Turkish language. To the Persian scholar who wishes to attain a knowledge of the more refined style of Turkish composition it will prove a valuable text-book. It is throughout in a state of perfect preservation, written in the neat small Naskhi hand peculiar to the Turks, on good strong Levant paper. Folio, pp. 463, ll. 27. £4. 4s.

THE SECRETARY OF STATE for INDIA in COUNCIL HEREBY GIVES NOTICE that he has RECEIVED from the Right Honourable the GOVERNOR-GENERAL of INDIA in COUNCIL the following NOTIFICATION relative to the SALE of the HAWUL BAUGH and AYAR TOLI GOVERNMENT TEA PLANTATIONS in Kumaon.

HERMAN MERIVALE.

NOTIFICATION, dated the 13th February.

The following Tea Plantations and Factories in Kumaon, the property of Government, are offered for SALE at the prices specified:—

There are on the estate two large slated houses, a large slated factory, two large slated godowns, a slated barrack for Chinese tea manufacturers, and numerous slated out-offices, and the stock and block of the factory are complete for tea operations and in working order.

The yield of the estate last season was about 16,000 lbs. of tea, and 500 maunds of seeds, all of which have been sown in the plantations.

This estate will be sold in one lot, in fee simple, free of all demands on account of land revenue, exclusive of existing local cesses, such as road, educational, and postal cesses, or such as may be hereafter legally imposed, for Rupees 40,000 (forty thousand rupees).

This plantation, with the small nursery of Lutchmaissur, consists of about 2,550 acres, of which about 300 are under cultivation with tea, about 700 acres of cleared land, and the remainder covered with pine, oak, &c., forest, the timber of which is well adapted for making tea chests, &c.

There are on the estate a slated house, a slated factory, and a slated godown, and numerous out-offices, and a slated house or godown at Hawulbaugh for storing tea, will be sold with the estate.

The yield of the estate last year was about 12,000 lbs. of tea, and about 600 maunds of seeds, all of which have been sown in the plantations.

This estate will be sold in one lot, in fee simple, free of all demands on account of land revenue, exclusive of existing local cesses, such as road, educational, and postal cesses, or such as may be hereafter legally imposed, for Rupees 1,25,000 (one hundred and twenty-five thousand rupees).

A small portion of the plantation of Ayar Toli named Bincoli, belonging to the Temple of Nagath, will bear an annual rental of Rupees 24 (twenty four rupees) per annum. This land is leased in perpetuity from the Temple of Nagath on this rental.

Offers will be received by the Superintendent, Botanical Gardens, North Western Provinces, Saharunpore, and, on the offer being accepted, the purchaser must deposit 5 per cent. of the purchase-money, which will be forfeited if the amount of the purchase-money be not paid in full on the date which may be agreed upon at the time of sale.

Both of these estates have been surveyed, and copies of the Survey Maps may be seen on application to the Superintendent, Government Botanical Gardens, Saharunpore.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—CONSCIENTIOUS

CONVICTION.—No investment of money can be so profitable as that which insures good health. It has been established beyond dispute that Holloway's Pills, which cost but a trifle, will successfully wrestle with and overthrow disease. In all the many forms in which dyspepsia or indigestion presents itself, it may be thoroughly removed by these purifying and gentle aperient Pills, assisted by a diet which must be simple in quality and moderate in quantity. Long indisposition, resulting from defective appetite or imperfect assimilation, yields to this efficient treatment; and nausea, disagreeable tastes in the mouth, headache, and the annoying collection of phlegm which plagues the dyspeptic in the morning, will be banished by these balsamic and strengthening Pills.

CAUTION.—FRAUD.—Mr. J. H. Evans,

Chemist, Lymn, Cheshire, writes March 25, 1867:—"Some of my customers who habitually use Dr. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS, inform me that they have purchased what they intended should have been the same, but which turned out to be quite a different thing. I need not say the results after taking: the spurious ones were very unsatisfactory." The only genuine medicine has the words "Dr. Locock's Wafers" in the Government Stamp.

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the PEOPLE of INDIA

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,

Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Dr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India is not only deserves the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

The Bombay mail brings us our usual papers, from Calcutta to the 21st, Madras to the 23rd, and Bombay to the 28th of March.

The latest news from Calcutta was to the 23rd, received by telegraph at Bombay. It stated that the cause of Lord Napier's visit to Calcutta was supposed to be the probable retirement of the present Viceroy in his favour at the end of the year; also that a public meeting had been convened in Calcutta for the 27th inst. to memorialise the Secretary of State to veto Mr. Massey's Act for the license of trades and professions, a hope being felt that Bombay will follow the example.

It is, indeed, as is observed by the Madras Times, a long while since a piece of Indian legislation has occasioned so much indignation as this unfortunate and ill-conceived measure of Mr. Massey's. Not a word seems to have been said in its defence; the entire press of the country is unanimous in its condemnation. Even the Friend of India, who at first seemed inclined to be chivalrous and throw his shield over Mr. Massey, has denounced the tax as "mongrel" and "bungled." The Bombay Gazette calls it a "singularly puerile and iniquitous measure;" the Times of India, a "stupid blunder;" the Indian Daily News, "one of the most iniquitous facts of a long series that have been inflicted upon India." The Pioneer "feels too much contempt" for the measure to say a word more than he is compelled in regard to it. The Delhi Gazette states:—"Had Mr. Massey laboured for years to discover a method of taxation which was to bear heavily on the poor and lightly on the rich, he could not have achieved greater success." The Mofussilite characterises it as "a most absurd and irrational imposition," and an "aggravation of the worst absurdities and inequalities of a direct income-tax, with nothing in its favour except, perhaps, its limited operation of mischief."

A deputation of tea planters have had an interview with the Viceroy. The answer received was that if the Bill to be introduced into the Bengal Council to modify the labour laws should not be satisfactory a commission on the whole question will be appointed next November.

Mr. A. Monteath has been appointed Director-General of Post-offices, in which, though young in the service, he has twice officiated with much credit. "Had he," says the Friend of India, "held the office a month ago we feel assured so extraordinary a resolution as that which appears on the subject of the Post-office in last Gazette, would never have been signed by the Governor-general. Redeeming the pledge of last year, the Government of India again consider the possibility of allowing one anna letters to pass with a half anna stamp. This is declared impossible because it would involve a farther deficit of £60,000 a-year in addition to the existing postal deficit. Will it be believed that no allusion is made to the fact that official postage is carried free of all charge, as it is not in England? Estimating the revenue on the English system, the Indian Post-office yields a proportionately larger surplus than the English."

The Commander-in-Chief was to leave Calcutta on the 23rd, and the headquarters staff on the 24th.

A remarkable discussion has taken place in the Viceroy's council on the occasion of passing into law Mr. Brandreth's Bill for the suppression of murderous outrages on the Punjab frontier. "The unanimity of authorities like the Viceroy, Sir Henry Durand, and the Commander-in-Chief," says the Friend of India, "as to the danger against which the Act is intended to provide, and the legal explanations of Mr. Maine, were not required for men who know India. The Act simply renders unnecessary one stage in the many appeals which in India alone, of all countries in the world, are still allowed to criminals even of the deepest dye. In the course of discussion the Act has become emasculated. If our readers will turn to the debate they will probably rub their eyes and wonder if India ever passed through the mutiny; if there are such persons as Ghazees, Moplahs and fanatics; if the Koran does not teach the merit, and Mussulmans do not preach it to this day, of slaughtering infidels; if in consequence of that teaching English officers, missionaries, and even ladies from the time of Colonel Mackeson to Major Adams, Loewenthal and Janvier, have not been assassinated. All these things must be a dream."

From Afghanistan, we hear that Ameer Shere Ali Khan was endeavouring to join Fyz Mahomed in Balkh, who had thoroughly routed the Cabool troops sent against him; Ufzul Khan was also organising an expedition against Fyz Mahomed, so that more bloodshed may be expected in that quarter. Shere Ali Khan has sent a messenger to Scinde, on his way to Calcutta, with certain proposals to the British Government, but it is not at all probable that they will interfere.

Very serious scarcity exists in some districts of the Punjab. The winter rains have been an entire failure. Much land therefore has remained unsown, and on the uplands which have been sown only a small proportion of the seed has germinated. Only where there is canal or well-irrigation the crops are fine. There is plenty of grain in the country and large imports are made from Malwa, so that fortunately there is no fear of a famine. The cattle are suffering much. Every blade of grass is withered up, and in many parts the people are driven to dig up the dry roots and sweep together dried leaves of trees to feed the cattle; they are also cutting down the young crops for fodder. It is from the loss of cattle that most distress is to be feared. It is very unfortunate that the new scheme of taxation, and such a bad scheme, should be launched forth in so bad an agricultural year.

Col. Phayre, C.B., has been presented with a complimentary address by the principal merchants of Rangoon on the occasion of his retirement from the office of Chief Commissioner of British Burmah.

Lord Napier had returned to Madras. There was little other news from that presidency, except that the financial people there were opposed to the amalgamation of the banks.

We learn from Bombay that the United Victoria and Colaba Reclamation and Pier Company is to be wound up, and its business transferred to a new company to be called "the Colaba Company."

The shareholders of the Bombay Joint-Stock Corporation (now under liquidation) have appointed a committee to take such legal proceedings against the directors of that company for the loss of its capital as their solicitor may advise. The company's loss is stated to be £886,000.

The directors of the Bank of Guzerat have published the bank's history in anticipation of the first meeting of shareholders, which was to be held on the 30th inst.

The official liquidators of the Eastern Financial Association have called a meeting of the contributories of the company for the purpose of submitting to them a compromise with their creditors.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Westropp has made a call of £10 a share, the balance of the subscribed amount, on the contributories of the East Indian Trading and Banking Company, in accordance with the report of the official liquidator.

The P. and O. Company has announced its intention of issuing return tickets to or from Europe at a reduction of 20 per cent. on the return voyage, if availed of within six months.

An account was published some time ago of a raid committed by the Murrees, a tribe of lawless freebooters infesting the Scinde and Punjab frontiers. The official despatches connected with the affair, and the defeat of the robbers by a detachment of the Scinde Horse, have now been published in the Government Gazette, from which it appears that the raid was more formidable and the rout more dashing than the non-official reports had led us to believe. The Murrees numbered over two hundred men; they were well mounted and armed, and each rider possessed a perfect knowledge of the hill roads, a fact which proved of the greatest advantage to them in their flight, as their band could break up and make for their rendezvous by tracks known only to themselves, thus rendering pursuit both dangerous and difficult.

The Nizam, whose struggles against his own investiture caused a scandal some years ago, has invested Sir George Yule and Sir Salar Jung with the insignia of the Star of India.

Until within two or three days of the departure of the mail telegraphic communication with Great Britain had been wholly interrupted, owing to inundations in the country round Bagdad. The latest public telegram to hand was dated the 23rd, the intermediate dates from the 14th being still on the way.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which is due in London on Saturday next.

THE RESIDENCY OF HYDRABAD.—The transfer of Mr. Richard Temple, C.S.I., Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, to the post of Resident at Hyderabad, in succession to Sir G. U. Yule, is no longer a matter of doubt. Admirably as Mr. Temple is adapted for such an administrative post as the one he now fills, or even for a higher, it remains to be seen whether he will find himself in a congenial atmosphere at Hyderabad, where he must necessarily be deprived of the opportunity of exercising many special qualities which have found such ample scope in the Central Provinces. Yet Mr. Temple is not without experience as a politician, as he was for some time Secretary to the Punjab Government, and was bred up under Sir John Lawrence, who in those days had political affairs enough upon his hands. We feel little doubt, therefore, that Mr. Temple's political career may prove successful, in the same sense that his great patron's efforts in that department have been so; but had Mr. Temple's political training been under Sir Henry Lawrence we should have felt incomparably more hopefulness in the prospect of the energetic commissioner's transplantation to Hyderabad at the present juncture.—Times of India.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

TUESDAY, April 23, 1867.

THE INDIAN OFFICERS NOT YET SATISFIED.

A STANDING COMMITTEE has been appointed at each of the Presidencies of India for inquiry and report on the claims of officers of the Indian army seeking compensation for sums paid to their regimental services prior to the year 1861. The appointments are in accordance with the order of Lord Cranborne, consequent upon his settlement of the case of the officers in question. We regret to find that neither in India nor in England is the arrangement considered satisfactory, the local authorities being accused of failing to carry out the spirit of their instructions from home.

Our readers have been enabled to judge for themselves concerning the orders issued in India, which have been published in the Calcutta Gazette, and reprinted in a recent issue of this journal. But it may be convenient to state the substance of the instructions in question, as given in the Friend of India, with the comments of our contemporary, which probably represent the opinions of many officers in that country. Compensation, it is provided, will be allowed to officers of the late Indian Engineers and Artillery below the grade of col. commandant, or colonel with colonel's allowance; and to those of cavalry or infantry, including staff corps and new line regiments, below the rank of Lieut-colonel. To determine the amount claimable from Government it will be necessary for the applicant to show, supported by reasonable proof, the sums advanced by him up to 1861 to facilitate promotion, less any pecuniary consideration he may have received upon retirement, or may be about to receive. The balance, being the difference between what has been paid and received, should there have been any refund, will hereafter be paid to officers on resigning the service, or immediately in case of past retirements. Such are the main provisions of the plan. "But, while admitting," says the Friend, "that the executive of this country has carried out the provisions of the India-house despatch in a fair and liberal spirit, it is beyond question that the real grounds of the injustice remain untouched. Whereas officers hazarded considerable sums of money, borrowed at usurious interest in the majority of instances, to attain certain ranks, each bearing its respective value, reaching from £1,500 as a junior captain to £4,000 for a majority, it is sought by the Secretary of State for India to satisfy them for the loss of the price of these commissions by the tender of a fraction of the amount originally risked by the army. . . . And this, too, in spite of the fact that although an authorised system of purchase laying down the precise value of commissions did not exist in the three Presidencies, letters from the court of directors directly sanctioned and encouraged the practice, leaving its adjustment to motives of self-interest and private arrangement. The army asked for bread, and it has been given a softish species of stone."

The complaint has been echoed in England. The feeling of disappointment and dismay, says "An Indian Officer," writing to the Standard on Saturday, is universal; and there is a widespread belief that the callous and persistent injustice shown to the claims of the Indian officers arises solely from the fact that they are not sufficiently represented in the House of Commons. The latter complaint, however, is surely not well founded. Whatever has been done for the Indian officers has been done by the House of Commons, which not only passed the saving clause in the amalgamation measure, but has since by successive votes shown itself most earnest in its desire to see the conditions fulfilled. In his settlement of the question the other day Lord Cranborne found in the House of Commons a most willing supporter; and the strongest sympathy has been manifested in that assembly whenever the case of the claimants has been discussed. That the intentions of the Legislature and of the late Indian Secretary are not being adequately carried out seems attributable to the shortcomings of the Government of India, and a question on the subject to Sir Stafford Northcote would, we have no doubt, have the effect of inducing a little salutary interference from home. The present Indian Secretary may be inexperienced in the department, but he is not likely on that account to allow so important an order of his predecessor's as that under notice to remain a dead letter.

THE CALCUTTA VOLUNTEERS.—The Viceroy and the Hon. W. Grey distributed prizes to the value of Rs. 4,000 to the Calcutta Volunteer Rifles on Wednesday, March 20. The Viceroy expressed his satisfaction at the spread of the Volunteer movement in India. Mr. Grey hoped that the number of Volunteers in the corps would soon increase from 170, its present strength.

BENGAL.

BURMAH AND ITS LAST REBELLION.

Burmah has been for so many centuries accustomed to rebellions and revolutions, till it has been almost depopulated, that the long peace enjoyed under the present king might have been expected to work a beneficial change. But the leopard cannot change his spots. The last three months' rebellion, of which we have obtained an authentic history, shows a combination of all those hideous cruelties and vices which marked its predecessors, although it lasted for only three months from 2nd August to 2nd November. In itself the narrative is worthy of study. In the present state of Burmah, with another revolution imminent, a knowledge of the events of these three months becomes indispensable.

The present King of Burmah was placed on the throne by his younger brother, who manifested a generosity rare in Burmese annals. The heir apparent was another brother, the Crown Prince. Desirous to put him, if not also his father, out of the way, and secure the succession for himself, the Meeningon Prince, assisted by his brother, murdered his uncle on the 2nd August last, seizing the only royal steamer off the capital, pillaged the frontier customs station of Moulala, equipped a force with the arms which he found there, and cut off all communication between Mandalay and the south. The Pudyne Prince, son of the murdered heir apparent, fled to Shoay Ho, the birth-place of the great Alompra, and for a time the asylum of the present King. The King had no grudge against the prince, who is a mild and intelligent person, but his followers committed him to a contest for the rights which had descended to him from his father. One Moungh Mham especially distinguished himself in his cause, eager, like a true Asiatic, to use the prince's name as a cloak for his own designs on the throne. The king found himself a fortnight after the outbreak opposed by his own sons to the south, penned in by his nephew's force of 12,000 men to the north, and with the people of Mandalay in such a panic that the northern quarter of the capital was a desert. With true Buddhist stolidity he sat inactive, and his leading priests urged him to abdicate. But the Namadan Piyah, his half sister and chief Queen, who practised the arts of astrology and divination, urged him to trust to his destiny. Like Macbeth in the extremity of his need he was roused to action. He fortified Mandalay Hill and the city gates. He summoned to his side an old and neglected general, Bo Beein, and sent him out against the Pudyne prince's troops to the north. For eleven days a series of Homeric battles were fought around Madeya, and the King conquered by the simple fact of possessing more ammunition than the enemy. The Burmese despise the English custom of close fighting. They prefer what they call "long bullets," and so expend a prodigious amount of powder and ball with only a few casualties. Only when brought to bay like a rat in a hole will a Burman fight. With the end of August the first campaign ended in the temporary triumph of the King, and his belief in destiny rose accordingly.

The Pudyne Prince's force now shifted its base of operations to the west, to those provinces of Pagan and Tounghwengyee where his father used to nurse swarms of freebooters who annoyed our border. The enemy held the ancient capital of Ava and threatened Mandalay from the west bank of the river. That city was in a frightful state. A general conscription enrolled every householder for local defence, and forced him to pay five rupees for recruits for the field. Even the town police were sent to the front. Enormous sums were paid for the defence of houses left without a male inhabitant. Law and restraint ceased.

Every citizen who had a private grudge now paid it off. Numbers were cut down on the mere suspicion of sympathy with the rebels. Food and money were hoarded, and famine prevailed. The growing crops were cut down. No less than 80,000 men were blockading Mandalay, and all seemed lost a second time. But again the King's destiny came to his aid. The chief leader of dacoits on the enemy's side was an old acquaintance and so the King wrote to him urging desertion. The letter fell into the hands of his brother General, and sowed such distrust in the army that they were defeated in the engagement of Puleik. The most prominent in rallying the rebels in that disaster was a woman, Mah Net, who held an officer's commission by special appointment. Her courage, instead of exciting their admiration, so exasperated the King's troops that when they captured her she was led in triumph through the streets of Mandalay, and paraded naked in its public places. The tale is thus told.

Arrived at the Criminal Courts of Justice? in close proximity to the Palace, she was publicly beaten with thick canes across the back and breast, and then, faint and unable to walk, or even to stand, from the severity of her punishment, she was literally dragged along with violence, nude and unconscious, and thrown into the common jail. Here she was kept a night, but the beating was resumed at intervals, and even torture applied. The next day Mah Net was sent to Ava, and handed over to the Thonzai Prince, who wished to be revenged upon a woman who, being a woman, had presumed to oppose the Royal troops which he commanded. Almost expiring from the effects of brutalities already inflicted, she was now fastened to a raft made of plantain trees, on which also lay the dead body of an only son, who had just been murdered before her eyes. A trace of life and consciousness was still left, when her breast was divided down the centre by a sword cut, and the raft containing the corpses was pushed into the Irrawaddy, where it floated away, a sad and ghastly record of the savage barbarism of Burman warfare, and (must it be said?) the contemptible instinct and littleness of Burmese Princes.

The second campaign closed with the defeat of the rebels, owing to this distrust in their ranks, and again also to their want of ammunition.

October opened with the third campaign. The King was still confined to Mandalay, the Pudyne Prince still commanded the west bank of the river opposite to the city. But, as the King believed, his destiny was working. The Shans rose and threatened the two provinces in which the prince's army had left their wives and children. From his luxurious asylum to Shoay Bo, where he had assumed the insignia of royalty, the Pudyne prince now sent a deputation of priests to beg mercy of the King. Moungh Mhan caught them on the way and decapitated the leader, but the news spread in the prince's army contributed to its disgust. They would no longer fight for him, but as rebels they must fight for themselves, and Moungh Mhan had not given up all hope that by their means he might yet secure the throne. The Prince of Thonzai, who commanded the King's army, took advantage of the enemy's retreat from Sagyne to occupy it, and this first post on the rebel's side of the river was of immense importance. But fifty rebels drove off 400 of the royalists under the Prince's uncle, and it was only under the threat that he would fire on them instead of the enemy that the Thongzai Prince induced his uncle finally to occupy the place. Such is Burmese soldiering at a "long bullets!" Sagyne being garrisoned a body of 15,000 men were able to cross the river from Mandalay on 6th October under the King's second surviving son:—

He was accompanied in great state by a deputation, which bore along with him to the water's edge a Royal invocation or prayerful appeal to the Genii of rocks, rivers, mountains, seas, lakes, and trees, imploring them in the name and for the sake of all that was good and sacred to favour the King in the person of the young prince and pave the way to victory.

Arrived at the river's bank, the invocation was solemnly read by the proper official, and the prince stepped into his boat under the protection, it was supposed, of a set of presiding deities, unrecognised in Buddhist Divinity, but adored nevertheless on occasions with meat and drink offerings by every practical Buddhist Burman, and even invoked on a state emergency (as in the present instance) by the cumulative assent of the whole Burmese Government.

But in other parts of the country the Pudyne prince was successful, none the less that he captured a large quantity of ammunition and guns, including a Whitworth. The enemy having transferred their strength to the east bank became so successful that only one circumstance saved the King. His destiny, as he thinks, sent up his two war steamers from Rangoon armed and manned by a few English sailors in red coats. The news spread that the Viceroy had despatched an army to the assistance of his ally. Arriving at Mandalay on the 13th October, the steamers were further filled with ammunition and sent up the Irrawaddy. Opposite every village they fired salvos of triumph and waved their banners till the main rebel force dispersed at the news, and Shoay Bo alone remained as the rebel capital. Moungh Mhan deserted the master whom, if successful, he had meant to supplant, and the puppet Pudyne prince, with a crowd of wives and relatives, and guarded by 25 men, fled to the river only to find the villagers, who had seen the steamers, insolent to him. Taking refuge in a monastery, he awaited the arrival of the King's troops, who conducted him and his wives in triumph into Mandalay just three months after he had left it to avenge his father's murder. Strange to say, he is believed still to be alive, though, after the fate of Mah Net, and the torture and massacre of Mr. Marcar Abraham, a British subject, we can imagine his condition. Moungh Mhan has disappeared, but we are likely to hear of him again.

The year will not pass over without another rising. The Shans are already said to be up. The author of the last rebellion, the Meeingon Prince, who with his brother took refuge in our territory, has again left Rangoon, and is fishing in the troubled waters on the frontier. The king is more unpopular than ever with his subjects. His half-sister queen, the Lady Macbeth of this tragedy, with her weird teachings about destiny confirmed by the result of the war, had more influence over the royal mind than Colonel Phayre, and the treaty of 1862 still remains virtually a dead letter. For the moment the king was stunned by the viceroy's letter of warning and reproof, but what is that in the light of his destiny? A few more years and Burmah must be altogether British. This course is desired by the oppressed people and nobles themselves, it is advocated by those who are no friends to annexation, and we have reason to believe it will be approved of by the home authorities. We should never have gone to Burmah. But, being there, the highest considerations demand that we shall do our duty to its fast decreasing population.—Friend of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MR. MASSEY'S LICENCE ACT has now been criticised all over India, and it has met with a unanimous shout of disapprobation and even disgust. The Viceroy has certainly been badly served by his financial advisers, both in taking off taxes and imposing them. Every newspaper and the public bodies of Calcutta have represented the injustice of the new tax. Opinion is especially strong as to the danger of going below Rs. 500 at a time when famine and scarcity have been raging and have not been removed. As a political measure we earnestly urge Sir John Lawrence to exempt incomes under Rs. 500. His Excellency's well-known dread of the political discontent caused by taxation falling on the masses would do good if manifested now. Not only is Calcutta, with the two other presidency cities, to have its local licence tax reckoned, but Government is after all to pay the cost of one-fourth of the police. Thus not only the highest incomes like Mr. Massey's are to virtually escape, but the three richest cities. Talk of confiscation after that. It was "grinding the poor" and exempting the privileged in this way that led to the French Revolution. The rules for collecting the obnoxious impost make it none the less odious. In the presidency cities the municipalities are to collect it—certainly the least they can do for their virtual exemption. Elsewhere it is left to each to apply to the collector for a blank form in seven columns, stating his name, trade or profession, place where he exercises it, class under which he comes and place of payment. The collector will fill up the date and his own name, and the licences will then be entered in registers. The ordinary district and especially excise agency is to collect the tax. The penalty of not applying is thus left to the public. The instructions are not clear, but we trust we are correct in gathering from them that the collector will hear appeals only when he is not also assessor. The same culpable laziness which has characterised the action of financial authorities in drawing up the tax Act marks the rules under which it is to be enforced.—Friend of India.

THE FAMINE.—General narrative for week ending March 4th: Import from south continues, though perhaps diminished. The market continues as it was during last week; and in most places those who have money to buy can buy rice at not less than from eleven to twelve seers per rupee. Public Opinion: Most of the more respectable class of people seem to think themselves tolerably safe, though all are agreed that the condition of the poor is very critical. But the zemindars, farmers, and managers seem to be afraid to advance to their ryots, or to become sureties for them, for fear of a recurrence of last year's floods and consequent loss. Distress: I see no symptoms of increase of actual acute distress. The people seem to drag on somehow, without any of the viable horrors of famine. Chikka shore tracts are in the old depressed state, and I fear that the infirm find the times very trying. Work is to be had, and the people are willing to work. The number of people decreases in most of the centres. Spring crops promising in most places. Rain has fallen in Serain and done good, though rain is much wanted in Choubeskoood and Rahang. The mango crop, which had promised well, has been much damaged by the fogs which prevailed a short time ago. Owing to the prices ruling in the market the quantity of rice sold on behalf of Government is very small.—Englishman.

MR. "KHOTEN" JOHNSON.—We have for some time had on our table the whole of the papers connected with the visit of Mr. W. H. Johnson to Khoten; but we have refrained from noticing the subject, because we were unwilling to prejudice the public mind whilst the case was still under the consideration of Government. The Friend of India, however, in his last issue, has, in our opinion, so unfairly represented the merits of the case, that we this day published Mr. Johnson's reply to Col. Walker's charges against him, which we think will satisfy the public that the treatment he has received has not been so over liberal or considerate as the Friend would lead them to believe. Mr. Johnson in this letter has frankly admitted the error he committed in concealing that he had been detained in the province, and effected his release only by means of large bribes, and has expressed his regret for it. Having done so, generosity requires that his offences in this respect should not be made a ground of accusation against him. Had, however, the Friend confined himself to this error of judgment on the part of this enterprising and courageous public officer we should not have found such very grave fault with his article as we feel compelled to do when we find him supporting Colonel Walker in his attack on the professional reputation of one who has been so highly spoken of by Sir Andrew Waugh, whose reputation, we fancy, stands somewhat higher in the scientific world than that of Colonel Walker. Mr. Johnson's reputation, or the value of his services, are not likely to be damaged either by the Friend of India or by Colonel Walker; and if the Friend will refer to his file of the Pall Mall Gazette, he will find an article written in September last, containing the opinions of Sir Henry Rawlinson, and other equally competent judges, which will probably induce him to think that he has been rather hasty in accepting as fact information furnished to him by those who have interested motives in decrying the value of Mr. Johnson's services. Of Colonel Walker we can only say that having directly encouraged Mr. Johnson to go beyond the frontier, we are surprised he should have lacked courage to support him when he got into trouble; and that having at one time characterised the information he brought back as highly valuable, he should now say that it is worthless. The practice of heads of departments deserting their subordinates when they have sacrificed themselves in the interests of the State is becoming unfortunately too common in India. Sir John Lawrence, we fear, having led the way, is in some measure responsible for this; but of one thing we are certain, viz. that if Mr. Johnson is deserted by Colonel Walker and the Viceroy, he will not be deserted by the Royal Geographical Society and the Secretary of State for India, and that we shall consequently hear more of it.—Englishman.

THE PROPOSED CHANGE IN THE POSTAGE RATES.—The Governor-general has decided that the convenience of the European community must give way to the exigencies of the State, with regard to increasing the limit of weight of letters from one-quarter to one-half tola. The principal grounds for this refusal are the report of the Postmaster-general that it would entail a loss of no less than six lacs of revenue per annum, whilst the present limit of one-quarter of a tola does not in any way interfere with correspondence; the fact that at present the Post-office expenditure annually exceeds the income by a considerable sum; that the annual expenses of the Department are to be increased and the general bad prospects of the year. We are not aware on what grounds Mr. Riddell assumes that such a large annual loss of revenue would be incurred, but we are quite sure that he must always take a supply of paper with him on his tours or he would be better able to appreciate the difficulty of obtaining decent paper, within the present limit, at most of the small stations and towns in the Mofussil. When the revenues of the Post-office produce a surplus some hopes are held out of a reduction of the unit of weight, but the Governor-general should consider that one-half of the work of the Post-office at present is caused by official correspondence, and make allowances for the convenience of the public accordingly.

THE KING OF BURMAH AND MONOPOLY.—The refusal of the King of Burmah to abandon his trading monopolies and adopt the commercial treaty proposed upon him by Col. Phayre has made all classes in Burmah, "from the councillors in the palace at Mandalay to the merchants at Rangoon, anxious for annexation." At least so we are told by the Friend of India. That the merchants of Rangoon are very anxious, indeed, for such a solution of the difficulty we may reasonably believe. Indeed, in an address just presented to Col. Phayre, at the close of his career as Chief Commissioner of British Burmah, while "admiring the calm forbearance which, in pursuit of a non-annexation policy," had characterised the Commissioner's negotiations for the treaty, our merchants do not hesitate to avow their conviction that "pacific overtures having been exhausted," and conciliatory measures being "no longer of any avail"—the time has arrived when something decisive should be done by our Government towards placing our relations with Burmah on a more satisfactory footing. "Something decisive," as interpreted by the Friend of India, means, it seems, that the dominions of the Burmese King should be forthwith annexed to the Empire. In other words, we are to push our trade with Burmah at the point of the sword, as the Friend of India would have us push our religion too, if it dared openly avow the sentiments which have found covert utterance in its columns for the last ten years. The trader and the missionary, unhappily, are too often, though for widely different ends, found urging the same demand upon the Government; but while sympathising fully with the benevolent intentions of the one, we have nothing but disapproval to express for the purely selfish aims of the other. Ten years ago we were for the second time involved in a war with China, owing to the immorality of the trade we were forcing upon its rulers; and it is a curious fact that the Friend of India was then clamouring for the annexation of that vast empire, at the very time when our rule in India was tottering to its foundation, by popular resentment of the course of spoliation on which we had entered. The missionary is anxious—honourably anxious—to see all obstacles to the spread of Christianity in Burmah, and every other land, swept away, and is too impatient, it may be feared, of the end to weigh so scrupulously at all times as he should the means of its attainment. The trader, on the other hand, cannot bring himself to believe that the King of Burmah has the same right to establish "a protective system of duties" if he please to do so as have the United States of America, or a monopoly of the trade of his kingdom such as the Pacha of Egypt maintains. The man is a barbarian, and does not hold his revenues, nor even his own skin, with as indefeasible a right as the white trader of Rangoon does his. Without, of course, being avowed, such is the latent thought that causes much of this annexation talk.—Times of India.

MARRIAGE EXTRAORDINARY.—We have all seen the announcement of a marriage where it was stated that Mr. So-and-So had taken to wife a Miss So-and-So, after a short but delicious courtship, which was perhaps the simple truth; but to advertise in a similar way the whole family pedigree is something new. Here is a specimen cut from the Rangoon Gazette, the perusal of which has almost taken away our breath:—Marriage.—At Thayetmyo, on the 18th February, 1867, by the Rev. Mr. Gastin, Mr. M. W. Brock, to Miss Faith Lee, eldest daughter of Mr. Patrick Lee, grand-daughter to the late Patrick Lee, of Amesfield, grand-niece to the late Robert Peppard, of Cuppur, great-grand-niece to the late John Hewson, Esq., Castle Hewson, second cousin to Dr. John Peppard, M.D., Busby-park Palace, Kennerly; second cousin to John Joseph Jones, Esq., Mount Challen, county of Limerick, Ireland, also second cousin to Robert Peppard and John Peppard, Esq., Bray, near Dublin. Here are a batch of fifty-second cousins, as the Scotch would say, with a vengeance.—Englishman.

MAJOR GENERAL HALY, C.B.—The Mofussilite is eloquently sad over the fact that Major General Haly, C.B., commanding the Peshawur division, while setting an example to all general officers of zeal for the service in going through a course of musketry instruction with the new breech-loader, was seized with an attack of gout.

THE HON. ASHLEY EDEN proceeds to England by the out-going French steamer, which leaves on the 21st March. He has taken leave for 15 months, and, if necessary, he will apply for its extension in England. His pro tem. successor will be Mr. Stuart Bayley, the junior secretary, and it is believed that, on the accession of the Hon. Mr. Grey, Mr. H. L. Dampier, the Nuddea Commissioner, now a member of the Famine Commission, will become the Bengal Secretary. The Bengal Secretariat has for a long time been adorned by a succession of men who in time became first-class Indian politicians. The Holts, the Mackenzies, the Mangles, the Hallidays, the Grants, the Beadons, and the Greys were all brought up in the Bengal office, and it was there they first signalled themselves. Since the promotion of Mr. Grey, there was a decline in Secretariat talent, but the appointment of the honourable Mr. Eden, a comparatively junior civilian, who was known to be too clever for his years, naturally drew public attention to the working of the Bengal office. And we must say, whatever may be the general estimate of the administration of Bengal during the last five years, that none could come in contact with the Bengal secretary without being struck with the clearness and vigour of his intellect, his sound common sense, his liberal views, his intelligent appreciation of the leading principles of Indian policy, and his thorough sympathy with the people. We sincerely hope to welcome early his return to India and his elevation to a higher sphere of official life, to which his past services justly entitle him.—Englishman.

ACCIDENT TO A GOVERNMENT STEAMER.—A serious mishap, which we understand will entail a heavy loss on Government, has occurred to one of their steamers proceeding down the Ganges. The Ghazepore, Captain Green, with a valuable cargo of opium on board, through some unexplainable carelessness was driven on the top of one of her own anchors in shallow water, and the damage done was considerable. We hear that about two hundred chests of opium were more or less injured, so that the loss must be rather a heavy one. The Ghazepore was a first-class boat, and from the fact of her having met with the above accident we are led to believe the mishap was more the result of inexperience or stupidity on the part of her commander than the fault of the vessel. The matter will be thoroughly investigated, no doubt, if it be true that Government will have its pockets pretty severely tapped by the accident, and it may lead to reform in that branch of its service, which we hear is at present sadly faulty, and seems to clearly be so from the above report that has reached us.—Dacca News and Planters' Journal.

ACCIDENT TO CAPTAIN DENNEHY.—It is with much regret we hear that Captain Dennehy, Assistant Inspector-general of Government Railway Police, has met with a most severe accident. Driving over from Humceppore to Cawnpore with the Inspector-general of Police and Mr. J. W. Power, C.S., the horse made a bad stumble, the reins broke, and the horse ran away. Captain Dennehy's orderly, in trying to stop the horse, succeeded in completely upsetting both the animal and the dog-cart. The cart fell heavily on Captain Dennehy's back, and we fear he is seriously hurt. He was brought to Cawnpore in a palkee, and we are glad to hear he is doing as well as can be expected. Mr. Mayne and Mr. Power—luckily for them—had walked on ahead, and Captain Dennehy was alone in the dog-cart when the accident occurred.—Pioneer, March 20.

THE MAHARAJAH OF CASHMERE will visit the Hurdwar Fair this year, accompanied by a retinue of 1,000 infantry, 500 cavalry, two guns, and upwards of 2,000 camp followers. From the Hurdwar Fair his Highness proceeds to Simla, his camp returning direct to Jummoo.—Pioneer.

BARBARIY IN BURMAH.—This is what is going on in the capital of our enlightened ally the King of Burmah. A correspondent of the Rangoon Times saw, for the second time in a week, a wholesale execution of rebels. A noisy crowd came rapidly by, and in the middle of it was a bullock cart, and riding on the cart, in the meanest and scantiest dress, a young Burmah woman; in front were the executioners, and on each side and behind guards of soldiers. Mingling with the guards and crowding the street were men and boys shouting and hastening on as if to a spectacle of rare amusement. The men were put to death slowly. The woman received five successive blows on her throat before life seemed extinct, and her body was thrown with the other corpses, but when half the people had gone the executioners saw her breathing again.

INQUEST ON LIEUT. JOHNSTON.—The Court of Inquest on the death of Lieut. Johnston have found a verdict of suicide, viz., "that the deceased died from the effects of chloroform intentionally taken by him with a view of destroying life while in an unsound state of mind." A paper was found in his waistcoat pocket by Dr. Macnamara whilst searching for his keys that left no doubt in the minds of the jury that his intellect prior to the commission of suicide was impaired and in an unsound state. His unfortunate widow was so affected as to be confined to her room and unable to give any evidence. It appears the deceased had been in the habit of using both prussic acid and chloroform.

PROMOTION OF BRIGADIER-GENERAL SHUBRICK.—We are glad to hear that Brigadier-General Shubrick will shortly be promoted to the rank of Major-General. But while we congratulate the general on his prospect of obtaining this well-merited step in his profession, we have no doubt that the intelligence will be received with regret by the public both of Nagpore and Kemptee, as it will necessitate the general's departure from amongst us. In all local movements, whether set on foot for charitable or social objects, the general ever took the initiative, and this unflinching readiness on his part to promote everything calculated to benefit or amuse the community has gained for him an amount of popularity but rarely accorded to military men.—Central India Times.

A CERTIFICATE OF CHARACTER FOR SIR CECIL BEADON.—Sir Cecil Beadon is not going home without a certificate of character from this country. On Sunday last a meeting of Mahomedans of influence and respectability took place at the Townhall of Calcutta, at which it was resolved to present his Honour with an address, especially thanking him for his services during the famine. The leader of the movement is Moulvie Abdool Lutef Khan Bahadoor! Wonders never will cease!!—Pioneer.

NOTHING NEW.—A Calcutta correspondent of the Delhi Gazette says:—In a Burmese work called the "Niti Kyan," a code of ethics in Pali, translated by E. Fowle, Esq., I find the following:—"64. You may break or crush a sugarcane as much as you please, but it will still retain its sweetness." What does Moore say:—

"You may break, you may ruin the vase if you will, But the scent of the roses will hang round it still."

THE SMALL-POX, to which Mr. Madlock fell a victim, would seem to have assumed the form of an epidemic in the Hills. The Majessite states that it has broken out at Dehra in the most virulent form, and has spread to Mussoorie, where it has attacked the convalescent depot. A few miles off two millions are expected to attend the Hurdwar Fair. Government should undoubtedly do its best to stop the gathering.

DR. RALPH MOORE.—The same steamer which carries Mr. Eden also carries another labourer in the cause of Indian amelioration, we mean Dr. Ralph Moore. This gentleman has made the improvement of Indian administration a labour of love, and we are told he lately came out to India with a view to collect materials for laying before the Queen's Government a faithful picture of the present condition of her Eastern dominions.—Englishman.

THE OFFICERS OF H.M.'s 101ST (Royal Bengal Fusiliers) have been entertaining their late commanding officer, Lieut.-Colonel Salusbury, at dinner. All the magnates of the station of Cawnpore, including Major-general Beatson, commanding the division, were present on the occasion. Colonel Salusbury has since left Cawnpore for Bombay. He carries the good wishes of the whole regiment with him. Major Brown succeeds to the command of this distinguished corps during Colonel Salusbury's absence.

DISTURBANCES AT QUEDAH.—Some disturbances are reported, from Singapore, to have broken out at Quedah, where the Rajah has chosen to break through his treaty stipulations, and set the English at defiance. An officer has been sent from Singapore to bring the refractory chief to reason, and, if possible, to bring the affair to an amicable termination.

DISEASE AMONG THE HORSES IN TIPPERAH.—We are sorry to hear from Tipperah that disease has been rife among the horses at the station, and that the losses in horse flesh at Comillah within the last few months will equal if not out-number the victims at Mymensing, a station so notoriously fatal to the horse.—Dacca News.

PETS.—We commend to all in search of pets the fact that the Rev. Mr. Boake, Principal of a College in Colombo, has discovered two young crocodiles in a nest at the Balgodd Lake, and is rearing them "by hand," by forcing food down their throats. The little pets are thriving.

THE REV. MR. MADDOCK.—There is a proposition to raise a subscription with the object of erecting a monument in the Mussoorie cemetery over the remains of the late Mr. Madlock, as well as a tablet or a memorial window in the Mussoorie church, as well as in his own parish church in England.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LORD NAPIER AND SUITE returned to Madras on the afternoon of Sunday last (March 17). As we anticipated, his Lordship, after landing at Masulipatam, proceeded by canal to Bez-wada, and inspected the works of the Kistna anicut. On returning to Masulipatam the Governor received the gentlemen of the district at a levee and durbar, and had an address presented to him by the inhabitants of the town. His Lordship and Lady Napier visited the various schools and public establishments of the place, and expressed themselves pleased with the progress made by the towns-people in recovering from the disastrous effects of the late destructive cyclone. There is nothing of particular interest to record regarding the Governor's movements since his return to Madras.—Madras Times.

THE PROPOSED AMALGAMATION OF THE BANKS.—The Madras Times remarks on this subject: The commercial world in India has been excited during the past week with a scheme that has been started by the manager of the Bank of Bengal, for the amalgamation of the Presidency Banks of Calcutta, Bombay, and Madras. It was probably the present position of the Bank of Bombay which suggested this idea. As may be supposed, the scheme finds great favour with the distressed proprietors of shares in the chief bank of the Western Presidency, who, of course, see here a means of escape from their present difficulties. The telegrams from Calcutta, too, inform us that the scheme is viewed favourably there. Not so, however, in Madras, which does not at all relish being absorbed in the great concern.

PRINCE AZIM JAH.—The public here have generally been pleased to hear that Prince Azim Jah's affairs have been settled at last. Mr. Massey stated in his budget that £150,000 was to be assigned for the payment of the Prince's debts, and that he is to have an annual allowance of £15,000. It is said, moreover, that the Queen will confer on him the title of Prince of Arcot, and that the title is to be hereditary. A suitable residence will be provided for him by Government, and the Prince is to be allowed the privilege of receiving and firing salutes as the premier Mussulman nobleman of Southern India. It is said that Azim Jah would not have accepted these conditions but for his present financial difficulties, which preclude the possibility of his holding out any longer. On the whole, however, we think the Prince has acted wisely in accepting what the Government has felt disposed to offer.—Madras Times.

CIVIL DISPENSARIES.—Lord Napier's order on Lord Cranborne's despatch relative to the management of civil dispensaries has produced something very like a mutiny among the civil surgeons. We hear that about a dozen of them have already sent in their applications to be relieved of their civil charge and to be placed on military employ. We believe that Lord Napier is already convinced of his error, and intends withdrawing the obnoxious order. The issuing of it was a great mistake, and will probably prove a wholesome lesson to his lordship to be more careful in future in the "sensational" reports he submits for the consideration of the Secretary of State. Lord Napier's activity and determination to see everything for himself are much to be commended, but his minute on the civil dispensaries was, as we pointed out at the time of its publication, a hasty and ill-considered paper, which did great and palpable injustice to the whole medical service.—Madras Times.

CONSECRATION OF A ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH.—Yesterday morning the ceremony of consecrating the lately completed Church of St. Francis Xavier in Popham's Broadway was performed by the Right Rev. Dr. J. Fennelly, the Roman Catholic Bishop, assisted by the Revs. Messrs. Colgan and Peacock, as deacon and subdeacon respectively. An immense concourse of persons collected to witness the consecration, and not only the edifice itself but also the surrounding enclosure was thronged. The Church of St. Francis Xavier was commenced as long ago as 1843, and was in the hands of the builders during part of 1845-46, but want of funds to carry on the work brought it to a standstill, and the building remained in its unfinished state for about twenty years, till it was resolved by the Catholics of Madras to make the twenty-fifth anniversary of Bishop Fennelly's appointment to the Vicariate, which fell on the 17th November, the occasion of contributing the necessary funds to complete the Church, and these were accordingly raised by subscription. At the conclusion of the ceremony of consecration, Pontifical High Mass was celebrated in the church by his lordship the Bishop, supported by the Revs. Messrs. Colgan and Peacock and a number of other priests.—Athenæum and Daily News, March 5.

BONUS COMMITTEE.—The names of the committee appointed to consider the bonus and compensation question are published in the Gazette. Colonel McGoun, controller of military accounts, is president; Lieutenant-Colonel J. E. Mayne, staff corps, deputy judge advocate-general, centre division, and Lieutenant-Colonel A. Stewart, R.A., acting examiner of ordnance accounts, are members; and Captain A. C. Forth, staff corps secretary.

DEATH OF COLONEL W. PITT MACDONALD.—By the death of Colonel W. Pitt Macdonald a great step will be made in the amalgamation of the Royal and Indian armies, as the Engineer officers who formerly belonged to the old company's service will now be entirely dissevered from their comrades of the local Indian army.—Madras Times.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE LATEST THING IN FORGERIES.—Some of the Indian newspapers have published a document which purports to be a despatch from Sir Salar Jung, Minister of the Nizam, to the British Resident at Hyderabad, but which, judging only by internal evidence, we unhesitatingly pronounce to be an impudent forgery. There is prima facie evidence against the genuineness of the so called despatch in the fact that it has the Madras stamp upon it, and bears a strong resemblance to the remarkable series of State papers that were manufactured for the Rajah of Mysore. The only difference is the excessive insolence of tone of the Nizam's despatch; but this also is no doubt meant to be in keeping with the changed state of the relations between the British Government and the native princes since it became known in India that the Rajah of Mysore was likely to succeed in frightening the Supreme Government into allowing him to bequeath the kingdom to an heir whom he had publicly adopted in open defiance of the expressed wishes of the Paramount Power. The despatch is very cleverly written; and, although no

British resident of the present day, and certainly not Sir George Yule, would think of forwarding such a document to Calcutta and London, the writer only anticipates by a year or two what will be the style of correspondence from native Courts if the present policy of "India for the Indian princes and their satellites" be steadily and consistently persevered with. But the time has not yet come for the Nizam to dare to tell the Government which keeps him on his throne that "it is clearly impossible the great blessings of peace and prosperity can be secured to the country unless the Government of British India possesses a more active and earnest sense of duty than it has recently displayed;" that "but a few years ago his Highness was induced by feelings of ancient friendship to interpose his benedict authority to shield the Government of British India from the fatal consequences of unjust wars and usurpations and prolonged mal-administration;" that "through the merciful dispensation of Providence Lord Dalhousie"—the allusion is, we presume, to the premature death of that greatest of English rulers of India—"escaped the punishment which otherwise would surely have overtaken him" for misleading his sovereign as to the real state of the country; that, since the "deposition of the East India Company Bahadur, and the issue of the Queen's proclamation commanding the Government of British India to cease from war and from usurpation, to govern her subjects with wisdom and justice, and to preserve amity and good faith towards neighbouring Powers, the Government of British India, thus compelled to discontinue its warlike operations, and debarred from making violent acquisitions from peaceful and virtuous princes, has subsided into apathy and slothfulness, and has been totally unprepared to provide for the wants of the people in the recent famine;" and, finally, that "the Government of his Highness desires to express its firm conviction of the necessity of a radical and complete reform in the administration of the Government of British India, and . . . would be willing to assume the administration of Orissa with a view to placing the affairs of that province on a sound footing." We have noticed this forged despatch at such length because we think it is desirable that the people of England who rejoice that Mysore has not been annexed should learn how far unscrupulous agitators are prepared to go in this country in exciting the ill-will of the remaining native princes to the British Government. The despatch will of course be read to the Nizam, and will no doubt serve its intended purpose of inspiring him with the belief that he is a very powerful and magnanimous Sovereign, and has serious causes of discontent against the Government at Calcutta. We look upon it as a fortunate thing, in these circumstances, that Mr. Temple has been selected for the post of Resident at Hyderabad. No one in India has done more than the present Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces to teach the people in what the superiority of the English system of Government to that of their native princes consists. He knows that, if our Government makes mistakes, those mistakes are exposed and remedied, while the Government of a native prince who is not controlled by a minister converted to English views means simply the thorough and consistent oppression of the people for the gratification of the vicious tastes of a sensual and profligate court. Mr. Temple will have very arduous and honourable work to do at Hyderabad in supporting the minister whose partiality for our Government makes him hateful to the Nizam, and in upholding the prestige of the Paramount Power, which our recent policy has rudely shaken; and he may be safely trusted to acquit himself creditably of the high functions committed to his charge.—Bombay Gazette.

UNREASONABLE DELAY.—Although the contract for the completion of the line of the B.B. and C.I. Railway along Back Bay was accepted a couple of months ago, not the slightest attempt has been yet made to commence the works. It is understood that the Government of India has taken exception to some of the terms of the final agreement lately entered into with the Government of Bombay, and that the local Government itself now wishes merely to bring the railway down to Colaba instead of using the Reclamation Company's breakwater and reclaiming a large portion of the shore inside it. It is a pity that the Government does not seem to know its own mind for a month together, and that a work so necessary as the continuation of the railway down to Colaba should be indefinitely delayed by the interference of the Supreme Government at Calcutta. The delay that has already occurred has lost us another fair season, for the work can hardly now be commenced before the monsoon. So far as can be judged from what has already happened, it may be years yet before any attempt is made to complete a work which the railway company itself would doubtless be glad to pay a large sum of money in order to have accomplished at once.—Bombay Gazette.

STORM AT BERAR.—Letters from Berar inform us that a storm of almost unprecedented violence broke over the province on Saturday, the 23rd March, destroying many lives and doing much damage to property. The first sign of the storm was a great black cloud rising from the south-west, and quickly overshadowing the whole heavens. This was followed by a dust storm, and the dust storm by a furious gale of wind, accompanied by thunder and lightning. The cotton stacked at Shegaum and Nandora was struck by lightning in ten different places, but the fires were extinguished before much injury was done. One driver of a bullock cart, who had just brought a freight of cotton to Nandora, was struck dead by the electricity while sitting on the shafts of his cart; the bullocks escaped unhurt. The storm, which was a regular cyclone, travelled very nearly along the line of rail from Akola to Oomrawatee and Nagpore, and is said to have moved at the rate of fifty miles an hour. On Sunday there was a very heavy fall of rain over the same track of country. The weather in Bombay for some days past has been curiously dull and overcast for this time of the year; and on Saturday in particular the weather-wise fancied they saw signs of a coming cyclone; but the storm seems to have passed in another direction.—Bombay Gazette.

THE CHIEF COMMISSIONERSHIP OF THE CENTRAL PROVINCES.—We have already mentioned that Mr. R. H. Davies, Financial Commissioner of Oude, has been spoken of as likely to succeed Mr. Temple, and, as Mr. Davies hails from the Punjab, his appointment was not considered by any means unlikely. The Hon. Mr. Justice Campbell, of the Calcutta High Court, has also been mentioned as a gentleman upon whom it is probable the viceregal choice will fall, and we have reason to believe that there are very good grounds for this supposition. Mr. Campbell's varied experience and proved ability are perhaps among the least of his qualifications for such a post. He is at present engaged as President of the Committee appointed to investigate and report upon the causes and extent of the Orissa famine, and as their inquiry must now be well-nigh concluded, his duties in connection therewith would not long detain him from proceeding to Nagpore if appointed. The question is whether Mr. Campbell would not be thrown away in the Central Provinces, as we fear Mr. Temple has in some respects been at Hyderabad.—Times of India.

THE INDO-EUROPEAN TELEGRAPH.—To say that the working of the Indo-European Telegraph during the past month has been exceedingly unsatisfactory would convey but a very inadequate idea of the useless state in which the line has been. In the latter half of February telegrams were received with greater regularity and despatch than had been the case for several months, and merchants and others in India were beginning to expect that at length the exertions of Colonel Goldsmid in Europe and of the directors in Asia had secured them an efficient telegraph. During the latter half of the month of February the average time of transmission between Great Britain and Kurrachee was less than forty hours—a state of affairs which was expected even to improve as the season in Europe became more favourable for telegraphic communication. All these comforting calculations were, however, dispelled by the flooding of the Tigris, and the bursting of the Bund above Bagdad, the waters of which completely submerged the direct line via Turkey, causing a complete cessation of traffic, in consequence of which messages were not received from Great Britain for nearly a fortnight, and when at length one or two did come to hand they were so old as to be of comparatively little value. Unfortunately, too, the Persian line has been in its normal state of interruption during the greater part of the month, so that no relief could be obtained from that route. Meantime we are assured by Sir Arnould Kemball, the British resident at Bagdad, that no effort is being spared to connect the broken links, and have communication once more restored. It is already well known how strenuously and successfully Sir Arnould Kemball has exerted himself to effect the removal of those political and local difficulties which at one time threatened completely to stop the traffic by the route through Turkey in Asia. A second wire is now being added all along the line, and when this shall have been completed, and also the special wire for Indian messages between Vienna and Constantinople, a tolerably efficient service may be expected with some degree of confidence. The effect of the late annoying interruptions, however, has been to direct public attention once more to the long-talked submarine line by the Red Sea, as being the best means of securing an alternate means of telegraphic communication with England and the Continent.—Times of India.

ROMAN CATHOLIC APPOINTMENTS.—The Bombay Gazette says:—Two official letters have arrived from Rome, one nominating the Roman Catholic Bishop of Bombay, the Right Rev. Dr. Steins, S.J., Archbishop of Bosra, in partibus infidelium, and the other appointing his lordship, the Vicar Apostolic of Calcutta, the late Archbishop having died in 1865. There are few in Bombay who will not regret his Grace's departure, however gratified they may be at the dignity to which he has been exalted. His Grace will remain in Bombay to consecrate his successor, should the nomination of a successor be received by an early mail.

AFFGHANISTAN.—Our Cabul letter, with intelligence down to the 8th of March, has reached us. There is not much news of importance. Abdoolrahman Khan has been appointed Governor of Candahar. Ameer Shere Ally Khan is encamped between Gurrishk and Furrah on the Heerat road. Our correspondent complains bitterly of the oppressions committed in Cabul by the present Ameer, Afzul Khan, and says the inhabitants would all leave the place and migrate elsewhere if they could, to escape the tyranny of their ruler.—Delhi Gazette.

THE PROPOSED AMALGAMATION OF THE BANKS.—Though we cannot report great progress in the negotiations for the amalgamation of the Bank of Bengal and Bombay, the strong favour with which the proposal is regarded by the shareholders of both banks and the mercantile public generally, renders the ultimate and speedy completion of the negotiations a matter of tolerable certainty. The delay in the meantime has been caused, not by any difference of opinion as to the desirability, amounting in the case of Bombay to an absolute necessity, of carrying out the proposed amalgamation, but by a natural desire on the part of each party to strike, if not a hard, at least an advantageous bargain. The directors of the Bank of Bombay have suggested certain slight alterations in the terms proposed by their Bengal brethren, in order to obtain somewhat better terms for their shareholders, or perhaps to maintain as long as possible the semblance of vitality, and an apparent absence of constraint.—Times of India.—The design of establishing a State Bank for all India has not found favour with the shareholders of the Bank of Madras, who are to a man indignant at the suggestion that their independent institution should be "absorbed" by the Bank of Bengal. But the undoubted advantages to India of having a great bank, with branches in every large town, to conduct the financial business of the country on a uniform system will cause this resolution to be ultimately overruled. Even, however, if the Bank of Madras were able to persist in the determination of standing out in the cold, it is now certain that there will, at all events, be an amalgamation of the Banks of Bengal and Bombay.—Bombay Gazette.

DEATH OF MAJOR-GENERAL HEATH.—We have received a telegram from Kurrachee reporting, we regret to say, the death of Major-General J. C. Heath, at nine o'clock on Sunday night, the 27th of March, after a short illness. Major-General Heath was in command of the Sind division of the Bombay army; he served in Upper Sind in 1839-40, and commanded a detachment at Dadur, when attacked on two occasions by Nusseer Khan, Chief of Khelat.

To H.E. the Rt. Hon. the Governor general of India in Council.

Sir,—I have considered in Council your military letter No. 243, dated Sept. 21 last, transmitting correspondence regarding the title of an assistant surgeon in medical charge of a British regiment of brigade of artillery during the absence of a surgeon on "privilege leave," to the special remuneration of Rs. 150 per mensem laid down in para. 9 [G.G.O. No. 507 of 1864] of Sir Charles Wood's despatch No. 152, dated May 16, 1864.

In reply I have to inform you that the special grant of Rs. 150 referred to was sanctioned to assistant surgeons of her Majesty's service in India who might, by the exigency of the service be placed temporarily in medical charge of a British regiment.

It should be allowed, therefore, in all cases of an assistant surgeon succeeding to the temporary charge on the death, removal, or absence on medical certificate of the surgeon, but it was not intended that any such extra charge should be incurred as a consequence of the regimental surgeon being absent on private leave and for his own convenience.—I have, &c.,
(Signed) CRANBORNE.

DUTIES OF ARTILLERY OFFICERS.

No. 296.—The following military letter from the Right Hon. the Secy. of State for India, No. 248, dated Nov. 30 last, is published for general information:—

India-office, London, Nov. 30, 1866.

Military, No. 248.

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Governor General of India in Council.

Sir,—The questions raised in your Excellency's despatches, No. 125 of June 16 last, and No. 160 of June 30 last, have been referred to H.R.H. the Field Marshal C. in C.

2. In reply, H.R.H. has informed me that it is very desirable, that, as a rule, artillery officers should not be employed in other than strictly regimental duties beyond ten years, and that there are obvious reasons why it would be disadvantageous to the interests of the service to perpetuate a system by which officers who, as subalterns and captains, may have been engaged in miscellaneous duties for an indefinite number of years, may return to their regiment as field officers, to exercise superior commands, with the duties of which they would necessarily have very little acquaintance.

3. H.R.H. conceives that the fact of such employment being connected with the ordnance department does not lessen that objection.

4. The F.M. C. in C. has, therefore, proposed, for my consideration, that the same rule should be applied to India as that obtaining in England, viz., that all ordnance appointments, including the manufacturing departments and ordnance commissariat, to which, however, there is nothing exactly analogous in this country, should be held for five years only, and be vacated accordingly, but that, should the interests of the public service render it expedient, the Government of India might, so far as the most important of these appointments are concerned, be permitted to re-appoint an officer for another term of five years.

5. H.R.H. believes that this rule would work very beneficially in precluding the employment of officers away from their regiment for too long a period, and at the same time in being the means of opening the departments to a larger number of officers, whilst by giving to the authorities the power of reappointing and retaining an officer in a situation from which he could not be spared without detriment to the service all inconvenience arising from a too rigid adherence to the five years' rule would be obviated.

6. As regards present incumbents, however, H.R.H. would not desire to apply the rule too strictly, and has suggested that all officers now in the Departments, who were appointed under the former regulations, and have a reasonable claim to consideration, may, without reference to the five years' limitation, be permitted to remain in their appointments for such periods as the authorities in India may desire to retain their services, and under such circumstances H.R.H. would have no objection to their rejoining their regiment when their employment on the staff shall cease.

7. H.R.H. further, with reference to the responsible nature of the duties of 1st class commissaries of ordnance, sees no objection to the appointments in that grade being held by regimental lieutenant colonels, as recommended by your Government in your letter of June 16, No. 125.

8. I have expressed my concurrence in these views.

9. With reference to the inquiry in the first paragraph of your Excellency's letter, No. 160, I have to inform you that the time during which an officer officiates in a staff appointment is not to be reckoned in the period to which absence from regimental duty is limited.

March 15.—No. 297.—The services of Major G. F. Carnegie, Bengal staff corps, canton. mag. of Futehgarh, are, at his own request, placed at the disposal of the C. in C. for employment under his Excellency's orders.

SERVICE—LEAVE.

March 11.—No. 56.—Under the authority of Government, and with reference to the order [G.O. G.G. No. 31a, April 15, 1863], it is hereby notified "that the force which entered Lucknow under Sir H. Havelock in September, 1857, and that which he left behind at the Alum Bagh, are entitled to count the boon of a year's service as time towards furlough, in the same manner as those officers originally engaged in the defence of Lucknow."

RETURNS.

March 1.—In continuation of G.O.C.C., para. 6, of Oct. 22, 1863, and under instructions received from the Govt. of India, the following classes of officers, non-commissioned officers, and men will be excluded from the returns of "actual numbers in India" in future:—

1. Officers holding divisional and brigade commands, seconded.

2. Officers of the royal artillery in the ordnance or other departments, seconded.

3. Officers of British regiments holding staff appointments limited to 5 years, if of the substantive rank of field officer.

4. District inspectors of musketry, seconded.

The "actual numbers in India" return of the royal engineers will include only the officers and men of the home service, borne on the rolls of the skeleton company for military duty; the officers and men of the home service in detached staff employ being shown in the nominal roll on the reverse of the return.

GYMNASIA—DRILL AND INSTRUCTION.

The C-in-C. is pleased to direct the publication, for observance in the three presidencies, of the following Horse Guards' circular memo.:—

No. 387, dated Nov. 15.—"H.R.H. the Field Marshal Cmdg.-in-C. desires that, at stations where military gymnasia have been, or may hereafter be constructed, all young officers of infantry, on joining their regiments or depots, be put through a complete course of instruction in fencing therein, and that all other officers be encouraged to take up the same in their leisure hours as much as possible.

"Officers of cavalry will continue to receive instruction in fencing at their regiments as heretofore, whether there be a garrison gymnasium or not."

PENSIONS—WIDOWS.

March 6.—No. 43.—In continuation of the orders [Royal Warrants, June 15, 1855, July 18, 1867, G.G.O. No. 1,433 of 1858] the C. in C. is pleased to direct the publication, for general information, of the following decision of the Right Hon. the Sec. of State for India, received with military dept., No. 767 of Nov. 30 last:—

"I have considered in Council the recommendation in your letter in this dept., No. 154 of 1866, dated June 30, that an officer's widow who may have ceased to draw pension from the Compassionate Fund on her re-marriage may be allowed to revert to the allowance on her again becoming a widow, as in the case of the mother of an officer.

"2. In the case of the mother of an officer who has lost her pension by re-marriage, it is provided that the allowance shall not be renewed, unless, on her again becoming a widow, she is left in distressed circumstances.

"3. With the same proviso, I accede to your recommendation on behalf of an officer's widow.

"4. The case of Mrs. — may be dealt with accordingly."

DISCIPLINE—DETACHMENTS.

It has been recently brought to the notice of the C. in C. that the commanding officer of a British regiment marching through the country took upon himself to punish the native watchmen supplied to his camp, by the infliction of fines and stripes, for alleged neglect of duty; and further exacted from the lumberdars of certain villages the value of property said to have been stolen from his camp followers.

The C. in C. desires to warn officers against any similar procedure, which is utterly illegal.

The officer in question evidently regarded the 85th article of war for native troops as empowering him to act as he did.

In the first place, the 85th article of war for the native troops has no reference to officers commanding British regiments.

MUSKETRY.

The C-in-C. is pleased to direct that the musketry instruction of the Royal Artillery shall in future be carried out by the officers and non-commissioned officers of batteries, assisted, when necessary, by the instructors of gunnery belonging to the brigades serving in India.

Officers commanding the Royal Artillery in each division, who will be held responsible for the efficiency of the batteries under their respective commands, will, whenever they deem it necessary, detach one of the assistant instructors of gunnery to out-stations for this purpose.

MUSKETRY—VETERINARY DEPARTMENT—TRAVELLING ALLOWANCES.

With reference to the orders G.O. No. 161 of July 27, and 248 of Oct. 30, the C-in-C. is pleased to publish the following scale of travelling expenses sanctioned by Govt. for inspecting veterinary surgeons:—

8 annas per mile, when travelling by dawk.

3 annas per mile, when travelling by rail.

5 rupees a day during their stay at any out-station on duty in course of inspection.

These sums being passed under the same conditions as rule the grant in the case of district inspectors of musketry.

2. The allowances granted to district inspectors of musketry, when proceeding from one station to another on a tour of inspection, are those specified above for inspecting veterinary surgeons, and are drawn in contingent bills duly vouched in the usual manner. And similar allowances are also granted to the chief inspector of musketry, whenever it may be necessary for him to proceed on a tour of inspection away from army head quarters.

DEFEAT OF THE MURREE MARAUDERS.

No. 185.—H.E. the Gov. in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following correspondence received from the Adj. gen. relative to an attack by a detachment of Scinde Horse on a body of Murree plunderers on Jan. 27 last:—

The Right Hon. the Gov. in Council entirely concurs in the commendation bestowed by H.E. the C. in C. on Russuldar Taj Singh and Jemadar Meer Munavur Ali, for their excellent dispositions and persevering gallantry.

"Adj. gen.'s Office, Head Quarters, Poona, Feb. 26, 1867.

"To the Secy. to Govt., Mily. Dept., Bombay, Sir,—I have the honour to forward, for the information of the Gov. in Council, the accompanying letter from Lieut. col. Sir H. Green, comdg. Scinde frontier field force, reporting the successful attack of a detachment of Scinde horse on a body of Murree plunderers in the neighbourhood of the Goranaree outpost, together with a copy of a letter addressed to that officer, conveying the sentiments of the C. in C. on the behaviour of the troops on that occasion.—I have the honour to be, &c.,

(Signed) T. Strock, Col.,
Adj. gen. of the Army.

No. 148.

Commandant in Chief's Office, Camp Choore, Feb. 1, 1867.

To the Adjutant general of the Army, Poona.

Sir,—I have the honour to state, for the information of H.E. the C. in C., that on the 27th ult. a body of Murree horse, numbering upwards of 200 men, were reported as approaching the outpost of Goranaree, and sweeping up any cattle about. The officer commanding that post, Jemadar Meer Munavur Ali, of the 3rd Sind horse, immediately mounted with his detachment of 24 sabres, and proceeded in pursuit, coming up with the robber horse-men near a spot called Hoodoo. The Jemadar was here joined by a patrol consisting of 109 sabres under Russuldar Taj Singh, of the 2nd Scinde horse, which had been despatched by me from the outpost of Toj, on the 25th ult., where I was halted with a detachment from the frontier brigade.

2. The Russuldar's party had that morning marched from the Sunrie Post. Both detachments having joined, attacked the Murrees, and a sharp skirmish ensued, resulting in the loss of 16 men and 5 mares killed to the plunderers, and 1 man and 3 mares taken with the arms of the killed. On the side of the Scinde horse, 2 Jemadars were wounded, and 7 horses killed and 1 wounded. The Murrees then turned and fled; and the Russuldar having collected the stolen cattle, returned them to their owners, and followed in pursuit, which he continued via Mundoo-kee-Kundah, 12 miles north-east of Shapoor (ride frontier map) to the pass of Nuseer-kee-Poost, a distance of about 35 miles; as here the Murrees entered the hills, further pursuit would have been useless, and Russuldar Taj Singh returned to Goranaree, where he arrived at 10 p.m., having covered since daylight a distance of not less than 70 miles.

3. I am of opinion that both Russuldar Taj Singh and Jemadar Meer Munavur Ali are worthy of commendation for their alacrity in attacking the plunderers, recovering the cattle, and resolution in maintaining the pursuit until the freebooters entered their hills.

4. I may here mention the extreme difficulty of coming up with these mounted robbers on their hardy, well-trained mares, each rider having a perfect knowledge of the country, and when defeated, seldom keeping together, but scattering in every direction.

5. The whole of the cattle which was in the hands of the Murree when attacked belonged to the Boogee tribe, and not to British subjects.

6. On the day that the above skirmish occurred, I have intelligence that 1,200 Murrees, Mussories, and Kaitrans made a raid into the Punjab, near Hurrund, were met by the people of the country, aided by a detachment from the 5th Punjab cavalry, and sustained a severe defeat, losing between 150 and 200 men, including Goolam Hoosein Mussorie, a noted freebooter, and many other men of note.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

C. in C., Scinde Frontier Field Force.

P.S.—I have just received intimation from Belooch scouts, who were sent to follow up the Murree freebooters into their hills, that they came upon five more dead mares belonging to the party, and which had died of wounds received in the skirmish.

(Signed) HENRY GREEN, Lieut. col.,
C. in C., Scinde Frontier Field Force.

No. 1,034.

Adjutant General's Office, Head-quarters, Poona, Feb. 13, 1867.

To Sir H. Green, Commandant-in-Chief Scinde Frontier Field Force.

Sir,—The Commander-in-Chief has received, with much satisfaction, your report of the gallant defeat of a body of Murree marauders by detachments of the Scinde horse under command of Russuldar Taj Singh and Jemadar Meer Munavur Ali.

The promptitude of Jemadar Meer Munavur Ali in pursuing a very superior body of the enemy, and the energy with which the pursuit was maintained by Russuldar Taj Singh until the whole of the plundered property was recovered, and the enemy driven with some loss into the hills, is highly creditable to those officers and the detachments of the Scinde horse.

The Commander-in-Chief will have pleasure in bringing these services and the excellent arrangements for the protection of the frontier to the notice of H.E. the Governor in Council.—I have the honour to be, &c.,

(Signed) T. Strock, Colonel,
Adjutant General of the Army.

DEATH OF SIR S. V. SURTEES.—We have to announce the death of Sir Stephenson Villiers Surtees, one of the justices of the peace for the county of Stafford. The event took place at the deceased gentleman's residence, Silkmore House, near Stafford. Sir Villiers was born in the year 1803; was educated at University College, Oxford, where he took the degrees of S.C.L. in 1826, and B.C.L. in 1831; and was in the latter year called to the bar by the Inner Temple. He was for some time advocate of St. Lucia, and afterwards became Chief Justice of the Mauritius, an office which he held for eighteen years, and resigned in 1860. He was twice married; in 1836 to Henrietta, daughter of General Staverley, C.B.; and in 1850 to Barbara Eliza, daughter of the Rev. W. Bosworth.

AGRA AND MASTERMAN'S BANK.

A meeting of the shareholders in the Agra and Masterman's Bank (Limited) was held on Tuesday afternoon, at the London Tavern, for the purpose of receiving the report of the committee appointed at the meeting of the shareholders on the 18th October, 1866, and passing resolutions relating thereto; and the ordinary general meeting of members of the Agra Bank (Limited) was held immediately after the termination of that meeting. There was a large attendance of shareholders. Mr. Thomson was in the chair.

The Chairman said that the first matter before the meeting was the consideration of the report of the shareholders' committee, which (the meeting having assented to the proposition) might be taken as read. He begged to congratulate the shareholders upon that meeting. The last year had been an eventful one in their history. They had been called upon to encounter an arduous struggle for life, but it had been a successful one, and he trusted that they were now entering upon a career of permanence. Their position was somewhat embarrassed by certain legal requirements with which they had to comply, but these were more nominal than real. They were not to be held responsible for the proceedings of those who had gone before them, and he should be the last to deny the mismanagement that had existed, and that there was something wrong in the way in which the business was worked. It might be expected that he should tell them something of the affairs of liquidation, of the progress of the realisation of assets, and of the meeting of liabilities. He was happy to be able to say that they felt no apprehension of not being able to provide for their liabilities—(hear, hear). He hoped they would be able to do so without sacrifice of property by forced sales of securities which they held. It was true that there were assets with which it was difficult to deal, but he entertained good confidence that no difficulties would arise to mar their progress which had not been fully considered. With respect to the Indian plantations, it might be agreeable to shareholders to know that the resuscitation of the bank had greatly reduced the loss which must otherwise have been incurred under that head—(hear, hear). The chairman then proceeded to give a minute detail of the various proceedings connected with the liquidation under the direction of Mr. Cannan, whose claim of remuneration for his services he (the chairman) held to be excessive, and the committee thought that the most impartial mode of dealing with the matter was to refer it to the decision of Vice-Chancellor Sir Wm. Page Wood—(hear). The liquidator had thought it right to take large sums to provide for past and possible future expenses. The present position of the matter was that the Court had ordered £30,000 to be refunded, and a distringas had been issued with respect to another large sum. He begged again to congratulate the shareholders on the resuscitation of this bank. Before that resuscitation their property was valueless, but as soon as the scheme came out their property rose in value, and now it was worth little short of £500,000—(hear, hear). The resuscitation had put that property into the hands of the shareholders—(hear, hear). He begged now to ask them to receive and adopt the report of the shareholders' committee, which had been furnished to each holder of their stock. It was impossible that a body of men could have worked with more assiduity than the members of that committee.

Dr. Burt seconded the motion.

After some further discussion as to the course of conduct pursued by the liquidator, the motion was carried unanimously.

Dr. Richardson moved the next resolution, expressing the grateful appreciation by the shareholders of the eminent services of Mr.

Thomson in connection with the resuscitation of the bank, and expressing a cordial adoption of the recommendation of the committee that his services should be acknowledged by the presentation to him of a sum of £2,500.

General Boileau seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

Colonel Macdonald moved that the most sincere thanks of the meeting be offered to the shareholders' committee.

Mr. Tait seconded the motion.

Mr. Marland wished to ask whether consent had been given to the payment of £5,000 on a document which had been declared invalid. In 1862 an annuity of £500 was voted to a gentleman who was then about to resign the chair, Major Macgregor. He had heard that Major Macgregor held a bond for £5,000 containing a penalty clause, by which, if default were made in the payments of the annuity, he was to receive £5,000 from the bank. All the directors denied knowledge of this bond; but as Mr. Macpherson was present, he might be able to give his explanation upon the matter. His proposition was that the money should be refunded; and he begged to move that the meeting do request the directors to inquire into the matter, and to take such action as they may deem advisable.

General Rumsey seconded the motion.

Mr. Macpherson said that in 1862 the court of directors proposed a resolution for granting an annuity of £500 to Major Macgregor, as a reward for past services in connection with the bank. The proposal was agreed to without a dissentient, and the papers were sent to the solicitor, and the thing was carried through by the solicitor, and he (Mr. Macpherson) knew no more about it than any other director. To the best of his recollection he never spoke to Major Macgregor on the subject. If there was any fault, certainly it was not one of collusion, and he hoped it would be considered that he had conducted everything with honour.

Mr. Morris thought that no accusation ought to be made against Major Macgregor in his absence. Mr. Morland had urged the matter upon the Board to ascertain whether this was a legal claim or not, and he (Mr. Morris) had advised the directors to leave it to Mr. Morland to deal with the matter in his own way. The liquidator enjoyed the advantage of going to the judge at once to take his opinion on a doubtful matter, but so far as he (Mr. Morris) could learn he did not know that Mr. Cannan had taken any such step. Without casting any reflections, he might say that the grant of the annuity was not justified by the articles of association, and that this was not to be considered as a claim of a legal kind, but as one which concerned the bounty of the shareholders. If the bank had been a "going concern" no doubt the allowance would have been continued. It was for the shareholders to consider whether they would deal with this matter in the same spirit. It was not unusual to carry out an arrangement of this sort by bond. It remained fairly open to the shareholders to deal with the question. He thought he was correct in saying that the feeling on the part of the judges was not to admit claims of this kind unless supported by the Act of the shareholders.

The motion was carried by a very large majority, there being only about half-a-dozen dissentients.

The shareholders assembled then resolved themselves into an ordinary general meeting of the members of the Agra Bank (Limited).

The Chairman moved, and Mr. Slater seconded, the adoption of the published report, which was agreed to, as was also a proposition with reference to the division of charges in carrying on the business, that two-fifths of the general expenses and salaries should be borne and paid by the bank, and that the remaining three-fifths should be borne by the liquidator.

A resolution providing that a sum not exceeding £2,800, of which £1,000 was to be payable to the chairman, the remainder of the sum to be divisible among the other directors, gave rise to some discussion, though it at last received the concurrence of the meeting, and the proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

ORIENTAL INLAND STEAM COMPANY (LIMITED).

The adjourned eleventh annual meeting of the proprietors of this company was held on Tuesday, at the London Tavern; Mr. John Rogerson in the chair.

The report for the year ending September last stated that the gross receipts of the steamers, exclusive of the voyages made on the river Jhelum, amounted to £54,350. 17s. 5d., against £37,651. 11s. 9d. in the year 1864-65, giving an increase of £16,699. 5s. 8d.; while the net receipts, after deducting all working charges, were £1,117. 17s. 9d. in excess of those of the preceding year, leaving, instead of a loss, a balance of £2,130. 16s. 5d. at the credit of revenue account on the 30th of September last. Notwithstanding the reduction that had already been made in the working expenses, the directors were of opinion that the percentage of these were yet higher than necessary, and their efforts were still being applied to a further diminution with the view of increasing the net profits of the company. It would be seen by the accounts that the sum of £5,137. 11s. 10d. had been spent upon the vessels of the company during the year, care having been taken to keep them in a state of thorough repair. The negotiations to which reference was made in the directors' circular of the 15th of December last, had not as yet been brought to a satisfactory issue. In view of the serious loss which resulted from the severe competition maintained between the company and the Indus Steam Flotilla, it was thought that the interest of the shareholders would be promoted by an arrangement between the two companies, and the directors were prepared to recommend the transfer of the property of the company on the river Indus to the Indus Steam Flotilla upon the principle of a liberal valuation, a principle which they reasonably concluded would be readily acceded to by the directors of the Indus Steam Flotilla. This proposal, however, had not been accepted, but, in lieu of it, an offer had been made which the directors did not consider it would be for the interests of the proprietary to accept, being in their opinion far below the value of the company's property. They were therefore endeavouring to arrange such terms as they could recommend for acceptance by the shareholders. The directors were still giving their attention to getting in money due from the holders of C shares. Pending the settlement of this question Colonel Grimes resigned his seat at the board.

The report was adopted, and the retiring directors and auditors re-elected.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

(Sittings in Banco before Lord Chief Justice BOVILL, and Justices BYLES, KEATING, and SMITH.)

BANK OF HINDUSTAN V. SMITH.

This was an action upon a guarantee which was given in the course of the amalgamation of the Bank of Hindustan and the Imperial Bank of China, and the document was in these terms: "We hereby severally acknowledge ourselves responsible to the Bank of Hindustan for £2,676, advanced as compensation to the non-elected directors of the Bank of China, India, and Japan (Limited)." This was signed by the defendant, and a number of other gentlemen. The parties were under the impression that each gentleman signing was to be liable for his proportionate charge only, instead of each one being liable for the whole amount, and when two of the gentlemen paid their proportion their names were struck out. At the trial before the Lord Chief Justice the verdict was for the defendant, upon a plea that the document had been improperly altered by striking out the two names whilst it was in the plaintiff's custody.

Mr. J. Brown now moved for rule to enter a verdict for the plaintiff, and contended that under the circumstances the defence was not a valid one.

Rule granted.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA, AND CHINA.—The general meeting of shareholders of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China was held on Wednesday. The accounts presented showed a net profit for the year ending 31st Dec. last of £97,028. 17s. 10d.; but the directors, after instituting a careful revision of bad and doubtful debts, considered it their duty to meet these by writing off the sum of £68,332. 14s. 8d. from profit and loss account. They further recommended a dividend for the half-year at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, leaving the sum of £1,136. 18s. 9d. to be carried forward. The report and accounts were adopted. The chairman stated that, notwithstanding the adverse circumstances of the past year, the profits were 25 per cent. in excess of those for the year previous, and that, although the bad debts had been considerable, the paid-up capital of the bank was intact.

LAND MORTGAGE BANK OF INDIA.—The annual report of the Land Mortgage Bank of India has been published. The profit and loss account shows a balance on the credit side of £23,091. 18s. 11d., and the directors recommend a dividend of 4 per cent. per annum. It is also proposed to place £6,000 to a reserve fund, invested in the names of three trustees, and to carry over £1,008. 12s. 3d. to a new account. Allusion is made to the financial crisis in Bombay as having injuriously affected the business of the bank, and it is stated that an estimate of the mortgaged properties shows a possible loss of £59,400, but it is hoped this may be diminished by a careful realisation. The current liabilities are asserted to be very small, and no call is contemplated, the repayments of mortgages in India amply providing for the debenture liabilities as they become due.

COMMERCIAL BANK CORPORATION OF INDIA AND THE EAST.—A meeting was held on Wednesday of the creditors of the Commercial Bank Corporation of India and the East, to receive the proposal for a reconstruction of the bank, as recently presented to and adopted by the shareholders. Resolutions agreeing to receive payment of the remaining 10s. in the pound by four equal half-yearly instalments were cordially approved. The progress of this energetic effort is thus considerably facilitated, and there is now a fair chance of the arrangement being carried out.

ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION.—The general meeting of the proprietors of the Oriental Bank Corporation was held on Thursday. The accounts showed a net profit for the year of £197,687. 8s. 4d., and a dividend at the rate of 12 per cent. was declared, leaving a balance of £13,687. 8s. 4d. to be carried over to next year's account. The report was adopted after some discussion of a personal nature, in which Dr. Adam Thom, chairman of the committee of the Defence Association in the matter of Overend, Gurney, and Co., took a leading part.

BILLS ON INDIA.—The biddings for Government bills on India took place on Wednesday, the 17th inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were: to Calcutta, 19,60,000 rupees; to Madras, 40,000 rupees; and to Bombay, 10,00,000 rupees. The minimum PASSAGE ALLOWANCE TO OFFICERS.—The rate of passage-money to be allowed to officers proceeding by steamer from England to Aden has been fixed by the Admiralty at £61; and that of servants at £37. From Aden to Bombay, Madras, and Calcutta the allowance is to be fixed by the local authorities.

CHLORODYNE.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a certain cure in Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases." From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when all other remedies had failed."

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne; that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See the Times, July 13, 1864.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

DR. LOWE, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered the patient recovered.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the best and most certain remedy in Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is publicly acknowledged by the most eminent Physicians of London to be the most effectual remedy every discovered. To prevent fraud, the Government have authorised a Stamp, with the words Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne engraved thereon, without which none can be genuine. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London. The immense demand enables the proprietors to reduce the price; it is now sold in bottles, 1s. 13d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s.

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the PEOPLE of INDIA

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,

Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"If the manufacturer studies this book carefully he may add thousands a year to his profits, and there are not five books in the world of which that could be said. Altogether this book is thoroughly creditable to Dr. Forbes Watson's industry and acumen, and to the liberality of the India-office."—Spectator, Jan. 5, 1867.

"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Dr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as more productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India is not only deserving the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

The Calcutta mail, viz Bombay, brings us our usual files of papers, from Calcutta to the 29th of March, Madras to the 29th of that month, and Bombay to the 3rd of April.

Calcutta had been stormy in more ways than one. On the 24th there was a gale, which did considerable damage to the buildings in the city and the cargo boats on the river. On the 27th was held the indignation meeting on the subject of the licence tax. The requisition, which was very numerously signed, stated the object to be "to memorialise the Secretary of State for India in Council against the imposition of the new licence tax introduced by the Right Hon. Mr. Massey, discussed almost in a whisper by the Government of India, and passed into law with a haste that was at once unseemly and unnecessary." The meeting itself was in every way such as had not assembled in Calcutta for years, the town hall being densely crowded, and the resolutions condemning the tax as "unjust in principle, and partial in its operation," carried "amidst deafening shouts and acclamations." A hope was expressed that the example of Calcutta would be followed by the other great cities of India, and already a requisition to the Sheriff of Bombay is being signed desiring him to convene a public meeting at an early date, that the voice of the western capital may also be heard in denunciation of "the bungled tax."

A rumour was current in Calcutta that the Viceroy will retire at the end of the present year. It is said that Lord Craunborne's orders that in future the Governor General must remain at the presidency during the hot season is the cause of this step.

An Act for the regulation of printing presses and newspapers, and for the registration and preservation of copies of all books printed in British India, has received the assent of the Governor-general.

Large importations of rice have been made into Cuttack during the last month, and the price of that article has been much lowered in consequence.

Toungso Penlow seems to be again asserting his right to be called "the irrepressible." He is said to have assembled a large force for the purpose of marching on Poonakha.

At a steeple-chase at Cawnpore on March 21 several of the native riders were seriously injured, fears being entertained regarding the recovery of two of the number. One horse was killed in attempting to jump over a wall, and in taking the other leaps many of the horses came to grief. Of fifteen that started only one succeeded in reaching the winning-post over all the jumps.

Heavy rains have fallen in the Punjab, and the distress which at one time seemed imminent in consequence of drought has thus been averted.

There was but little news in Madras. It was still believed that the Bank of that presidency would not join in the proposed amalgamation. The board of directors, indeed, had negatived the proposition, but their decision was of course not final, the question being in the hands of the general body of shareholders. "To the Bombay Bank," says the Athenæum, "it is almost indispensable that it should accept the protection of the great institution at Calcutta, which alone, it would seem, can effectually extricate it from the gulf that it is in; but we have no need of foreign succour, and shall act more wisely if we keep the even tenour of our way without it."

Lord Napier has decided upon making a tour through the northern districts, in company with Mr. R. S. Ellis, C.B., the Sanitary Commissioner.

The Bombay papers were discussing, with much approbation, a minute upon the subject of wet dock accommodation for that city, written by Colonel Strachey, of the Royal Engineers. "This officer," says the Times of India, "as is well known, is at present employed on special service in India, having been sent out by the Secretary of State to inquire into the remunerative nature of the irrigation works already in existence—more particularly those of Madras—as a guide, we suppose, in the further prosecution of such enterprises, which are to be undertaken with spirit before long. Before proceeding to Madras Colonel Strachey penned a minute on this question of wet docks for Bombay, about which so much has been said and written, but towards the practical solution of which so little has yet been done, except perhaps by the Elphinstone Land and Reclamation Company. That wet docks are required in Bombay, and that the saving which would be effected by them would amply justify the outlay necessary for their construction, are propositions which, at this time of day, Colonel Strachey does not consider it necessary to prove. As a British seaport, Bombay is second in importance only to London, Liverpool, and Newcastle, more important than Glasgow and Hull, and its commerce decidedly larger than Leith, Bristol, Southampton, or Calcutta; and so he holds that if ever Bombay is to require wet docks at all, they are required now. A water area of 100 acres would not, Colonel Strachey considers, be too excessive as a provision for the trade of Bombay; but this he would have to be acquired by degrees, adding basin after basin as the needful appliances are obtained and the necessary changes in the trade of the port introduced."

The new lighthouse on Kennery Island, at the entrance to Bombay Harbour, approaches completion, and it is expected that its light will be displayed by the 1st of June next.

The duties of the Bishop of Bombay, on leave of absence to England, will be temporarily discharged by the Ven. Archdeacon Leigh Lye.

"It will be remembered," says the Times of India, "that toward the end of February a plot was discovered at Baroda against the life of his Highness the Guicowar. A number of Brahmans, bribed, as was vaguely alleged, by a brother of the Guicowar's, and presuming upon the exemption of all high-caste Brahmans from capital punishment, banded themselves together to shoot his Highness. Fortunately—for his Highness, at least—the plot was discovered, and ten or a dozen of the conspirators were arrested. It was at first suspected by some that the charge was merely a trumped-up one, for the gratification of some personal animosity; but this appears not to have been the case. A letter from Baroda informs us that the conspirators were, in due course, brought to a fair and impartial trial, the proceedings of which were submitted for approval to Colonel Barr, the British Resident, who expressed himself perfectly satisfied with the manner in which the trial had been conducted. Three of the conspirators were condemned to death, and the sentence was carried into execution on the 30th inst., one of them being hanged, another beheaded, and the third—the arch conspirator, we suppose—blown from a gun. All that can be said in favour of this last mode of punishment is, that it is one degree better than trampling to death by means of elephants—the mode formerly in vogue at Baroda, and which probably the Guicowar has abandoned with a pang. It must be assumed that the case against the accused was a very strong one, or Colonel Barr would surely have obtained the commutation of the sentences to perpetual incarceration—an exercise of mercy which he had sufficient influence with the Guicowar to induce him to show."

Latest intelligence from Bokhara states that the Russians were fortifying their position near that city; they are reported to possess a force of 13,000 men. The Envoy from the Ameer, who recently visited Calcutta to solicit aid from the Viceroy to expel the Russians from his territory, has gone to Turkey to prefer a similar request to the Sultan. A story comes from this locality that the Russian General there has deprived the Ameer of all his royal dignities, and reduced him to the position of one of the principal officers of the new Russian State. This high-handed measure the General is said to have taken on hearing that the Government of India would not assist the King to expel the Russians.

Ameer Sheer Ali is making renewed efforts to recruit his forces among the warlike tribes of Herat, and is said to be about to make another attempt to obtain the crown.

The Bombay Government has published a resolution on the Main Drainage works of Bombay. It says the question should at once be referred to the Secretary of State for India, and that he should be requested to obtain the decision of the highest scientific authority as to the best plan of drainage suitable for Bombay.

The Government of Bombay has requested the Collector of Ahmedabad to purchase £60 worth of superior indigenous cotton seed, and to obtain five tons of Egyptian seed, with a view to improving the cultivation of cotton in the Presidency.

The terms of agreement between the Banks of Bengal and Bombay are practically settled. Mr. Dickson, it is thought, will come to Bombay to discuss some matters of detail, and the directors will then call a meeting of shareholders to decide upon the amalgamation. Opinion in Madras is decidedly against any change, so far as the local bank is concerned.

The working of the Indo-European Telegraph is still very uncertain, owing to the continued interruption on the direct line. March 23rd was the latest public date, while several of the dates between the 14th and 23rd had still to arrive.

Major R. M. Smith, R.E., Acting Director of the Persian Telegraph, in reporting the progress made in erecting the second wire of that line, states that the double line from Bushire to Teheran will probably be completed by the beginning of May, and from Teheran to the Turkish frontier by the end of June.

The next arrival from India will be the Bombay Mail, which may be expected in London on the 6th May.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

MONDAY, April 29, 1867.

THE INDIAN GOVERNMENT AND THE TEA PLANTERS.

THE conference between the Viceroy and the Tea Planters' Deputation, which we noticed in our last number, promises to do good. The depressed state of the cultivation cannot have arisen from causes beyond control, and the question at issue was the apportionment of the responsibility between the planters and the Government. In the memorial read by the deputation it was admitted that much of the evil is beyond the reach of authority, and can be remedied only by individual efforts; but it was urged that the industry cannot be restored to prosperity under existing laws, and without the co-operation of Government. The memorialists accordingly asked for the substitution of an Act which will not interfere with wages and labour for the restrictions at present in force, and also that early attention should be directed to the neglected state of the tea districts as regards roads, bridges, ferries, and other means of communication. The memorial bore 300 signatures, comprising the representatives of forty mercantile companies, forty trading firms, thirteen public tea companies, and six banks. "What we wish," said Mr. Sohiller, in reiteration of the prayer, "is, that the tea planter, with regard to his labourer, be placed on the same footing on which he would stand were he to employ labourers in any other branch of industry. We confidently assert that there is nothing in the nature of tea planting, nor in the manner in which tea planters treat their labourers, which calls for any special legislation."

The Viceroy was not quite of the same opinion. Harsh treatment of the coolies he considered to have been proved, if not as a system, at any rate in particular instances; and he mentioned the case of a manager and his assistant in Assam who had authorised the habitual use of flogging. Certain restrictions, therefore, were necessary, and he failed to see that the laws enacted for the purpose had anything to do with the present deplorable state of things in Eastern Bengal. The Acts of 1863 and 1865, regulating the importation of labour into Assam and Cachar, were passed after much inquiry, and with the general conviction of their necessity. As for the supposition that the interest had declined owing to this cause, Sir John cited the report of Mr. Morrice, a coffee planter of Ceylon, who was deputed by his brother planters and the Government of that colony to visit Assam and inquire into the matter, as showing no less than seven strong reasons for the depression. These are:—

1. The abuse of the limited liability principle, which established gardens in great numbers, and on a much larger scale than could possibly be properly supplied with adequate labour. This led to the partial or total neglect of gardens that had previously been fully established and in good working order, but which deteriorated quickly into jungle for want of care.

2. The greatly enhanced expense incurred in procuring labourers from Bengal.

3. The inferior quality and consequent mortality of the labourers supplied.

4. The loss, in many cases, through having to supply rice at a rupee a maund when it was at famine prices in the district.

5. The depreciation in the quality of the tea shipped from Assam, and the consequent fall of the price in England. This is attributed, by those best acquainted with the subject, to the inexperience of the local managers, which the too rapid extension of tea concerns in Assam unavoidably induced.

6. Deficient capital among the promoters and owners of many of the tea concerns.

7. The money panic in England in 1866, which created a difficulty in procuring funds, and produced a crisis in the affairs of some companies that otherwise might have been tided over.

These are seven as good reasons as could well be found for the decline of any kind of cultivation, and only one of them, as Sir John Lawrence pointed out, is under the control of the Government. He referred to the second one, relating to the enhanced expense of the importation of labour. And even over this the Government can exercise very little influence. The cost, in such a case, must depend very much upon the demand, and it is now considerably reduced. The charges of the recruiter and the contractor cannot be restricted by the State; but there is nothing in the law to prevent the planters from taking these duties upon themselves, and in some cases they do so. That there are abuses in the present system of Cooly immigration the Viceroy freely admitted, and he promised the attention of the Government to the subject. He noticed, however, that the causes which have led to the depreciation and ruin of so many tea estates in Assam appear to be precisely those which have produced similar results near Darjeeling, and even so far off as Dehra Doon, where there is no want of labour. Further, as regards restrictions for the protection of labourers, it must be borne in mind that similar laws to those in force in India apply to emigration to the colonies, not only of England but to other countries, and a relaxation in one case must be followed by a relaxation in every other. The Government propose, however, in the Bill now before the Legislative Council, to modify to some extent the present laws connected with the labour question, the main feature of the change being the abolition of the provision for an absolute minimum rate of wages; and if by next November affairs do not improve, a commission will be appointed with instructions to visit Assam and Cachar, and make a full and complete inquiry into the circumstances of the case, with a view to further legislation. Sir Cecil Beadon, who was present at the meeting, also suggested that the planters should form a committee to assist the Government with hints and suggestions while the Bill was being passed.

It can scarcely be doubted from the manner in which the Viceroy has taken up the question that the Government is prepared to take its legitimate share in the measures necessary for the resuscitation of this important cultivation, and now that an understanding has been arrived at it may be expected that the proprietors and planters will do whatever else their own interests may dictate. One of the causes of the present embarrassment we suspect to be wasteful expenditure, more especially as regards the appointment of managers and assistants from home, who have in many cases been found competent to do little more than draw their too liberal salaries. To the inexperience of these persons, too, may be attributed many of the abuses which have brought the conduct of the estates into such bad repute. In these days there can be no want of respectable men resident in the country whose services would be found in every way more advantageous. But boards of directors at home expect a little patronage to be placed in their hands, and this, we fear, has in too many instances been injudiciously exercised.

ARRIVAL OF THE HEAVY BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, April 26.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Nyanza, with the heavy portion of the above mail, arrived here to-day. She brings 197 passengers, £1,040 in specie, and a general cargo.

DESPATCH OF THE BOMBAY MAIL.—(SOUTHAMPTON, April 27.)—The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Delta, Captain Babot, sailed hence this afternoon, with the mails for Gibraltar, the Mediterranean, Egypt, Aden, Bombay, &c. She took out forty-five passengers and a general cargo, including jewellery value £366.

BENGAL.

THE LICENSE-TAX.—MEMORIAL.

To the Rt. Hon. Sir Stafford Northcote, Bart., Secretary of State for India in Council.

The Memorial of the undersigned inhabitants of the town of Calcutta, exercising professions and trades within the meaning of Act XXI. of 1867, entitled "An Act for Licensing Professions and Trades," Humbly Sheweth,—I. That your memorialists, feeling themselves aggrieved by the Act described above, and perceiving that it has given rise to very great irritation among various classes of her Majesty's subjects in British India, who consider that it treats them with injustice, most respectfully crave your attention to the following statement of their reasons for dissatisfaction with the Act, in the hope that you will recognise the justice of their representations and afford them redress.

II. That the object and nature of the Act having been explained by the Right Hon. Mr. Massey in his financial statement to the Legislative Council on the 5th of the present month, the Bill was introduced at a meeting of the Council held on the 8th inst., and was passed into law on the same day, the standing orders having been suspended. Your memorialists submit that a measure of such grave importance should not have been laid before the Council for final decision without due notice having been given to allow of some expression of opinion upon it on the part of the public; and that the haste with which the Bill was hurried through the usual stages and passed was as unseemly as it was unnecessary.

III. That the Act, though nominally for licensing professions and trades, in reality imposes a tax on incomes of a character most unjust in principle—in that under Schedule A, the tax is to be levied—

1st. On those whose incomes are of fluctuating value, and represent the fruits of their industry, while the vested property and secured revenues of the country are wholly exempted.

2nd. Under a classification which, ignoring all incomes higher than Rs. 25,000 per annum demands as much from an increase of Rs. 10,000 as from Rs. 24,000, from Rs. 5,000 as from Rs. 9,000, from Rs. 1,000 as from Rs. 4,000, and from Rs. 50 and Rs. 200 as from Rs. 900 and Rs. 400 respectively.

3rd.—Upon a maximum income of Rs. 200 per annum, thereby embracing a very large class of people of means so limited that it will be a heavy burden to them to pay even Rs. 4 for a license, and upon a maximum income of Rs. 25,000, thus allowing a very large proportion of the wealthiest classes, whose incomes far exceed that sum wholly to escape taxation upon such excess, while under Schedule B the license on companies is leviable.

(a)—On the paid up capital of five lakhs at the same rate as on nine lakhs, on ten lakhs as on one crore, whether such companies have paid dividends or not.

(b)—And for all other companies, on a dividend of five per cent., at the same rate as on a dividend of ten or twenty per cent.

IV. That the irritation excited by the very partial character of the Act is enhanced on considering the mode in which its provisions are to be carried out; in that—

1st.—So far from secrecy being observed in reference thereto, the collector of each district will file in his office for the inspection of the public, a list of the persons in his district licensed under the Act, stating the profession or trade of each person, the class under which he is licensed, and the amount under which he is required to pay for his license.

2nd.—Whereas, under the Income-tax Act, it lay with assessors to determine the amount for which each person was to be assessed, under Act XXI. of 1867, it is left to the collector alone to do so, from whose decision appeal is permitted to the Commissioner of Revenue, but no further.

V. Whereas the Right Hon. Mr. Massey, estimating the produce of this tax at not more than £500,000, has stated in reference thereto that double and treble this amount might be obtained "by a more comprehensive scheme of direct taxation." Your memorialists, considering how small is the amount expected from it, and how very great is the dissatisfaction to which it has already given rise, submit that the mode of taxation prescribed by the Act is the very last which the exigencies of the public service should have called into existence; and believing that there are other modes of taxation, not only much less objectionable, but much more practicable, still untried, they most respectfully pray that you will veto Act XXI. of 1867, directing that, should the necessities of the State still demand it, some other system of taxation may be called into action.

And your memorialists will, as in duty bound, ever pray.

PUBLIC MEETING.

It is many years since we have seen so numerously signed a request to the sheriff to call a public meeting as that which appears amongst our advertisements this morning. From one end of India to another the outcry against the license tax has been both loud and unanimous, and it is therefore more than probable that the action of the capital will be followed by the inhabitants of Bombay and Madras, and of every town and city in the country. It is, however, the misfortune of the Government of India that it sees less shame and less cause for disrespect in having its measures over-ruled from home than in retiring from a position where it finds itself opposed to the wishes and sense of every class and community throughout India. Sir John Lawrence and his advisers hesitate and decline to remedy a blunder, because of the political effect it may have, and because it may seem as if the Government were to be moved by clamour. But what, we would ask Mr. Massey, must of necessity be the effect of the repeated rectification of his errors from home; what the loss of confidence; what the real loss of power and influence sustained by the Government of which he is a member? If Sir John Lawrence were wise he would take advantage of the crudeness of the measure to cancel it; and if the half million sterling it is meant to yield is really required, he would add that amount to the sum to be raised by loan during the year. We have, however, shown that the tax is unnecessary. Mr. Massey anticipates a deficit of half a million on accounts, which are, according to his own showing, altogether untrustworthy, and which are only "an approximation to the truth," because, irrespective of such blunders as those he has paraded before the public, he has estimated everything in the most favourable manner,—lowering the revenue, and increasing the expenditure. The meeting will be such as Calcutta has not witnessed for years; and will be the more influential because the speakers and the audience know they are supported by the united public opinion of India; and yet every man present will feel that this constant clashing of the financial department with the interests and opinion of the public is one of the greatest misfortunes that ever befel the country. It unsettles men's minds, and it renders more and more difficult the attainment of anything like a general and just system of taxation. As far as we can understand the public mind, people do not object to such taxation as may be proved necessary for the welfare and dignity of the State; they object only to experimental taxation, founded on no principle, and imposed to meet a deficiency in the accounts, as to the reality of which Mr. Massey himself can at the best only hazard a guess.—Englishman, March 22.

THE MEMORIAL.

In another column will be found the Memorial which it is proposed to send to Sir Stafford Northcote, on the subject of the License Tax. The meeting at the Town-hall, at half-past three this afternoon, ought to be one of those gatherings about which the authorities should have no room for mistake. We trust that the heads of all offices and establishments, Governmental or otherwise, will see the wisdom of allowing their assistants the opportunity of expressing their views on a subject which, in reality, affects them more directly than it does the more affluent members of the community. The memorial embodies the general feeling on this tax with singular fairness, and it summarises all the objections which can be urged against it, without descending into details, or drifting into feebleness. That the meeting will be a most successful one cannot be doubted, neither can it be without its effect on the other cities of India. The tax has been unanimously condemned throughout India, the only voice heard in its justification being that of an obscure native print.

We have so fully discussed the subject, and our views have been so completely endorsed by our contemporaries, that we feel there is no necessity for entering on a recapitulation of what must be fresh in everyone's recollection; but we would point out that, in protesting against this license tax the public of the capital are representing not alone their individual views, but the opinion of every thinking man in India. The protest, too, is not so much directed against an ill conceived and most unjust measure as against false principles of taxation, and a petty way of dealing with the finances of the country, which can only lead to disaster and the loss of the public confidence in the administration. Mr. Massey will learn, amongst other results of this meeting, that measures conceived at the eleventh hour, unnecessary, ill-digested, and un-English, are the surest means he could devise for creating a general feeling of distrust and opposition in the mind of the Indian public. Mr. Massey was never popular, but he was, to some extent, believed in. Such a financial expedient, however, as his License Tax would wreck a reputation far higher than his own, and if persisted in, lead to the gravest complications.—Englishman, March 27.

THE STAFF CORPS.

Now that the rights of all to enter the Staff Corps have been graciously conceded by the Secretary of State, it is time to inquire what the Government intends to do by those who have elected for it. The Government cannot surely propose to keep up the anomaly of having a large number of officers doing duty at the best stations in India, and giving them liberal pay for no work. It was bad enough before the Staff Corps was thrown open to everyone; the farce by this time should have been played out. It has been said that one example is worth a thousand precepts, so we shall trust to figures to convince the Government that it behoves it to offer another inducement in the shape of a bonus to get rid of these doing-duty wallahs.

Here are nineteen lieutenant-colonels and thirty-five majors belonging to the Bengal Staff Corps who are doing general duty, besides sixteen lieutenant-colonels, and eleven majors who have remained local; hence there are thirty-eight lieutenant-colonels and forty-six majors almost unemployed. Now for the cost of these officers.

Nineteen lieutenant-colonels at Rs. 827-14 comes to Rs. 15,729-10; thirty-five majors at Rs. 640-14-6 comes to 22,404-11-6.

There are nineteen local lieutenant-colonels at Rs. 1,032-4 per mensem, equal to Rs. 19,612-12, and eleven majors at Rs. 789-3, equal to Rs. 8,581-1, so that the account stands thus:—

Brevet Major G. F. F. Vincent, of the late 30th N.I., is also doing general duty at a cost to Government of nearly Rs. 5,000 per annum.
There are six cavalry lieutenant-colonels (local) also doing duty, at a cost of Rs. 83,804, so that the whole sum Government is paying for doing duty officers is Rs. 8,84,241.4.0, nearly nine lacs of rupees.

If a regiment can be efficient without doing-duty officers, we cannot see the necessity of four captains being attached to the 32nd Native Infantry, nor why two majors should be with the 1st Goorkhas. It is true Umballah and Dhurmsala are good stations, but this fact is hardly an excuse for useless expenditure of Government money.

The only way to get rid of doing-duty officers is to offer a bonus, or an increased rate of retiring pension, or say pension of rank, in the case of all officers who have served twenty years in India. — Delhi Gazette, March 30.

THE HOOGHLY BRIDGE AND RAILWAY TERMINUS IN DALHOUSIE SQUARE.

Sir John Lawrence at least is free from the charge of not hastening the construction of a bridge over the Hooghly. Nor has the opponent of the great undertaking been the Secretary of State. To one monomaniac and twenty ignorant followers do the teeming millions and overflowing trade of the Ganges valley owe the continued existence of half a mile of dangerous navigation between Calcutta and the magnificent line which spans rivers like the Soane and the Jumna right into Delhi. Just two years ago a committee of engineers, civilians, and merchants reported on the immediate necessity for constructing a bridge near Calcutta, and the Viceroy, the Secretary of State, and the directors of the East India Railway supported the recommendation. That railway company consists of 11,300 shareholders, some of whom reside in India, and many of whom are Anglo-Indians. Yet twenty men out of these 11,300 were able, by holding up their hands after an excited and ignorant assurance that they would never see more than the guaranteed 5 per cent., to prevent the construction of the bridge. Of 150 shareholders present at the annual meeting twenty voted against the bridge, ten for it, and the rest were silent. The indifference of some shareholders who get 5 per cent. under all circumstances, and the ignorance of twenty others, sufficed to stop an undertaking which has been recommended for years, and has been supported by authorities like Messrs. Turnbull and Power, a public committee sitting on the spot, the Government of India, the Secretary of State and a board of directors numbering men of local experience and authority like Sir F. Halliday, Sir M. Stephenson, and Mr. Marshman. A year after the opposition of this contemptible minority was continued. The thing is at once ludicrous and intolerable, and so the two representative bodies of Calcutta and the trade of the Ganges valley, the chamber of commerce and trades association, have once more put the machinery of the Government of India in motion. There is no doubt of the action of that Government. The Governor General in Council will repeat the recommendation of two years ago with an emphasis and supported by arguments appealing to the pockets of the shareholders such that we may expect to see the capital raised before the end of the year. So convinced are the Eastern Bengal Railway of the paying prospects of the bridge that they are eager to be allowed to undertake it 17 miles above Calcutta at Pulta. But the East India shareholders naturally object to a plan which will give that company seventeen miles of their traffic. The only escape from the dilemma is that they themselves construct the bridge. Their next meeting will be held in June. No time is to be lost, that the company's consulting engineer may be able to visit Calcutta early in November to make the preliminary arrangements for the work. Two years have been already sacrificed, and five more will pass before Calcutta is really linked to Delhi.

The place at which the bridge should be built is a question of very great importance to the local traffic of the capital. Pulta is out of the question. Not less useless to Calcutta would a bridge above Cossipore be, as recommended by the last committee. The Chamber of Commerce very wisely urge "some convenient point as near the city as possible." A double bridge, suited for pedestrian and cart traffic below the railway line would not be much more expensive than a single railway bridge, as has been proved by that over the Jumna. The extra cost would be paid off by slight tolls in a few years. The local traffic is enormous, and will continue to be so even when the railway terminus is removed from Howrah. The committee of 1864-65 were wrong in their opinion that the importance of Howrah depends on the present terminus. They forgot that the whole traffic of the Grand Trunk Road and the Orissa and Madras Road would still be separated from Calcutta. There is no bridge over the Hooghly at any part of its course. The Ganges cuts Northern India into two parts, which have no communication with each other, save by expensive ferries and dangerous boats, except at Allahabad. Were Howrah a desert instead of a great town the traffic of the country south of the Ganges and its tributaries would still demand a bridge for carts and pedestrians at the port of Calcutta. Mr. Rendell or Mr. Power will soon be able to say whether there are any obstacles to its being made close above the highest limit reached by ships going into dock, or Hautcolla Ghaut. This will not interfere with the port nor add much to the risk of ships breaking loose from their moorings. The convenience to the dense native population and trade would be enormous. To make a bridge and yet not give the vast local traffic of Calcutta the benefit of it is a piece of childish folly which Sir John Lawrence will not tolerate.

If taken into Calcutta at Hautcolla Ghaut the East India Railway could run at a high level on arches over the native quarter to Sealdah, throwing out a branch along the Strand to the Custom-house and Dalhousie-square. The great expense of taking up land would thus be avoided, while all that is required for the high level arches would be more than paid for by letting them to traders. The pressure on Calcutta would thus be relieved by merchants and clerks stepping into the train from their offices and reaching home in the suburbs—Barrackpore or Serampore—in half an hour. The time must soon come when Calcutta will have its suburban railways, and when its million of population and vast trade will enjoy some at least of those facilities of locomotion which are to be found in towns in Europe a tenth of its size, and with a hundredth part of its wealth. We rejoice, therefore, that the public bodies of Calcutta have appealed to the Governor-general in Council "for the exercise of his authority and influence in promoting an undertaking of the highest importance to the trade of Calcutta, upon the advancement of which the interests of Government and the prosperity of Bengal mainly rest." — Friend of India, March 21.

THE TRAFFIC ON INDIAN RAILWAYS.

Mr. Danvers spoke of the traffic on the principal railway lines of India last year as having exceeded the most sanguine expectations. That of the present year on the East Indian Railway, since the restoration of the line, must, we think, exceed even the expectations raised by the results referred to by Mr. Danvers. Not the least remarkable feature of this great increase in the traffic of the line in question is, that it has taken place in spite of a considerable diminution in the trade of the country, thus plainly showing that the railway, as a means of transport for goods, is rapidly advancing in popularity. One of the principal causes of this is, there can be no doubt, the liberality of the railway company themselves, as shown in the important reduction lately made in the rates of freight for grains, and some other articles, a reduction amounting in many cases to as much as fifty per cent. The effect has been severely felt by the River Steam Companies, who, though they have reduced their rates for the same classes of goods slightly below those of the rail, can no longer compete with it to any extent. Though it is still cheaper to convey even first-class goods by native boats than by rail, the more intelligent native merchants are beginning to see that the superior rapidity and absence of risk of the former means of transport more than compensate them for the small amount saved by the employment of boats. That the railway can ever entirely displace the river, as far at least as the downward traffic is concerned, is not to be expected; and it is certainly not desirable that the railway company should reduce their downward rates of freight in the case of any considerable articles of traffic.

With regard to the upward traffic, however, we hold a different opinion; in the first place because the superiority of the rail to the river is much greater in respect of this than of the downward traffic, and it can, therefore, more easily compete with native boats, and, in the second place, because the upward is so insignificant as compared with the downward traffic of the line that a large proportion of the waggons must return empty, and their carriage therefore constitute an unremunerative charge on the revenues of the company. Any traffic that would fill these waggons might, we think, be very profitably carried at much lower rates than those charged for downward goods. In fact, any rates that would leave a surplus, after paying for the extra fuel and wear and tear, would be profitable. Though the import trade of the country is itself insignificant as compared with the export trade, there is one commodity, still sent almost entirely in native boats, which would alone almost fill these waggons, if it could be secured by the railway. We refer, of course, to salt. The cost of carrying salt, say to Patna, by native boats, averages, we believe, about twenty rupees per hundred maunds; by the railway it is upwards of fifty rupees to the same place. If the railway should carry salt at half this charge, or, say, at a charge of one-eighth of a pie per maund per mile, instead of one-fourth, as at present, we have not the least doubt that it would be generally preferred to the native boat, especially if the railway afforded, as it easily might afford, facilities for stowing and loading the salt without bags, which would otherwise form a more serious charge in the case of this than of other goods, as it renders them almost unfit for further use. Remembering the circumstances mentioned above, and remembering that salt is a weighty and not a bulky article, we can hardly doubt, without figures to prove the contrary, that the railway could well afford to carry this article at the rate of $\frac{1}{8}$ of a pie per maund per mile. We are, in fact, of opinion that it would, carried at that rate, bring in a very large addition to the income of the company, an addition of almost pure profit. A reduction might also probably be made with advantage to the railway company in the rates of freight for metals. In the case of piece goods, which are generally despatched by railway at the present rates, we see no reason to recommend any reduction. — Englishman, March 27.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MONEY AND SHARE MARKET.—CALCUTTA, March 27.—There has been no further alteration in the Bank of Bengal's rates for money, but rates are firmer, and there is a better demand. In Government paper the transactions are small and the buyers few. Rates are steadily growing weaker, and may now be quoted:—Four per Cents., Rs. 87-4 to 87-6; Five per Cents., Rs. 104-8 to 104-12; and Five and a Half per Cents., Rs. 108-12 to 109.

In exchange the business has been very small, as the previous mail left so recently; but a farther advance has been established, and rates may now be quoted for Bank bills 2s. 0½d. Private paper has been placed to a small extent at 2s. 0½d., but the tendency is to higher rates. On Bombay and China business is nominal.

DEPARTURE OF COL. PHAYRE, C.B., FROM RANGOON.—At a quarter after ten o'clock on Thursday last his Honour the late Chief Commissioner of British Burmah, and Agent to the Governor-General of India, embarked on board of the British India Steam Navigation Company's steamer Busheer, Captain J. Patterson, under a salute of thirteen guns, fired by the Royal Artillery in the cantonment. His Honour was received at the main wharf by a guard of honour of the 2nd battalion H.M. 24th regiment, under command of Captain Gibson, with the regimental colour, carried by Lieut. Williams. The guard presented arms on his arrival, and the band played the national anthem. There was a very large attendance of civil and military officers at the wharf, consisting of all the heads of departments and officers at the station. The mercantile body and professional men were also largely represented among the gathering. The sides and corners of the wharf were literally crowded by respectable natives. A party of about one hundred and fifty policemen, in charge of Mr. Assistant Superintendent Reid, formed open column on both sides of the road leading to the main entrance of the wharf. A great many gentlemen followed the retiring chief on board the steamer, and formed a very large company on the poop deck of the vessel, where they tarried for several minutes, while the steamer was being loosed from her moorings. At length came the sad moment of parting; one after another stepped forward to receive a cordial shake of the hand, and to exchange those touching words "Good-bye," which mean as much as would comprise a splendid essay on examination day. All hearts did certainly beat in unison in wishing Colonel Phayre a safe, happy, and prosperous passage home, and the speedy restoration of his health, and for which the prayers of many will follow him. As the steamer was gently pushing a-head past the wharf, the crowds of friends and mass of people around raised three hearty cheers, which made the welkin ring. The Union Jack was hoisted at the mast head of the port flagstaff, and all the foreign consuls displayed the colours of their respective nations. Thus has left these shores the first commissioner of Pegu and the first chief commissioner of British Burmah, surrounded by all those outward circumstances of a public demonstration which neither official position could command nor private esteem and friendship employ.—Rangoon Times, March 21.

SIR STAFFORD NORTHCOTE.—Our new Secretary of State, Sir Stafford Northcote, is one of the most prominent and able members of the Tory party under the Earl of Derby. His college career at Oxford was brilliant and distinguished, and his official appointment in the Treasury showed him fitted to supply Gladstone's place with the Conservatives. He is one of England's first-class intellects, and his appointment to the post of Secretary of State for India shows us that the Tory Ministry at least are not determined to trifle with the destinies of India. As a Tory we expect him to have those large and clear views which strike every one at once as the best; and from his being a financier we would believe that measures submitted to him will always meet from him with close attention and severe calculation. India's wish is that the Tory party may long continue to wield the destinies of Great Britain and her great dependencies, as under them not only will true reform be effected, but the honour of England maintained intact, and the interests of this great dependency be carefully attended to. All English settlers in India are Tories to the backbone, although they are generally Scotch.—Dacca News and Planters' Journal, March 23.

THERE IS TO BE A GREAT HORSE FAIR AT RAWUL PINDEE during the present week, and the Lieutenant-governor of the Punjab was to reach Lahore on Wednesday, ostensibly to attend the gathering. We say ostensibly, because it is hardly probable that Sir Donald McLeod would travel 170 miles and back for the sole purpose of attending a mart for the sale of horses and other cattle, and we therefore place some reliance on the surmise communicated to us that his Honour proceeds towards, if not to, the frontier to confer with Major Pollock, Commissioner of Peshawur, on the daily more and more important questions relating to the present and prospective condition of Afghanistan. Sir Donald will, it is understood, be absent about ten days from Lahore.—Delhi Gazette, March 30.

RAILWAY—DELHI TO MEERUT.—We are informed with regard to a recent paragraph regarding the opening of the Delhi Railway section from Gazeabad to Meerut that, nothing intervening to prevent the arrangement, this section will be available for goods and passenger traffic on and after the 18th day of April next. The line will be served by two trains daily either way, between Delhi and Meerut and Meerut and Delhi. First-class fares will be Rs. 3-2 for the whole distance of thirty-nine miles. Meerut will thus be brought into direct railway communication with Calcutta, Agra, &c.—Delhi Gazette, March 30.

THE ETHNOLOGICAL COMMITTEE OF THE ASIATIC SOCIETY have asked the Government to consider the subject of the illustration of Colonel Dalton's descriptive ethnology of Bengal. The committee are unanimous that it is of the greatest importance that the above work should be fully illustrated by characteristic representations of all the races of men of which it treats. A portion of the manuscript having lately been submitted to them for their opinion, they feel themselves in a position to affirm that right exceptions of the differences and mutual relations of the tribes described in the text can only be vividly conveyed by the written description being aided by accurate pictorial illustration.—Englishman, March 27.

NATIVE APPRECIATION OF BRITISH ENTERPRISE.—The natives of that part of the country through which the new Jubbulpore line is now in course of construction have already commenced to show their appreciation of British enterprise by more than once placing chairs and sleepers on the rail where the trains or single engines are daily running. Of course there is more facility afforded now for such practices, as on an unfinished line it is impossible to keep material which is in daily use at any distance from the rail. But whether such practices are of easy accomplishment now or not the fact remains the same, that lives and property are in danger, and the sooner a railway police is organised, and a satisfactory patrol kept up the better it will be for the safety of those who are now employed on the Jubbulpore line, and who are passing up and down the rail nearly every day. The obstructions have been placed on that portion of the line which passes through Native State.—Pioneer, March 27.

INDIGO.—We hear of fine rain having fallen lately in parts of Lower Bengal, which would do much good to the October plants, and enable spring-sowing to be pushed forward. The last accounts continue good.

DR. RIDDELL, 3rd Infantry, Hyderabad Contingent, is to be appointed medical officer in civil charge of the Hyderabad Residency on the arrival of Mr. Temple.

MR. HORDEEN, Cantonment Magistrate of Ellichpoor, is to be appointed Deputy-Commissioner of the new district of Ellichpoor.

ANALYSIS OF WATERS.—The following arrangements have been made by the head of the medical department of Bengal for the analysis of potable waters at the different military cantonments during the ensuing spring and autumn seasons. The officers detailed below will be employed at the stations noted attached to their names:—Assistant Surgeons J. Cleghorn, Berhampore and Hazareebaugh; R. Jameson, Dinapore and Benares; R. M. Milne, Allahabad and Cawnpore; J. Cameron, Agra, Jhansi, and Morar; G. Griffith, Saugor and Jubbulpore; T. Orton, Lucknow, Fyzabad, and Seetapore; J. T. Gage, Meerut and Bareilly; T. W. Sheppard, Delhi; D. P. Palmer, Umballa and Ferozepore; Murray Thompson, Hill stations; M. H. Lackerstein, Lahore, Umritsur, Julundur, and Sealkote; W. Center, Rawul Pindie, Peshawur, and Campbellpore.

THE WEATHER IN CALCUTTA.—The weather during the past few days has been distinguished by a somewhat strange peculiarity for the month of March. Nearly every evening for the past ten days there has been more or less thunder in the air, and fresh breezes blowing from nearly every point of the compass, accompanied by cool and refreshing showers, which has done much to keep the population healthy. Yesterday afternoon, about half-past three o'clock, the clouds having previously given indication that a storm was brewing, a succession of violent squalls, accompanied by rain and hail, which lasted nearly half an hour, burst over the city, and had the effect of flooding the streets and cleansing the sewers, irrespective of the Conservancy Department. There was some thunder and lightning, too, but the squalls, having exhausted their fury without doing much harm, gradually died away, and, although the thunder kept rumbling at a distance, a beautiful evening followed.—Englishman, March 24.

SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST A LADY.—A friend informs us from Sealkote that a very delicate case has been sent up for the decision of the judges of the Chief Court, by the Cantonment Magistrate of that station. A lady—a European of respectability—wife of the agent to the Indian Carrying Company there, has been accused of having abstracted Punjab currency notes to the value of Rs. 570 from a registered cover addressed to the agent at Lahore. She has been released on bail. The deputy-manager of the company is the prosecutor. We would rather suspect the P. O. underlings, and a thorough investigation into the case may prove us to be correct.—Lahore Chronicle, March 23.

IMPORTANT NEWS FROM PESHAWUR.—From the Peshawur frontier important news has reached us. It is said that as soon as the Russian General heard of the decision of the Government of India not to interfere with affairs in Bokhara, he at once deprived the King of Bokhara of all his royal dignities, and reduced him to the position of one of the principal officers of the new Russian State. It is added that Russia will not for the present advance beyond the Bokhara frontier, but that she will maintain an armed watch over events taking place at Cabool.

THE BENGAL MILITARY ORPHAN SOCIETY.—We learn that subscribers to the Bengal Military Orphan Society, going home on furlough, or on retirement, must procure from the Secretary a certificate, showing the date of their last subscriptions in this country, and the rates payable by them in England, for production at the India House. Officers coming out to this country will be furnished with a similar certificate by the Director of Military Funds.

MR. GOLDSMITH has been committed for trial. The charge against him is, "That he, on the 11th of February, 1867, in the Agra cantonment, fraudulently and dishonestly made use of as genuine a document which he knew to be a forged document, and that he has thereby committed an offence punishable under Section 471 of the Indian Penal Code."—Delhi Gazette, March 30.

ACTION FOR DAMAGES.—CALCUTTA AND SOUTH-EASTERN RAILWAY.—The action brought by Mr. Woodhouse against the Calcutta and South-Eastern Railway for damages amounting to Rs. 50,000, for injuries sustained by him whilst leaving a carriage on the line, has been heard before Mr. Beaufort, the judge of the 24-Pergunnahs, and dismissed. An appeal is, we hear, to be made against this decision.

THE COSYAH CHIEFS.—An agreement has been entered into with the Chief of Mowigong, which it is proposed shall form the model for all subsequent arrangements with the Comsyah chiefs. The local title of Seem, or chief, will henceforth probably be used instead of the higher one of Rajah. The whole relations of the British Government with the Comsyah chiefs is under consideration and will shortly be remodelled.

SERIOUS AFFRAY IN CHITTAGONG.—An affray is reported from Chittagong between some sailors and the inhabitants of one of the neighbouring villages. It appears that the sailors were out for a day's shooting, when they were set upon for some reason by the villagers, and in the affray they fired upon the crowd, killing two men and wounding three or four others. The case, it is said, is under investigation; but the report requires further confirmation.

THE LUCKNOW FORCE.—The Commander-in-Chief has notified, with the authority of Government, that the force which entered Lucknow with General Havelock, in September, 1857, and that which he left behind at the Alumbagh, are entitled to count a year's service as time towards furlough, in the same way as officers engaged from the first in the defence of Lucknow.—Englishman, March 22.

COMMAND OF THE LAHORE DIVISION.—Many of our readers at this station will regret to learn that Major General Ranier, C.B., commanding the Lahore division of the army, has been compelled to return to England on medical certificate. During his absence Brigadier General Percy Hill, C.B., will command at Lahore, being succeeded in Rohilcund by Colonel Macdonnell, of the Rifle Brigade.—Pioneer.

VICE-CHANCELLOR OF THE CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY.—The Viceroy and Governor-General has appointed the Hon. W. S. Seton-Karr Vice-Chancellor of the University of Calcutta for the usual term of two years. After that time, we regret to learn, Mr. Seton-Karr is likely to resign the service.—Friend of India, March 21.

TESTIMONIAL TO BE PRESENTED TO MR. TEMPLE BY THE NAGPORE VOLUNTEERS.—We understand that the Nagpore Volunteers have unanimously resolved to present their colonel, Mr. Temple, with a vase on his abdication of the chief commissionership of these provinces, and consequent resignation of the colonelcy of that corps.

SHIPPING IN THE HOOGHLY.—There are now lying in the river Hooghly 122 vessels, of an aggregate tonnage of 1,13,547 tons; the destinations of 41 of which, representing a tonnage of 39,243 tons, are not fixed. Of these, 26 are British, 2 American, 1 foreign, and 12 country trading vessels.

WINDING-UP OF THE GUZERAT BANK.—A meeting of the shareholders of the Guzerat Bank has been held at Surat. The directors' report was adopted, and it was resolved that the bank be wound up voluntarily.

MADRAS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LORD NAPIER has decided upon making a tour through the Northern districts in company with Mr. R. S. Ellis, C.B., the Sanitary Commissioner. We believe his lordship has decided on visiting Bellary and Kurnool, doubtless with a view to inspect the great irrigation works in those districts. The sanitary state of Kurnool, too, has been of late years most unsatisfactory, so much so indeed as to call for an official inquiry, the result of which, however, was that Kurnool should not be abandoned as a military station. The exact tour which Lord Napier will make has not yet been finally settled, but we hear he intends going to the districts we have named in the month of July.

THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.—As if to compensate for Lord Napier's activity, Sir Gaspard Le Marchant sticks like a hermit to the hills. The present Commander-in-Chief has been two years in Madras, and out of the twenty-four months has spent nearly twenty on the Neigherry hills. He made a short visit to Rangoon and the Straits a few weeks back, but the only military station, we believe, that he has visited in this presidency is Bangalore. The great stations of Trichinopoly, Cannanore, Secunderabad, Bellary, Kamptee, and the various officers and regiments garrisoning these places, are personally unknown to him. Sir Gaspard Le Marchant is also a member of the Local Legislative Council, and is paid £160 a month in virtue of his appointment. We should be sorry to detract from any credit the chief may claim, but we do not recollect that he has taken part in any of the council's deliberations since the day on which he was sworn in a member. The whole body of medical officers in the army have been insulted by an order of Government which probably would never have been passed had Sir Gaspard Le Marchant only been in his place at council to do his duty. We look upon the career of the Commander-in-Chief in this Presidency as little short of a public scandal. Fortunately the present peaceful state of India renders it a matter of little importance whom we have at the head of the army; but in the event of difficulties arising, either in the Nizam's dominions or in Upper Burmah (by no means improbable contingencies), what possible confidence could the army or the public have in a commander who has never taken the trouble to make himself acquainted either with the country or the army under his command? The public have a right to protest against paying a licence or any other tax to support public officers in idle affluence, and especially when they show such an outrageous neglect of duty as Sir Gaspard Le Marchant does.—Madras Times.

MR. GORDON FORBES, the Collector of Ganjam, is to be the new member of the Board of Revenue, in the place of Mr. Brett, who retires. Mr. Forbes's place in Ganjam has been offered to Mr. Robinson, C.S.J., the Inspector-General of the Madras Police, but it seems doubtful whether he will accept it; if not, we believe it will be given to Mr. Carmichael, the present Collector of Vizagapatam.

MAJOR-GENERAL MARSHALL.—Her Majesty, on the recommendation of the Government of India, has conferred a good service pension on Major-general Hubert Marshall, of the Madras infantry. General Marshall has been employed in the Madras Military Secretariat for many years, and since 1860 has been Secretary to Government. In August, 1859, he was specially recommended by the Commander-in-Chief at Madras, Sir Patrick Grant, for recognition and honourable distinction for his valuable services, in which recommendation the Governor of Madras fully concurred.

THE MADRAS RAILWAY.—The traffic receipts of the South-West line for the week ending March 16, 1867, amounted for passengers, &c., to Rs. 28,808-10-4, for goods, &c., to Rs. 47,889-6-11, making together Rs. 76,698-1-3, or an average receipt per mile of Rs. 155-14-3. During the corresponding week in 1866 the receipts were Rs. 80,757-4-4, or an average receipt per mile of Rs. 164-2-3. The receipts on the North-West line for the same week amounted for passengers, &c., to Rs. 5,262-7-8, for goods, &c., to Rs. 14,488-14-7, making together Rs. 19,751-6-3, or an average receipt per mile of Rs. 129-1-6. During the corresponding week in 1866 the receipts were Rs. 13,180-13-10, or an average receipt per mile of Rs. 110-12-3.

THE BANGALORE TRAMWAY COMPANY (LIMITED).—We understand that on Thursday last the agent, the traffic manager, and the chief engineer of the Madras Railway, with the Consulting Engineer for Railways, discussed at this station the questions of the advisability of extending their line to the Pettah, and of the construction of a street tramway for the whole town, and that they were unanimously in favour of the latter, considering that it would exactly meet the growing requirements of the place. A favourable opinion was entertained that it would pay a good dividend.—Bangalore Herald.

SIR COLLEY SCOTLAND, the Chief Justice, returned to Madras by the steamer Surat. Sir Adam Bittleston, who has been acting Chief Justice during Sir Colley's absence, is about to proceed to England on leave, and will go by the second steamer in April.

THE HON. JOHN YOUNG, senior partner in the firm of Arbuthnot and Co., is about to leave Madras after a connection of about twenty-five years with India. His place in the Legislative Council will, it is expected, be taken by Mr. Rierson Arbuthnot, a member of the same firm.

REWARD FOR PROFICIENCY IN THE VERNACULARS.—On the 25th March Mr. J. B. Jones, Junior Civil Servant, successfully passed the examination in the Tamil language prescribed for the major reward of Rs. 1,600, which has accordingly been conferred upon him by the Government. Mr. Jones has also signified his intention of qualifying in a similar manner in the Telugoo language, in which he is at present undergoing a course of instructions.

LARGE CAPTURE OF ELEPHANTS.—Another success has attended the efforts of the Kedda establishment in the Central Provinces. Information was received last week from Belaspore of the capture of a herd of thirty eight elephants, most of them of full size. There is some reason to believe that though there may be a stray pair in the forests, the last "herd" of elephants has been caught.—Central India Times, March 23.

STOCK AND MONEY MARKET.—The value of Government paper has depreciated still further during the fortnight, our present quotations being for Four per Cents. 86½ to 87½, Fives 102½ to 103½, Five and a Half 109 to 109½. Transactions have been very limited, but a better disposition has been shown to invest. Bank of Madras shares remain at the same quotation, viz., 63 to 64 premium, nothing doing. A proposal has been made by the directors of the Bank of Bengal to amalgamate with the Presidency Banks of Bombay and Madras. The proposals made are to be considered at a special general meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of Madras on the 10th proximo. There has been no change in Bank rates since our last circular, and money is sufficiently abundant.

EXCHANGE.—Rates have made two further movements upwards since the date of our last circular. For the mail via Bombay of the 23rd inst., Bank bills were quoted at 2-0¼, credits at 2-0½, and documents at 2-0¼. The rates at the banks for the present mail are, Bank bills 2-0½, credits 2-0½, and documents 2-0½ to 2-1.

FREIGHTS.—The improvement in rates reported in our last has been well maintained, and a further advance of five rupees per ton established for cotton.

IMPORTS.—Business has been exceedingly stagnant during the fortnight, and values of price goods have depreciated very considerably below our last quotations. 7lb. Shirtings have fallen four annas per piece, but there is little or no inquiry even at this reduced rate. Transactions have been very limited. Our present quotations are:—7lbs., Rs. 6-12; 8½lbs., Rs. 8-1. No. 40 Mule Twist has fetched Rs. 4-10, but our quotation at present is Rs. 4-7 to Rs. 4-9. Very little has been done in Coloured Yarns; one favourite ticket of Turkey Red realised as much as Rs. 10-4, though Rs. 9-14 is about the quotation. With the exception of one transaction in Dark Green there has been nothing doing in other colours. There have been a few transactions in Iron, but at rather lower rates.

EXPORTS.—There have been several transactions during the fortnight at rates varying from Rs. 162 down to Rs. 155 per candy. Two or three thousand bales have been taken at prices between these limits; the latest price paid is Rs. 155.

COTTON CROP 1866-7 IN THE SOUTHERN DIVISION.

The annual report on the cotton crop of the southern division of the Bombay Presidency, which we published last Saturday, must be regarded as a very encouraging one. It tells of a considerable increase over last year in the aggregate growth of cotton, and of a still more decided extension in the cultivation of the exotic varieties, mainly of the acclimatised New Orleans cotton. The report for the northern division of our Presidency is not yet ready, but these favourable estimates before us need not be taken with any apprehension that the aggregate result from the whole cotton field which supplies the port of Bombay will differ much in general character from that now reported by Mr. Walton. The more immediate cause of the good crop and satisfactory yield in the southern division is the favourable state of the weather—a cause which affects for good the whole of Guzerat, the ancient field of "Surat," and also the fertile districts of the Central Provinces and the Berars, which, though not within our Presidency, are now inseparably connected with the commercial fortunes of Bombay, because of the large and increasing yield in those fertile districts of all the better varieties of indigenous cotton. It is a fortunate coincidence in favour of the new export trade of Western India that so favourable a season has occurred, and an increased yield is obtained, just in the year when the stability of the trade and the confidence of the cultivators in that stability, are likely to be severely tested by the decline from high prices to a normal rate. This report from the southern division is also of special importance at the present time, because within this field have been expended far the larger share of those persevering attempts to acclimatise a new variety of cotton on its old Indian soil—attempts which were commenced many years since amidst great discouragement by Mr. A. A. Shaw, the then collector of Dharwar, taken up and worked out by the energetic Dr. Forbes, whose lessons are now applied with great zeal and discrimination by the Officiating Commissioner, Mr. W. Walton.

We must confess to some leaning in favour of efforts directed towards improvement and development of the better kinds of Indian cotton—whether on the principle of natural selection by the "pedigree system," or by choice of the most suitable soils and careful rotation of crops—but "nothing succeeds like success," and Mr. Walton's report amounts to a demonstration in favour of cultivating the exotic variety, at least in the Southern division.

When he comes to present his report on the Northern division, we shall doubtless find him compelled to say a good deal in favour of the native plant when properly cared for in its old habitat, the black vegetable mould of Guzerat. Mr. Walton, in advocating the superiority of acclimatised New Orleans, is careful to make the reserve that it should be "planted in lands that are suitable for it," and there can be no question that its cultivation in such localities in preference to any variety of the indigenous plant is a very great advantage to the ryot and to everyone concerned, and is also a clear gain to the general commercial interests of this presidency. In a table which we need not again give in full, Mr. Walton shows the total expense of cultivation, ginning and packing, compared with the return per acre in the case of exotic and indigenous cotton respectively. The calculation is furnished by the collector of Dharwar, where, we suppose, the chance of indigenous cotton is as good as anywhere else in India. It is shown that while the total cost to the cultivator per acre in the case of exotic cotton is Rs. 7-8 (15s.) and for the native plant Rs. 6-12 (10s. 6d.) the profit by the sale of the produce in the former case is Rs. 12-8 (25s.), and in the latter Rs. 6-5 (12s. 6d.), showing an advantage in favour of acclimatised New Orleans of Rs. 6-4 (12s. 6d.) per acre. At this rate one might think there would soon be nothing but exotic cotton grown—and Dr. Forbes seemed at one time to think that he could over-run India with his favourite plant—but Mr. Walton points out as an impossible obstacle to this triumphant result that, even in the Dharwar Collectorate, "there is a considerable quantity of ground which suits the India plants in which the New Orleans grows but indifferently." This is now one of the established axioms on the subject of cotton cultivation in India, one which has been arrived at after much expense, labour, and disappointment; but the net result is, after all, very satisfactory. It is now known throughout this presidency what portion of the soil is suitable for the exotic seed, and if the whole of that be so utilised it is all that the most ardent Manchester man can desire. The Commissioner shows, moreover, that, irrespective of the result to Manchester, it is of great importance to ourselves that, so long as we find it worth while to export cotton, the districts suited to the growth of the New Orleans should be so occupied. He says:—"The extra out-turn not only represents a very much larger profit, but, what is of still more importance in a country where almost every acre of arable land is taken up, it is an immense saving of cultivatable area. This is proved by the fact that lands sown with exotic cotton yield more than twenty-six per cent. in excess of that planted with the indigenous variety."

Mr. Walton points out the necessity for strict rotation of crops as an important limitation in regard to the statistics of Indian cultivation, a fact which is constantly overlooked at home. For the Dharwar Collectorate there are 1,168,153 acres of land "capable of producing cotton;" but this land is seriously deteriorated if cotton, or, we suppose, any other exhausting crop, is grown more frequently than once in three years. He points out that the extent of land this year under cotton in Dharwar (466,438 acres) is considerably more than what a good agriculturist would consider the proper proportion. So it is shown that, in the best cotton field in this Presidency, cultivation of the finest staple has been pushed as far as it can go—with due regard to the quantity of labour, the amount of capital, and (we believe) the raw material (suitable soil) there is at disposal. In view of this result, attained after many toilsome efforts, we may at any rate bid the Manchester men "be thankful," though we suppose it would be of no more avail to bid them

"rest" from their labours to increase the cotton supply than it would be to tender the same advice to Mr. Walton or to Mr. Rivett-Carnac. If Manchester has occasion to be thankful in the results that have been gained by the new cotton cultivation, India has still more. Mr. Walton calculates the "clear profit" that this year will accrue to the cultivators of Dharwar—exclusive of the gain that will be made by the dealers, brokers and merchants—at Rs. 44,51,283 (£445,128), forming, it may be said, quite a "largess" for a population of about one million. We do not forget that with ordinary crops a certain profit would have been gained by the ryots; but it is needless to say that this amount, being in addition to grain and other crops, is vastly in excess of what would have been obtained without the exotic cultivation.

We have perhaps given an undue share of attention to Dharwar in our notice of Mr. Walton's report, but our excuse must be, that out of 26,439 candies (equal to 52,878 bales) of exotic cotton, to be produced this season in the whole of the Southern Division, all but 850 candies will come from the collectorate of Dharwar. It remains for us to state the results for the whole Southern Division as shown in Mr. Walton's report. For this purpose we have arranged a table—which includes certain particulars taken from the body of Mr. Walton's report as well as from his own fuller tables—giving the quantities in pounds so as to afford readier comparison with bales and candies in other districts, and we have omitted the fractions of acres:—

EXOTIC COTTON.
	Area under Cultivation.	Aggregate yield.	Average of cleaned cotton.
	Acres.	lbs.	Per acre.
1865-6 ...	288,973 ...	16,241,884 ...	60 lbs.
1866-7 ...	316,446 ...	20,728,957 ...	66 "
Increase in 1866-7 }	17 per cent. ...	27½ per cent.
INDIGENOUS COTTON.
1865-6 ...	684,039 ...	29,473,497 ...	43 lbs.
1866-7 ...	731,970 ...	36,770,742 ...	49 "
Increase in 1866-7 }	7 per cent. ...	24½ per cent.

In addition to the increase of quality expressed in the above figures it must be remembered that Mr. Walton speaks of the superiority in quality and fibre which is noticeable in the present crop. This is due in great measure to the favourable season, but partly also to the increased familiarity with the cultivation and the improvements in preparation of the fibre for market. There is yet very much to be done in this latter respect. The commissioner found that in the Kulladhgee collectorate the sawgins were so bad that the exotic cotton fibre is so much injured in the cleaning as to be worth less than the ordinary cotton of the country. The commissioner at once set himself to remedy this evil by the establishment of a small factory for the repair of sawgins and other implements. It is a striking proof of the firm hold that the cotton cultivation has gained in Dharwar itself, that two new machine factories which have been erected there during the present season have been built by the voluntary subscriptions of the ryots themselves, who, we are glad to observe, are to be entrusted with the chief share in the control of the establishment, through the agency of a local punchayet (village jury). It has often been feared, and in some instances proved, that the rapid extension of cotton cultivation had injuriously contracted the area under grain crops. But the people themselves know better than to repeat this error, and in Belgium, the only collectorate under report which shows a falling off in the cotton crop as compared with last year, the stock of grain had been almost exhausted, and therefore this season a larger breadth of food crops has there been sown. The Commissioner states that throughout the Southern Division the grain crops have been very good, in many districts equal to twice an average season. Altogether the report before us confirms the hopeful view that India will be able to keep a good place in the Liverpool market, even in the face of full competition, and that this can be done without deranging our agricultural system, or supplanting other exports that would be likely to pay us better.—Times of India.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TOO GOOD TO BE LOST.—A private letter from the Western Presidency supplies an amusing story which is going the round of the clubs there, and which is too good to be lost. The letter says:—"You are probably aware that we are shortly to have a new commissioner in Scinde in the room of Mr. S. Mansfield; Mr. Secretary Chapman, C.S., Mr. Robertson, C.S., Mr. Bellasis, C.S., and Colonel Merewether have in turn been spoken of as likely to obtain the appointment; but the advent of the Hon. W. Seymour Fitzgerald has given rise to the feeling that he may perchance have a new and dear relative to provide for in the shape of a son, to whom five thousand a year would not be unacceptable. Report says, indeed, that his son is to have the appointment, and gives his son also credit for first starting the report in the following manner. In reply to a question as to what his father intended doing for him now that he was made Governor of Bombay, he said, 'O, I'm to be Commissioner of Simla!'—'Simla!' replied his friend, 'you surely are mistaken; Simla is not under the Bombay Presidency. You probably mean Commissioner of Scinde.' 'Very likely you are right,' replied the hopeful one, 'I knew it was S something.'—Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, March 21.

PROPOSED INTRODUCTION OF TEA AND COFFEE PLANTING IN THE MAURITIUS.—Letters from the Mauritius inform us of the intention of Government to introduce tea and coffee plants into the island. A gentleman was lately deputed by the Mauritius Government to visit Ceylon and report on the probability of the success of the experiment. The report, which has been made public, is a most favourable one, as Mr. Horne, the gentleman who visited Ceylon, considers that both tea and coffee could be grown to great advantage in the Mauritius. In Ceylon, also, the tea plant is said to grow well, and it is believed that tea will soon form an article of export from Ceylon. There are now about a hundred acres under cultivation, and an increasing demand is apparent for seeds and plants, and information regarding its cultivation and manipulation. Mr. Morice, to whose report the Governor-general referred in replying to the tea planters' deputation, was the person deputed to gain the necessary information. One half of the expenses of the deputation is to be borne by the Ceylon Government, and the other by the planters' association.—Indian Daily News and Bengal Hurkaru, March 26.

MR. E. I. HOWARD has at last waived his claim to a copyright of his books, and has made over the profits to Government. When this barrister was employed in the Government Education Department a general outcry was raised at his pocketing the profits of books compiled by him while serving as the head of that department, and circulated through the influence of his office as such. It was thought that Government was entitled to those profits. Mr. Howard has been eventually obliged to forego those profits. He has written a letter, dated the 1st February, 1867, to Sir Alexander Grant regarding his copyright to the twelve little books compiled by him.

MR. ALEXANDER BROWN (of the firm of William Nicol and Co.) has been elected chairman of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce in place of the Hon. A. J. Hunter, who is about to proceed to Europe.

THE LICENSE TAX.—A requisition to the Sheriff of Bombay, desiring him to call a meeting of the European and native inhabitants of Bombay desirous of publicly expressing their disapproval of the "license tax" in its present form, is now in course of signature. Copies of the requisition may be seen and signatures attached at this office or at the town-hall, and it is particularly desirable that as many signatures as possible may be attached without delay.

EXTRA ALLOWANCE TO DR. BIRDWOOD.—On a reference from the Government of Bombay as to what salary should be given to Dr. Birdwood, of the Bombay Medical Service, who proceeded in charge of the articles for the Paris Exhibition from that Presidency, the Government of India has decided that, in addition to the usual passage money, a deputation allowance of Rs. 200 a month, besides the pay of his substantive appointment, should be granted to that officer.

SIR R. NAPIER.—We are informed that his Excellency Sir Robert Napier has abandoned his intention of proceeding on a tour of inspection to Belgaum for the present. He will, we understand, leave this for Mahabaleswar in the course of a few days, where he will take up his residence during the remainder of the hot season, and return to Poona on the setting in of the rains in June next.—Deccan Herald, March 20.

THE COMMERCIAL BANK.—It has been determined that the local creditors of the Commercial Bank shall be paid in Bombay; but as the official liquidator has prohibited any payments until the High Court has rescinded the winding-up order which it originally granted, there is a probability of some delay taking place ere depositors receive their first dividend.

THE RECLAMATION COMPANY.—A meeting of the shareholders of the Bombay Reclamation Company has been called for April 9th, to consider a proposition for a compromise to be made by the liquidators of the Asiatic Banking Corporation in respect of the moneys due by the bank to the company.

REGULATION OF PRINTING PRESSES.—An Act for the regulation of printing presses and newspapers, and for the registration and preservation of copies of all books printed in British India, has received the assent of the Governor General.

THE WORKING OF THE INDO-EUROPEAN TELEGRAPH is still very uncertain, owing to the continued interruption on the direct line. March 23 is the latest public date, while several of the dates between the 14th and 23rd have yet to arrive.

WET DOCKS AT BOMBAY.—The Chamber of Commerce has appointed a committee to co-operate with the Government committee with regard to the proposed construction of wet docks in the harbour of Bombay.

THE CLIMATE OF HONG KONG.—A good deal of annoyance has been felt in Hong Kong at the ridiculously erroneous views of the climate which appear to be held by the English newspapers. From November to the end of April at any rate every one wears woollen clothing, and during three months at least coal fires are a necessity within doors. From the 1st of May, as a rule, the warm weather sets in, and people take to wearing white clothes; by June punkas become desirable at dinner time, and during that month, July, and August the thermometer ranges about 90 degrees, though it is an open question after all, except with people of what the doctors call, or used to call, "a full habit of body," whether the summer or the winter is the pleasant season. After August the heat moderates until, as already stated, with November arrive chilly breezes, and the necessity for warm clothing.—Overland Trade Report.

BURMAH.—TEN THOUSAND RUPEES REWARD.

—Late intelligence from Mandalay is to the effect that the King has offered a reward of Rs. 10,000 for the head of the Mingoon Prince. When this scion of Burmese Royalty took his departure so discourteously from this town it was supposed that he would make straight for the Shan States. This supposition turns out to be perfectly true. The local Government, we believe, have information that several Shan chiefs have joined him and some thousands of rebels in his favour, and against the King. They are marching on the capital. His Majesty's position is, therefore, becoming desperate. The wisest and the best thing which the King can do is to abdicate, and place his country in the hands of Colonel Fytche. The British Government will soon catch all the rebels and lock them up, or put them on board of a steamer and send them to Ceylon, where they may make themselves as happy as they please, dreaming about "Nike-ban" and the joys to come. Secret messages have also been sent by the Mingoon Prince to his younger brother, now at Rangoon, urging him to run away from our protection, and to cast his fortunes with those of his brother. Apparently he wishes to stay here, where he is safe, and he is wise in that resolution. A crisis is slowly coming round which may place Upper Burmah in our possession without our firing a single shot for it. Patience! The apple will be fully ripe before long.—Rangoon Times, March 16.

[Before the JUDGE ORDINARY.]

WIGHT V. WIGHT AND FIELD.

In this case, in which it will be remembered that the jury lately found for the respondents, the Court dismissed the petition, and condemned General Wight in Dr. Field's costs. It refused, however, to give Dr. Field the costs incurred by him in a previous and abortive trial.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CHRISTIAN VERNACULAR EDUCATION SOCIETY FOR INDIA.—The ninth annual meeting of this society was held on Friday, at Willis's Rooms, St. James's. Mr. J. C. Colquhoun presided, and among others there were present the Hon. A. Kinnaird, M.P., Generals Clarke and Shotrede, Colonels Gabb, Caldwell, and Rowlandson, the Rev. Messrs. E. Auriol, J. H. Titcomb, Kies, and Storror (from Calcutta), and Messrs. H. Carre Tucker, G. H. Davis, W. St. Quinoin, R. Barnett, R. Trotter, A. Lang, J. Murdock, J. Farish, W. H. Gordon, Lockhart Gordon, and A. N. Shaw. The secretary read the report, which stated that the committee had four training colleges in active operation, which there was every reason to hope would become centres from which Christian vernacular education would receive a new impulse. The efforts which have been made to raise the standard of secular education in the native heathen schools, and to introduce Christian instruction among them, have been carried forward with increasing zeal and vigour. These efforts had been cordially approved by the late Bishop of Calcutta, who shortly before his death examined into the operation of the schools. The committee were glad to state that the Government continued the grants in aid, which they regarded as evidence that the secular instruction imparted by the schools and the discipline maintained in them met with public approval. There were no less than seventy-two schools in operation, and there were upwards of 4,000 boys under the charge of the society's native teachers. The publication work of the society had been actively carried on, educational works having been issued in fourteen different languages at the rate of 1,200 copies a day—so that the society was, in fact, adding fully one-third to the supply of Christian literature in India. The receipts during the past year amounted to £6,345. The chairman, in his address to the meeting, called special attention to the purpose for which the society had been formed—namely, that of training native teachers in India. He remembered holding a conversation with the late Dr. Chalmers on the occasion of his resigning the ministry and becoming a University Professor, when that eminent man observed that he had hitherto been salting the meat, but that he was now manufacturing the salt. Such was the work that that society had undertaken to perform. They had been blamed for attempting so arduous a task, and had been asked what could they hope to accomplish among 200,000,000 of heathens in the Indian Empire. His answer was, much. By training the minds of the native youth they sent them forth among their own countrymen, and by degrees the errors and superstitions of heathenism were removed from their minds and the principles of Christianity became implanted in their hearts. The Hon. A. Kinnaird, in moving the adoption of the report, congratulated the meeting on the fact that the society was cordially sustained in its efforts by every kindred institution in the Empire. Four normal schools in Calcutta, Umritsur, Ahmednuggur, and Dindigul, under English training masters, had been opened, and had received the support of the missionaries of different societies and also of the Government. India possessed an immense number of indigenous schools conducted by heathen masters, who instructed their pupils in idolatry. The Bengal committee of the society having in 1863 obtained the heathen master's consent, Christian native teachers were attached to these schools, and the result at the close of the first year was that 1,200 native boys were capable of undergoing a satisfactory examination in Divine saving knowledge. Since then 78 schools, containing 4,000 boys, had been operated upon; these might be greatly increased, as it was calculated that there were 50,000 of these heathen schools in Bengal alone. The annual cost of maintaining this whole scheme was under £500. The Rev. E. Auriol, the Rev. Mr. Storror, and Mr. J. Murdock, from India, then addressed the meeting, and the proceedings closed by a vote of thanks to the chairman.

GREAT SOUTHERN OF INDIA RAILWAY.—

The ninth report, to be submitted at the annual meeting of the company, to be held at the London Tavern, states that upon an analysis of the accounts of the years 1866 and 1865 it will be found that, exclusive of the exceptional receipts derived from the carriage of railway materials, the gross traffic in 1866 amounted to £38,066. 0s. 6d., which, as compared with the receipts in 1865, £30,953. 1s. 2d., shows an increase in the general traffic on the line of £7,112. 19s. 4d., equal to 23 per cent. This increase would have been augmented by the reduction in the consumption of fuel per mile run from 40.5 lbs. in 1865 to 30.6 lbs. in 1866, had it not been for the enhanced cost of coal in the latter year, mainly attributable to the high rates of freight which have lately prevailed. Although the Government works on the canal between Vardarnum and Negapatam have not made progress, the directors have satisfaction in referring to the report of the agent on this subject, from which it appears that contracts for the completion of the canal have recently been made, so that an expansion of the traffic in salt, depending so much upon the facilities to be afforded by this means of conveyance, may be reasonably anticipated. The directors regret that no progress has as yet been made in providing the roads, acknowledged to be necessary as feeders to the different stations on the line. The Government has, however, called for information on the subject, and it will be satisfactory should the directors be enabled to announce the attainment of an object of such vital importance to the full development of the traffic. The attention of the board having been called to the small returns derived from the second-class passenger traffic—which, during the year 1866, yielded only 1 per cent. of the total number carried, and contributed only 3 per cent. to the gross amount of the passenger receipts—the directors have, with the sanction of the Government, and as an experimental measure, confined the classes to two. This alteration, which came into operation on the 1st March last, will, it is expected, have the double effect of reducing the expenditure and adding to the receipts. Thirteen ships, conveying 15,000 tons of stores and permanent way materials, have been despatched during the year. One casualty only has been reported; this is of a partial nature, and fully protected by policy of insurance. The line from Trichinopoly to Caroor (47½ miles) was opened for traffic on the 3rd December last, and the Engineer-in-Chief now expects that the junction with the Madras Railway at Erode will be effected by September next. A comparative statement of the receipts and expenditure during the years 1865 and 1866 shows that the working expenses have been reduced from 49.52 to 45.82 per cent. of the revenue, a result which the directors consider satisfactory. The net receipts in 1865 amounted to £17,784. 18s. 9d., and those of 1866 to £24,694. 3s. 11d., exhibiting an increase of £6,909. 5s. 2d., or 39 per cent. The Secretary of State having recently authorised the company to raise an additional sum of £200,000 by the issue of shares, guaranteed 5 per cent., for the purpose of completing the extension to Erode, an offer will be made to the shareholders of their rateable proportions when the issue is made. Captain Johnston retires from the direction by rotation, and offers himself for re-election. Mr. Nelson, one of the auditors, also retires, and offers himself for re-election.

ARRIVAL OF TROOPS FROM INDIA.—Messrs. T. and W. Smith's freight transport ship St. Lawrence, Captain Wilcocks, from Calcutta January 22, and St. Helena March 16, with the left wing of the 98th Regiment on board, arrived off Plymouth on Wednesday morning, and received orders to proceed on to Portsmouth, to land the troops there. The troops consist of Major Grantham (commanding), Capt. Swinford and Heathcote, Lieuts. Gordon, Callan, and Hyslop, Ensigns Franklyn and McBride, Assistant-surgeon Beatty, 161 non-commissioned officers, rank and file; also 10 women and 9 children. The St. Lawrence has also 40 first-class passengers, and a large general cargo for London. The Winchester left St. Helena with the right wing of the 98th Regiment on March 15. The St. Lawrence passed her on the line.

MESSRS. WM. H. ALLEN AND CO., 13, WATERLOO-PLACE, LONDON.

* * In ordering from this List, please state the Number, first word of Title, and Price.

141. KHIRAD AFROZ.—"The Illuminator of the Understanding," being an Urdu translation of the Persian "Iyyari Danish" (v. No. 46), which work is itself a simplified version of the "Anwari Suhail," as we have already stated (v. No. 46). This Urdu version was published in Calcutta in A.D. 1817, under the superintendence of T. Roebuck, Esq., assisted by a staff of Munshis. The present copy belonged to Dr. Gilchrist, and is in a perfect state of preservation, written on fine Indian paper in Gilchrist's style of the Ta'lik character, as applied to the Hindustani. Large 4to., pp. 894, ll. 13. £3. 3s.

142. KASHFU-L-FUNUN.—"Investigations of the Sciences," a well-known Arabic Bibliographical Dictionary, by HAJJI KHALFA. It formed the groundwork of D'Herbelot's French work on the same subject, entitled "Bibliothèque Orientale." The MS. is slightly wormed, written on fine Indian paper. Small folio, pp. 1298, ll. 15. £2. 12s. 6d.

143. BAITAL PACHISI.—"The Twenty-five Tales of a Demon." This is a well-known work but very rarely met with in the Ta'lik character as is here the case. It has been repeatedly printed, both in India and this country, in the Devanagari character. This copy is in the most perfect state of preservation, written on fine paper, in Gilchrist's reformed Ta'lik character. Folio, pp. 168, ll. 15. £2. 2s.

144. LUBBU-L-TAWARIKH.—"The Cream of Histories." This is a highly esteemed condensation of Asiatic History, by YAHYA BIN 'ABDU-L-LATIF, of Kazwin, who composed it about A.D. 1541, in the reign of Shah Tahmasp, of the Sufi Dynasty of Persia. It has been translated into Latin by MM. GAULMIN and GALLAND. This copy is in a state of perfect preservation, written in a beautiful character, on fine straw-coloured paper, with neatly ruled margins. On the outside margins are numerous notes and observations illustrative of the text, containing also notices of the decease of eminent men who flourished in each reign. 4to. pp. 310, ll. 17. £3. 3s.

146. FARHANGI GULISTAN.—"An Explanation of the Words and Passages occurring in Sa'di's Gulistan." The work consists of five sections. 1. A Literal Persian Translation of all passages from the Kur'an. 2. An Explanation of Traditions concerning Muhammad. 3. On the Sayings of the Chief Shaikhs of Islam. 4. Explanations of Proverbs and Quotations from Arabian Poets. 5. An Explanation of all Arabic Words occurring in the Work. The MS. is in good preservation, written in a fine Ta'lik character, on good glazed paper. Large 8vo., pp. 106, ll. 9. £1. 11s. 6d.

149. RAMAYAN.—A Persian translation and abridgment of the Great Sanskrit Epic Poems of Valmiki, entitled "The Ramayana." 150. FARHANGI MASNAVI.—"An ample explanation of all the difficult words and phrases occurring in the Mystical Poem of Jalalu-l-Din Rumi, entitled "The Masnavi." There are at least a dozen works of this kind explanatory of the Masnavi, but the name of the author of the present work has not been ascertained, as the first few pages are rendered illegible from the effects of damp. In all other respects the work is in thorough preservation, written in a very fair Ta'lik character, on good glazed Indian paper. 8vo., pp. 457, ll. 24. £2. 2s.

153. CHAR SHARBAT.—"Four Draughts." A work on Persian Grammar, Prosody, and Rhetoric, concluding with a Glossary of Turki words. It was composed by MIR SAYYID MUHAMMAD of Lakhnau, about A.D. 1802. The author's name has not been ascertained. The MS. has been slightly exposed to damp, but the text is quite legible, with the exception of the rubrics, which being in red ink have almost faded away. Large 8vo., pp. 140, ll. 19. 16s. 6d.

155. MAJMA'U-L-GHARA'IB.—"A Collection of Wonderful Things." This appears to be an abridgment of a very large and celebrated work on the same subject, entitled "Aja'ibu-l-Makhlu'at," or "Marvels of the Creation." The MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, well written in the Ta'lik character, on strong glazed paper, with ruled margin. 8vo., pp. 231, ll. 15. £1. 1s.

This tale, as stated in the last page of the work, was originally composed in Sanskrit, and thence translated into Persian by SHAIKH MUHAMMAD WARRA.—The scene of the tale is laid in Rum, but whether it be the Byzantine Empire or Modern Turkey, I cannot say. The work is in a perfect state of preservation, in the original Oriental binding, written on good paper, in a very clear Ta'lik character. Large 8vo., pp. 212, ll. 17. £1. 1s.

157. KISSA'E HATIM TA'I.—"The Adventures of Hatim Ta'i." This is a very fair copy of No. 117, already mentioned. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written on very good glazed paper, in a very distinct Ta'lik character. Large 8vo., pp. 276, ll. 14. £1. 11s. 6d.

159. YUSUF WA ZULAIKHA.—"The Loves of Yusuf and Zulaikha," a romantic Masnavi in imitation of Nizami and others, by NAZIM of Herat, composed about A.D. 1651. The MS. is in perfect preservation, written in a fine Ta'lik character, on good glazed paper, with margins neatly ruled. Transcribed in the fifteenth year of the reign of Muhammad Shah, about A.D. 1742. 8vo., pp. 848, ll. 15. £2. 2s.

160. KISSA'E SHARIFI MUSA.—"The History of Moses, the Jewish Legislator, and that of the Jews under him," by the learned MULLA MU'INU-D-DIN AL 'AI'Z, of Herat. It describes minutely the origin of the Jews, their sufferings in Egypt, their wanderings in the wilderness, their frequent rebellions and punishments, with a full detail of the miracles performed by Moses, and the drowning of the Egyptians in the Red Sea. The work is in the most perfect state of preservation, written on very fine paper in a beautiful Ta'lik character. Transcribed in A.D. 1818 for Major (name unintelligible). Large 8vo., pp. 604, ll. 17. £3. 8s.

161. BAHARI DANISH.—"The Spring of Knowledge." This is a very good serviceable copy of what we have already repeatedly described. It is in a state of perfect preservation, written on good Indian paper in a very distinct Ta'lik character, with numerous notes and explanations of the more difficult words and phrases employed by the learned author. Small folio, pp. 500, ll. 17. £2. 2s.

162. BURHANI KATI'.—This volume and the next together form a complete copy of the best Persian Dictionary extant. It is explained in Persian, with a short Grammar prefixed; to which is added an Appendix. According to Dr. Lumsden this Dictionary, which is alphabetically arranged according to the system of European Lexicons, comprises the whole of the words, phrases, and metaphors occurring in other works of the kind that may have preceded it, together with many words and terms from the Greek, Syriac, Arabic, Turkish, and other languages. It is at once the most copious and the most easily consulted of all the Persian Lexicons at this time extant; and it has always been considered as a standard work which every Persian scholar ought to possess. This first volume contains in alphabetical order all the words up to sitan in the letter sin. It is in a fair state of preservation, strongly bound in the Oriental binding, and written in a very fair and legible Shikasta character. Small folio, pp. 577, ll. 21. (With 163.)

163. BURHANI KATI'.—This is the second volume of the preceding work, containing all the words from sitan to the end of the alphabet. It is written uniform with Vol. I., and the two were evidently intended originally to be bound together. The author was MUHAMMAD HUSAIN BURHAN, who composed it about A.D. 1651, and dedicated it to Kutb Shah, of the Deccan. Vol. I. contains pp. 577; Vol. II. pp. 577. Total number of pages 1154, ll. varying from 21 to 35. £3. 3s.

164. GULISTANI SA'DI.—This is a beautiful copy of a well-known work which we have already repeatedly noticed. It is in a perfect state of preservation, written on fine glazed paper in an exquisite Ta'lik character. The margins abound with notes and explanations of the more obscure passages. Large 8vo., pp. 223, ll. 13. £2. 2s.

165. DABISTAN.—"School of Manners." This is the first volume of a well-known work, giving an account of twelve different forms of religious belief that prevailed throughout the world previous to the author's time. The MS. is in a perfect state of preservation, written on a strong glazed paper, in a plain legible Ta'lik character. Transcribed in A.D. 1786. (With 166.)

166. DABISTAN.—This is the second volume of the preceding work. The two volumes were originally intended to form one, as they are both written by the same hand in exactly the same style. The whole work was translated into English in 1844 for the Oriental Translation Fund, in three volumes 8vo., by the joint labours of the late Professor D. SHEA, of Haileybury College, and Captain A. TROYER. The two volumes, small folio, contain in all pp. 745, ll. 15. £2. 12s. 6d.

167. MI'AT AWAMIL, ETC..—This MS. contains five treatises on Arabic Grammar, commencing with the well-known work called the "Mi'at 'Awamil" or "Mi'at 'Amil," which is followed by another well-known work, entitled the "Kafiyah," also three other treatises, the names of which have not been ascertained. The MS. is in the most perfect state of preservation, beautifully written in a fine Ta'lik character, on polished Indian paper, with clear and spacious margins. Large 8vo., pp. 239, ll. 9. £2. 2s.

TEXTILE MANUFACTURES and COSTUMES of the PEOPLE of INDIA

BY J. FORBES WATSON, M.A., M.D., F.R.A.S.,

Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial 4to, morocco back, cloth, with numerous Coloured Photographs. £3. 5s.

This work—by affording a Key to the Fashions of the People, and to the Cotton, Silk, and Wool Textiles in actual use in India—is of special interest to Manufacturers, Merchants, and Agents; as also to the student and lover of ornamental art.

"If the manufacturer studies this book carefully he may add thousands a year to his profits, and there are not five books in the world of which that could be said. Altogether this book is thoroughly creditable to Dr. Forbes Watson's industry and acumen, and to the liberality of the India-office."—Spectator, Jan. 5, 1867.

"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author, Dr. J. Forbes Watson, is conclusive evidence of his being the right man in the right place. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce. We ought to state that the Secretary of State for India not only deserves the highest praise for having had this work prepared and distributed, but likewise for having allowed a publisher to use the type and photographic plates so as to be able to produce a certain number of copies for sale. In no other way could copies of this unique and costly volume have been offered to the public at a reasonable price."—Morning Post, Jan. 3, 1867.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

THE Bombay Mail brings us our usual files of papers, from Calcutta to the 8th, Madras to the 6th, and Bombay to the 13th of April.

The agitation against the Licence Tax was still the talk of Calcutta, and it was expected to extend to the other Presidency towns. Meanwhile Mr. Massey has issued three notifications of exemption. The Presidency towns, as he promised when the Bill was passed, have been exempted to the extent of the licence tax the inhabitants might already pay under the municipal system. Next, the whole of the Central Provinces have been exempted from the operation of the Licence Tax Act, No. XXI. of 1867, because a few weeks before it was passed they were saddled with a licence tax peculiar to themselves, called the Pandhari Tax; this began at a limit of income of Rs. 75 per annum, and was leviable upon all classes of the community, except the agriculturists. The tax is to be assessed at 2 per cent. of income, provided no one pays more than 500 rupees per annum under its operation. "Of course," says the Englishman, "with such a tax just imposed in the Central Provinces, they could not be expected to contribute to the licence tax, but it is strange Mr. Massey did not remember to mention this Pandhari tax when introducing the larger measure. The third exemption extends to clerks and servants the privilege enjoyed by the subordinate Civil Service of non-payment on incomes less than Rs. 1,000 per annum. This last concession, however, will not stop agitation, as it will make the Bill more unpalatable than ever."

In reference to the meeting upon the subject the Friend of India says:—"The two barristers indulged in general invective against the Government of India, which was not only not required by the object of the meeting, but will go far to defeat its end. After the usual ungrammatical rhapsody, Mr. A. T. T. Peterson, who has sat on the bench of the High Court, and is a member of the Bengal Council, was guilty of the indecency of attacking the Supreme Legislative Council in terms which went far beyond the licence of party warfare as conducted by English gentlemen, at least. It is a pity that all the speakers did not imitate the grave, and therefore weighty, remarks of Mr. Bullen Smith. Fortunately, the memorial in no sense represents the extravagance or coarseness of yesterday, and may therefore have its due weight with the Secretary of State."

The Friend contradicts the story about Sir John Lawrence's retirement at the end of the year. It is certain, it seems, that he will not resign the Viceroyalty until he has completed his five years in January, 1869. In the meanwhile he is not prohibited from visiting Simla, as is evidenced by his intended departure from that place, which was fixed for some time between the 15th and 20th of April. The delay was due to the non-appearance of the Famine Commissioner's Report, which, however, was nearly ready.

Sir W. Mansfield had already left the capital for the Hills. Many of the higher officers were also leaving; and some of those attached to the Bengal Government had taken flight to Darjeeling.

Sir Cecil Beadon was expected to make over his Lieutenant-Governorship to Mr. Grey on the 18th inst., after which he was to visit some estates belonging to one of his sons at Seetapore in Oude, and finally embark for England some time in May. The attempts to get up addresses to him have failed, but a demonstration was at last made in his favour on the part of a portion of the members of the Calcutta Croquet Club!

The members of the Medical Service, at least in Bengal, have, it is said, determined to appeal to Parliament. They will scarcely, however, be in time to do much this Session.

It is stated that on the retirement of the Hon. Mr. Justice Trevor from the High Court of Calcutta he will be succeeded by the Hon. C. P. Hobhouse.

Dr. Milman has been installed Bishop of Calcutta.

The East India Railway has been completed to within eighteen miles of Jubbulpore.

The latest news from Burmah states that the King has lately exterminated the Bomooh family, a branch of the royal house, on the accusation of having entered into treasonable engagements with the Shans. His position is, however, somewhat critical, as it is said that the Mynegoon Mengtha has raised an army of 10,000 Shans, and is marching on the capital. Nor is this all; the Padyne Mengtha, the son of the late War Prince, has managed to effect his escape, and is said to be busy in the districts north and west of Mandalay, raising a force to avenge the murder of his father and the indignities put upon himself. Lastly, it is said that the King declined to fulfil his existing engagements with the British, or to enter into any new arrangement with them, as he is anxious to secure the countenance and protection of France.

"There is undoubtedly some prospect," says the Friend of India, "that the Agra High Court will be vested with the supervision of all the courts in Oudh except those which have to hear temporary settlement suits. The change will be as beneficial to Oudh as the absorption of the Sudder Court is proving to the North-Western Provinces. Beyond the natural dislike of Mr. Justice Pearson, as the leading judge of the Sudder Court, to the present Chief Justice, who is most courteous and considerate, we have ascertained that there is no ground for the statement of a collision between Sir Walter Morgan and his colleagues. The Court is about to lose Justices Ross and Edwards. The latter has done good service to the cause of Indian reform in his day, both as an official and a writer. We believe that he will occupy his leisure in England in the composition of a work which is a desideratum in Anglo-Indian literature—the life of his distinguished relative, Charles Grant."

The Government of India has commenced publishing quarterly returns of the revenue and expenditure of the empire. The statement just published brings the accounts down to October 31, 1866.

The Governor-General has authorised the immediate payment of the first instalment of the Banda and Kirwee prize money, at the rate of £50 a share.

The latest news from Cabul received in Calcutta was a rumour that Abdoolrahman Khan, son of Afzul Khan, the successful rival of Ameer Shere Ally, has shown a disposition to quarrel with his uncle, Azeem Khan, the man who placed his father on the throne. Afzul Khan supports his son to a certain extent, as he wishes Azeem Khan to accept the Governorship of Candahar. But, while disunion appears to threaten the camp of his enemies, Ameer Shere Ally himself is busy gathering a force composed of the wild and warlike tribes of the Herat district; and, if it be true that Afzul Khan is about to deprive himself of the services of his abler brother, the chances in favour of the Ameer are very largely increased.

At Madras the affair of the Banks was still foremost in the public mind. The final decision of the shareholders had not been arrived at when the papers left; but it was known by telegraph in Bombay, before the departure of the mail, that the offer of amalgamation had been rejected.

Bombay was in an interesting flutter owing to the expected arrival at that Presidency of the Galatea with the Duke of Edinburgh on board. It has been frequently lamented among our countrymen in India that no British Duke has ever set foot upon her shores. The enthusiasm in the case of the Royal Prince may be therefore imagined. It was said that instructions had been sent to the Government to organise a grand hunting expedition into the interior for the benefit of his Royal Highness.

A telegram had been received in Bombay from the Bank of Bengal agreeing to the amalgamation on the modified terms proposed by the directors of the Bombay Bank, by which shareholders in the latter will be placed more on an equality with the Bengal shareholders than was originally intended. The terms of agreement are considered settled as far as the directors of the two institutions are concerned.

The "Old Financial" is to be wound up voluntarily, and Mr. John Smith, the manager, has been appointed sole liquidator, at a remuneration of 2½ per cent. Some of the shareholders, considering this amount excessive, have appealed to the High Court, and obtained a rule nisi calling upon Mr. Smith to show cause why the resolution should not be rescinded. An unsuccessful attempt has been made to establish a new exchange bank in Bombay on the foundation of the Royal and Presidency Banks.

The latest public date received at Bombay from Great Britain by the Indo-European Telegraph was April 6, but private telegrams have come to hand of the 7th and 8th. The Turkish lines are said to be working well, but messages are subject to a detention of twelve hours for transmission along the interrupted portion of the line.

Business in Bombay had been almost entirely suspended owing to telegrams of April 8th reporting great uncertainty regarding Continental affairs, and apprehensions of a rupture between France and Prussia.

The Governor of Bombay and the Commander-in-Chief were both at Mahableshwar.

It is believed that the command of the Sind division of the Bombay Army, vacant by the death of Major-general Heath, will be conferred upon General Malcolm.

The Guicowar of Baroda is having a chadar, or covering, made for the Kaaba, or celebrated Black Stone, at Mecca. The chadar is lavishly ornamented with precious stones, and has already cost about £200,000.

Sir George Yule had a farewell audience of the Nizam of Hyderabad, and was entertained at a farewell dinner by the Nizam's Minister, before leaving for Central India.

The next arrival from India will be the Calcutta mail, which may be expected in London on the 15th inst.

We understand that the following official changes have been determined on at the India office. The Marine and Public Departments of the Secretariat will be both abolished, and the business transferred to other departments. Mr. J. C. Mason, Secretary of the Marine and Transport Department, after a long and active service of about half a century, has been granted a pension. Mr. E. D. Bourdillon, Secretary of the Public Educational and Ecclesiastical Department, whose health has been latterly failing, is also to receive a pension, as well as the following officials, viz., Hon. Geraldin Dillon, Assistant Secretary of the Marine Department, Mr. Josceline Courtney, Assistant Secretary in the Judicial Department, and Mr. Henry C. Deedes, Assistant Secretary in the Public Educational and Ecclesiastical Department.

It has been announced that the extra fortnightly postal service between Sues and Bombay will be discontinued after the steamer which meets the mail leaving London on the 26th inst. Consequently, after the present month, unless Government comes forward to pay for the extra service required, our postal communication with India will revert to the unsatisfactory position it was in last year. The fact is, Bombay is the natural terminus for the postal arrangements between England and India, and the progress made in the communication by railway across the Peninsula has rendered an alteration in the service to Calcutta by steamer, via Galle, absolutely necessary. For instance, after the discontinuance of the Peninsular and Oriental Company's gratuitous line, there will be still four mails despatched by the company each month to India—two, via Bombay, on the 3rd and 18th, and two, via Galle, on the 10th and 26th. The latter mails do not take mails for Bombay, Kurrachee, &c.; those addressed to Calcutta are taken, but they are only delivered at their destination about the date that letters arrive which are posted a week later in England—i.e., by the mails via Bombay. It will even sometimes occur that letters posted by the mail of the 18th will arrive at Calcutta before those despatched on the 10th of the same month. The homeward communication from India to England will be similarly, if not still more affected. Thus, letters coming by the steamers from Calcutta will be, as a rule, invariably overtaken at Suez by those posted a week later at Calcutta, which come by railway across the Peninsula. Consequently facilities will be reduced practically to two letters per month, although four mails are despatched. We shall probably have something to say on this subject in our next number.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

TUESDAY, May 7, 1867.

COLONEL PHAYRE'S ADMINISTRATION IN BURMAH.

A REMARKABLE notification of the progress in British Burmah during the ten years' administration of Colonel Phayre has been published in the Gazette of India. It is remarkable in a double sense: as exhibiting an extraordinary degree of success on the one side and the barest form of acknowledgment on the other.

The records of progress are reduced to statistics, and from these it will be sufficient to take the essence, in the form of the increase which has marked the decade from 1854-55 to 1864-65. First, as to population. In the one year it was 12,52,555; in the other, 21,96,180; showing an increase of 9,43,625. Of these the persons paying the capitation tax amounted in the one year to 3,33,841; in the other to 4,73,537; showing an increase of 1,39,697. From the revenue accounts we find that in the one year there was a cultivated area of 10,75,374 acres; in the other, 16,41,403; being an increase of 5,66,029. The assessment was in the one year Rs. 19,94,013; in the other, Rs. 28,31,715; showing an increase of Rs. 8,37,702. The total revenue in the one year was Rs. 53,17,922; in the other, Rs. 1,03,00,620; showing an increase of Rs. 49,82,698.

Taking the principal heads, the increase shows the following percentage:—Paddy land paying revenue, 48 per cent.; garden, 75; miscellaneous, 152; total area of assessed cultivation, 52. The increase in land cultivation is 42 per cent.; in the capitation tax, 74; in the grand total of revenue, 93. Under the minor heads we find that the customs increased 149 per cent.; fisheries, 69; excise, 111; miscellaneous, 216. The trade returns show the value of grain exported to have increased 76 per cent.; that of timber, 427; other exports, 207; all imports, 83; tonnage, 94. The actual totals are as follows:—Exports in the one year, Rs. 2,32,41,866; in the other year, Rs. 4,42,24,832. Imports in the one year, Rs. 2,62,22,219; in the other, Rs. 4,81,25,559. Totals of exports and imports, Rs. 4,94,64,085 in the one year, and Rs. 9,23,50,391 in the other; the total increase in trade being 4,38,86,306.

These are indeed wonderful results, and are the best possible commentary upon the administration during the period under review. It is confidently asserted by our compatriots in the province that the people of the country generally desire annexation. We are accustomed to this kind of assertion; which has been made a too common excuse in other cases for putting the policy in force. But the contrast presented between Native and European rule in this Burmah may well account for the wish, which we believe to be real. It is, however, as is observed by the Englishman, "one of the peculiar features of Colonel Phayre's administration that it has exhausted every means to avoid precipitating such a contingency. More than once has the Chief Commissioner visited Mandalay, and more than once has he strenuously endeavoured to establish the mutual relations of the two countries on an equitable basis, in which the advantages of both sections of the people should be equally consulted. Even so late as the recent outbreak the action of Col. Phayre turned the scale in favour of the King. The followers of the Padyne Mengtha, under the best general in Burmah, were turned from their prey and dispersed by the report that Colonel Phayre had sent the King assistance, the report arising from his permitting the departure of the King's steamers from Rangoon, manned by a small body of European adventurers. The King has rejected all the opportunities afforded him, and has even visited his best friends with contumely."

We have described the above records as "remarkable." The description is adopted from the notification of the Local Government under which they appear in the Gazette. And this is nearly all that the Local Government says in their favour, the only observation made upon them being as follows:—

"These particulars attest the remarkable progress which British Burmah has made during the brief period of ten years, and his Excellency in Council desires to record his high sense of the ability of the administration under which so large a measure of prosperity has been attained by that portion of her Majesty's Indian Empire."

This is of course an acknowledgment; but it is an acknowledgment of the barest possible kind, and, after its endorsement from home, could not have been withheld from publication. That it is very inadequate to the requirements of the case must be evident when we remember the mode in which the Viceroy of India are accustomed to treat those whom they delight to honour when the time comes to say farewell. But it has been understood for some time past that Colonel Phayre was not in favour at Government House; and, if confirmation of the fact were needed, we have it here.

THE MADRAS BANK AND THE AMALGAMATION.

THE Bank of Madras has finally refused to join the amalgamation. The proposed conditions, as published before the meeting of shareholders at which the decision was arrived at, were these:—

1. That the Bank of Madras be taken over as it stands, assets and liabilities, on the simple guarantee of the bank itself.
2. That new capital to the extent of 44 lakhs be issued, at the rate of 25 per cent. premium, which would give a profit of 11 lakhs.
3. That these 11 lakhs be added to the reserve funds already in existence of 5 lakhs, and that the 16 lakhs be then handed over as the Bank of Madras contribution to the reserve fund of the new concern.
4. That in return for each share of the Bank of Madras, the shareholders be entitled to one share of the new Bank.

The opinions of the local press, doubtless representing those of the interest specially concerned, were sufficient to anticipate the result. Thus, the Madras Times says:—

The 2nd, 3rd, and 4th clauses of Mr. Dickson's offer group themselves naturally into one, and, combined, form the price offered to the Bank of Madras. To understand this aright it is necessary to bear in mind that the present shares in the Bank of Madras are worth about Rs. 1,650 each. The cost of the new ones intended to be issued is Rs. 1,250 each, so that two shares cost together Rs. 2,900, or on an average Rs. 1,450. In return for this a Bank of Bengal share is offered, which Mr. Dickson asserts is worth Rs. 2,000. Here again, no data are given to enable us to check Mr. Dickson's calculation, and it is only open to us to emulate in this instance his method of decided assertion, and to say we do not believe that the shares in the new bank are worth the price referred to.

The first of these conditions is reasonable enough, except that it does not seem to have entered into Mr. Dickson's mind the possibility of some captious Bank of Madras shareholders demanding who is to guarantee the assets of the Bank of Bengal? We dare say it is high treason to insinuate that the one may need as much guaranteeing as the other, but we have a duty to perform, and we must run the risk of offending even Mr. Dickson rather than not perform it. We are of opinion that when a partner is asked to join an existing concern his first duty is to satisfy himself that the books represent the real position of the firm or company. Mr. Dickson is good enough to say to the Bank of Madras, "Your books are probably all right, but to be secure you must promise to bear the risk of all that turns out wrong," and in this he is perfectly right. But surely, on the other hand, the Bank of Madras is equally right in saying, "We also believe in the correctness of your, i.e., the Bank of Bengal books, but just as a matter of form, you know, had you not better guarantee them?" To consent to amalgamation on any other terms would, we think, be the height of folly.

The Athenæum and Daily News says:— "Apart from the fact that we do not see why a perfectly solvent and profitable institution like the Bank of Madras should pay for admission into the proposed Imperial Bank, we are of opinion that the capital to be called up is so large as to render the earning of large dividends a problematic, and certainly a risky business."

There is something of local feeling evident in these expressions of opinion; and Madras is a very sensitive presidency, when in relation with her more conspicuous neighbours. But the financial objections are at least sound in so far as they are safe; and as banking cannot be carried on upon the principle of loving your neighbour as yourself, there seems very good reason for the Madras Bank being a little selfish in the matter. We publish a later extract in connection with the subject in another part of our paper.

THE STUDY OF ORIENTAL LANGUAGES.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—I have read with much pleasure some recent articles in your paper upon the study of Oriental Languages in connection with our military and civil administration in India. As this is a subject in which I feel a considerable interest, I trust you will allow me to offer a few remarks upon it through the medium of your columns. Having spent the greater part of my life in that country, in a private capacity, I have had every opportunity of impartially comparing the working of the present system of competition with that of the old régime, and I am compelled to state that the comparison is decidedly in favour of the latter.

The theory that more efficient public servants will be procured by open competition than by nomination and private interest is no doubt a sound one, but there are still many necessary disadvantages in such a system which appear when it is submitted to the test of working, and which can only be remedied individually as their inconveniences are subsequently felt. Such disadvantages, however, it behoves the Government to consider and provide against, and not to allow their confidence in the soundness of the theory to blind them to defects in its practical details. It is very true that under the old system of nomination men of ordinary capacity were frequently appointed to responsible public posts, to the exclusion of others of more brilliant talents; but it must be remembered that a person so nominated was trained from the earliest age, exclusively with a view to fit him for the position he was thus destined to occupy. This in itself was a great guarantee for efficiency in the majority of instances, whereas it may be fairly doubted whether a facility for mathematical investigation or an extensive acquaintance with Encyclopædies of English Literature does form the best tests for the qualifications of a magistrate or political official. Again, the old system was not by any means without brilliant examples to vindicate its efficacy, as such names as Sir William Jones and Dr. Gilchrist, or in our own times such men as Sir Henry Lawrence and the late Under Secretary of State for India, with many more whom I could mention, testify. However, we have our competitive examination system, and must make the best of it; but for Heaven's sake let us not shut our eyes to its abuses, and lay the flattering unction to our soul that we have made a reform and it is enough. One of the worst features in the present system is a disregard for the study of the vernacular languages of India, the only medium through which a right understanding between the natives and their rulers can ever be produced. The selected candidate is certainly required to pass an examination in the dialects of his Presidency before proceeding to India, but the examination is of such a nature that a mere superficial and parrot-like smattering is more often obtained than such a knowledge as will form the basis of subsequent accurate scholarship. If the language be Hindustani, for instance, he is told that he must display a competent acquaintance with the Singhasan Batteesee and the Akhlak i Hindee. His object, therefore, is to learn these books, not Hindustani, and how does he set about the task? I will tell you, Sir, what I have myself seen in the case of one or two young men whom I have met, and I fear it may be the same in many other instances. He goes to some cheap teacher, a superannuated missionary, it may be, or still worse, to some discharged Khidmetgar (a fact!), from whom he learns to read the characters with more or less fluency and with a vicious pronunciation that is amusingly embarrassing to an ear accustomed to the language of Indian gentlemen. Having made so much progress he proceeds to write down on the margin of his book such English equivalents as the knowledge and vocabulary of his instructor may be able to furnish him with. He gets gradually accustomed to the sight of the Hindustanee words, which, however, to his mind, are quite secondary to his own pencil comments, and by continuing this process until a few hours before the examination he is able to reproduce them, when required, to his own intense satisfaction and that of the examiners. This is repeated a few times until his departure for India shall give him an opportunity of selling the books that have given him so much trouble and bidding adieu to the study of Indian vernaculars altogether. Let us take, however, a more pleasing picture, and consider the case of a selected candidate with a taste for philological studies and a desire to distinguish himself in the examinations. He goes to a respectable and experienced teacher, who wishes to make of his promising pupil a good Orientalist, and to ground him thoroughly in the rudiments of the language. He makes a fair start, and both master and pupil for a time are mutually content, but the approach of the examination warns them that they must "begin their Akhlak, &c." Well, this is done, and the pupil, on entering the examination-room, finds that his knowledge of the language counts for almost nothing, and that he is only just on a footing with those who have merely "crammed up" the aforesaid books. This is disappointment enough, but a worse awaits him on his arrival in India. He uses naturally some of the idioms that occur in the books he has been compelled to study, and is disgusted to find that he might (to quote a facetious English novelist) "almost as well have spoken the rural dialect of a Chinese district turned upside down."

This is not, however, a subject for jesting; it is one of very serious import, both to the selected candidate himself and to the public at large. The fact is that the books I have mentioned, and which have been selected by the Civil Service Commissioners, are worse than useless. They are bad translations from the Sanscrit, and the language of them is inelegant, ungrammatical, and obsolete, in addition to all which the only copies procurable are full of the grossest misprints. How, under such circumstances, is a student to acquire a perfect knowledge of the language, even if he be not deterred and discouraged at the outset of his studies? The "Prem Sagar" and "Bagho Bahar," which have been displaced by the two of which I am speaking, are not open to the same objections, and of both of these works correct and carefully-edited copies may be obtained, but the restoration of these to their place as test books would not alone obviate the evil.

A radical change is required in the character of the examination if it is to serve as a test of the candidate's qualifications, or to fit him for the performance of his official duties in India. The examination should form a test of the progress made in the language commensurate with the time that has been given for studying it, and particular attention should be paid to those branches which more immediately affect the candidate's future position. In the first examination he should be required to show a fair and accurate knowledge of the grammar and pronunciation, as well as some facility in composition and ordinary conversation. For the subsequent examinations a greater degree of fluency in conversation might be expected, and a more profound acquaintance with the structure and idiom of the language, but the point most insisted on should be facility in deciphering MSS., both in the Shikasta and Talik characters. This, whilst it involves a knowledge of the grammar and the possession of an extensive vocabulary, is a most useful preparation for the reading of Urrees and legal documents, which will form part of the selected candidate's daily occupations when he enters upon his judicial duties in India.

As a preparation for such an examination as that which I propose, I would recommend the study of native newspapers in preference to any course of reading from books alone. These newspapers, such as the Oudh Akbar of Lucknow, and the Akbar Alam of Agra, are written in elegant and correct Hindustani, such as is spoken by the middle and higher classes of natives throughout India; they are easily procurable, either direct from the proprietors or through any Indian booksellers, and they have the advantage of being encumbered by none of the technical difficulties or unusual idioms which must necessarily enter into the composition of any book, and treating as they do of the subjects of ordinary life, will furnish the student with more useful expressions in one page than he would meet with in the whole of the Akhlak i Hindee, or even in the "Bagho Bahar" itself. Such a system of examination would not only produce Oriental scholars, but it would remove the numerous impostors who beset the unwary student, as none but a thoroughly competent and well-educated native would be able to impart the necessary instruction.

I can only account for the apathy of the executive administration of India with regard to this important matter of the study of the vernaculars, by referring it to some Quixotic notion of ultimately making English the current language of the country. It is true, to our shame, that there are now more natives in India able to express themselves intelligibly and correctly in English than Englishmen who can speak Hindustani; but this is by no means a ground for inferring that English can ever be made to supplant the native languages. "Why should it not as well as the Persian or the mixed Urdu dialect?" asks the student of Indian history. The answer is easy; Persian was almost a mother tongue to every Indian, its idioms and vocabulary were derived from the same source, and it offered an easily attainable common medium of communication between the various peoples of the great Peninsula. The wishes of the Mohammedan conquerors were thus seconded and enforced by the requirements of the vanquished nations, and the result was that Persian became the language of polite society, and the masses sought for and found an equally useful dialect in the Rekhta or lingua franca, which was the parent of the modern noble and expressive Urdu. But English has no such affinity or relationship to recommend it, the very mukhraj, the utterance of the sounds is different, and the mode of expressing the thoughts is diametrically opposed to that of the Oriental tongues; there can, therefore, be but small hope of ever doing more than to encourage the study of the English literature and language amongst members of the higher native communities. If, then, we cannot teach Indians our language it follows that we must either compel our officials to learn theirs, or be content to remain as rulers amongst subjects who neither understand nor sympathise with our efforts for their improvement.

The remedy is in our own hands; if Government will only recognise and appreciate the immense importance of Oriental studies, and will only devise such means as shall ensure a competent knowledge on the part of officials destined for the East, I, with many others, shall no longer remain, yours, &c.,

LAUDATOR TEMPORUM ACTURUM.

SIR CECIL BEADON has had the satisfaction at last of being entertained at a public banquet, prior to his resignation of the office of Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. His hosts, on the occasion we refer to, were not, as some might imagine, the representatives of either the Civil and Military Services, the Professions, or Commerce, but were the members (and a limited number of the same) of the Calcutta Croquet Club! Heu tempora, Heu mores. To think that a departing Governor should have the old shoe cast after him by the disciples of Mayne Reid and Cassiobury Croquet, instead of by the Chamber of Commerce or the Bethune Society! And, strange to say, the baleful influence which has manifested itself in all Sir Cecil's undertakings has been displayed again with regard to this club, which, under his fostering care, flourished for one year at Belvidere, and then died out, uncared for and unwept. But seriously who are the members of the Calcutta Croquet Club who, without the consent of the other members (if the club does exist), perpetrated this piece of toadyism? Sir Cecil Beadon could not well refuse their invitation, but this must have been the bitterest of the many bitter cups that he has had to drink.—Pioneer.

BENGAL.

THE FINANCIAL DILEMMA.

The necessary result of the condemnation of Mr. Massey's tax by all India, which has found so admirable an expression in the Calcutta memorial to the Secretary of State, is that something must be done. We do not expect that of himself Sir Stafford Northcote will advise her Majesty to do anything. If the Government of India adheres to every detail of the License Act the only question before the Home Council will be, whether that Act is to be vetoed or not. In the face of a crying necessity not only to meet a temporary deficit but to add a permanent source of revenue to the ways and means of each year, there can be no doubt of Sir Stafford Northcote's decision. He must uphold the Act. Then the new tax is not likely to seem to the English public at all so iniquitous as the fervent orators of the Town-hall represented it to be, and as it undoubtedly is in the inequality of its incidence. The classes affected pay absolutely nothing to the Imperial revenue beyond a trifle contributed to the customs and stamps duties in common with the millions of the poor who pay the land-tax besides. They have declared themselves willing to be taxed proportionately with others. The licence duties imposed are, to all but the lower grades, trifling compared with the old income-tax, and if paid monthly or quarterly, instead of yearly, as the Financial Department with its usual blundering demands, the public would congratulate themselves. The Secretary of State is likely to set the unequal incidence of the impost against its lightness, and to tell the non-landed classes of India to be thankful that they are not taxed like those of England.

But it would not be wise for the Government of India to adhere to every detail of the obnoxious measure. No one knows better than its members how hastily the tax was concocted, and how rapidly it was passed. Only one word fully expresses its character—it is cutch. Here is a whole people willing to submit to taxation, and we cannot believe that Government will be restrained from meeting their wishes. No objections, however scientific, can prevail against a tax of which it may be truly asserted that the payers prefer it to all others. Even octroi duties, even the severe salt tax, may be justified by this best of all reasons. The Government of India cannot refuse to respond to the reiterated statement, which made the Calcutta Town-hall ring again, of the willingness of all to be taxed if the measure is only skilfully conceived and justly applied. The Government of India wants money for the most pressing public purposes, and it ought to show itself indifferent how the amount is raised if the inevitable dissatisfaction of men who are called to pay taxes is reduced to a minimum. For it can never forget that what would be mere party or passing opposition at home may be the source of political danger here. All India says it will not have Mr. Massey's tax, but it is willing to pay another. Surely Mr. Massey has both magnanimity and statesmanship enough to adapt his measure to such a demand. To persevere with the present Act would be as dangerous as imbecile. To try it even for a year, after all the experience of the income-tax for five years, would be needlessly to risk the contentment of the empire, to prevent the success of future schemes of taxation, and to make it impossible to raise the irrigation and barrack loans at a good rate. The interests of the Government are identical with those of the public whom they serve.

There are only two possible courses before the Government of India—(1) to improve the License Act, so as to meet the unanimous objections brought against it, or (2) to adopt some other tax at once. The former course is hardly possible, and is not likely to give satisfaction. Either Government not only could easily do, but is bound to do, because it has publicly departed from Mr. Massey's pledge that the license-tax was of a temporary character. In its reply to the Trades Association, Government very wisely expresses its determination "that a permanent addition to the resources of the empire is necessary for the maintenance of the public credit." Will an improved license-tax be such an addition? The improvement would consist of exempting all incomes under Rs. 500, or, if going so low as Rs. 300, of reducing the tax to Rs. 2 a year. On the other side, the grades would have to go higher, so as to catch the very wealthiest proportionally. Had Mr. Massey adhered to his original limit of incomes of Rs. 10,000 a year, the income-tax returns show that no less than 826 persons in Bengal and 543 in Calcutta with incomes between Rs. 10,000 and Rs. 50,000; 60 persons in Bengal and 55 in Calcutta with incomes from Rs. 50,000 to Rs. 100,000; and 27 persons in Bengal to 39 in Calcutta with incomes above a lakh of rupees would have escaped with the same payment as the clerk on Rs. 834 a month. Apply this to Bombay, the North-Western Provinces, and the rest of India. It is useless for a Government to fight a sentiment so unanimous as that which such inequalities as these create. Government might then add two higher grades, and equalise the rates on public companies in a similar manner, and try the tax for a year. But this would not go far to lessen the indignation of the public, for it would not catch every fundholder and landholder. Many of the holders of vested or realised wealth would still be exempt from burdens borne by the fluctuating salaries of professional men. And the measure would be less of a licence-tax—more an irritating misnomer than ever.

There remains, then, the other horn of the dilemma—the substitution of another tax for that which has unfortunately become law so rapidly. The speakers at the Town-hall fell back on that recommendation which we believe to be far more iniquitous and dangerous than Mr. Massey's impost and increase of the salt tax. Mr. Bullen Smith declared that no arguments had ever been advanced to prove the severity of its incidence on the lower classes. If these classes were heard for themselves we feel assured that the existing duty would be at once reduced. So unscientific, so opposed to all justice, is a tax on such a necessary of life as salt that more than once Parliament has been with difficulty prevented from ordering its abolition altogether. So late as 1864 a distinguished member of Parliament was only prevented from making a motion in the House to this effect by the remonstrances of Anglo-Indians in London, of whom the present writer was one, and by the conviction that Sir John Lawrence would never tolerate an increase of the wrong. The labouring classes for 160 miles around Calcutta may have improved in comfort, but their condition generally all over India was well described by the people of a Midnapore village which Mr. Herschel visited as "always miserable." Medical men assert that the prevalence of cutaneous disease, and the frightful ravages of epidemics among the cattle, are due to the dearthness of salt. We shall never be driven out of India till the masses rise, and if we wish to hasten that event we will increase the salt duty at a time when the high price of rice has created general discontent and famine sweeps off its half million every decade. Could any facts be more eloquent than these two? Rajpootana salt, which supplies all North West and Central India, costs at Sambhur lake 1½d. a maund, and is sold to the labourer with wife and children in Agra, not many miles off, at half a sovereign. Again the last Oudh administration report records in dry figures that 3,001 persons were seized for smuggling 155 maunds of salt and 1,950 were published in 1865-66. This small quantity, compared with the number of persons, shows, says Mr. Strachey, that the action of the excise officers is directed against "the most petty domestic manufacture." What fact could be more disgraceful to the salt monopoly than this, that since we imposed it on Oudh its officers confess that the consumption of a necessary of life for man and beast, which abounds at their doors and should be as free as the rains of heaven, has decreased 3½ lakhs of maunds! Mr. Strachey has prepared a paper, which should be published, showing why a succession duty in India would be a mistake.

Still, if every class was fairly taxed and if there were no other means of increasing the revenue, four annas a maund might be added to the salt duty and a succession tax might be tried. But what is the fact? The non-landed classes pay no appreciable taxes whatever. As was so often said in the Town-hall, they are all willing to pay what is just and necessary. We would not burden the poor man, whether he be a baboo on twenty rupees a month or a labourer on five, so long as the capitalist, the professional man and the trader go free. And there is a necessity. No one who denies that understands the rudiments of Indian finance. We have returned to the era of normal deficits, which Mr. Wilson came out to remove, thanks to Sir C. Trevelyan's obstinacy. Expenditure, unavoidable and just, increases faster than revenue. The interest on new loans has to be met. The subordinate officials have to be improved in pay. Such great undertakings as the completion of each trunk railway from coast to coast have to be carried out under guarantee. And above all a cure has slowly but effectually to be provided for the precarious character of the opium revenue. Nothing will do this but a graduated income-tax, so low at first as to be felt little more than the obnoxious license-tax, but so elastic as to be capable of immediate increase the moment that a crisis demands abnormal expenditure. It is the least unfair of all direct taxes, for it affects each man proportionally, and it will catch the zemindar in permanently settled districts as well as the fundholder, without adding to the already heavy burdens on land. Evasion has been great, no doubt, but that was because of the inquisitorial character of the tax. Let all who have no fixed or certain incomes be graded according to the five years' experience of the old tax, or show their books. Each year the working of the tax would be improved till it became as smooth and yielded as fairly as even its predecessor did in Calcutta, Tirhoot, and Bombay. Sir John Lawrence, with a true instinct, was opposed to the abolition of the former income tax. The Government of India wishes a "permanent" addition to the revenue. Let it make up its mind to this so long as people are as willing to bear it as the Town-hall orators represented, and prudently withdraw an impost which possesses none of the equal incidence of rate on incomes and all the objections of class taxation.

Since writing the above we have received an able letter on the subject. Our correspondent chooses the first course we have discussed; his objections to the English income-tax do not apply to one under which, with uncertain incomes fairly graduated, there would be no inquisition, or to one on the non-landed classes and the permanent settlement zemindars who pay no appreciable taxes whatever.—Friend of India.

AN EXCEPTION TO A RULE.

We know of no section of the British public deserving more or greater sympathy than the Indian civilian or military officer. In India he may have been one of the most useful and hardworking public servants; he may have held some of the highest offices under the Crown; he may have been as well known and as popular in his Presidency as the present

Sir Robert Peel is in the House of Commons; but set him down in London, and not only is his existence unknown and ignored by the thinking and working spirits of that great centre of political and commercial life, but it seems often to himself a bore. He walks from his comfortable house in Westbourne terrace to his club, where he writes his letters, reads the daily papers and smokes his number two cheroot. He saunters in the afternoon in the park, or takes a drive with his family, returning to dinner at half past seven o'clock; or it may be that he finishes the day by attending a theatre or the opera. Yet he does not enjoy life, because he finds that he is no longer a member of the community in which he lives; he knows nobody, and has nothing to do. The Commissioner, or Chief Commissioner of a Province, or a General Officer commanding a division in India, holds a proud position, and he feels it. Once let him retire, however, and, as a rule, he sinks into insignificance, not from any inferiority to the public men around him, but because amidst thousands he is lost in the crowd. There are, of course, some exceptions to this rule, and amongst these exceptions we know of few more worthy of mention than Mr. W. P. Andrew, once so well known in the North-West Provinces of India. This gentleman has for years specially devoted himself to the study of the railway systems of India, and it is to his great ability, energy, and activity India owes many of the trunk lines now in course of completion. Indeed, we may say that it is Mr. W. P. Andrew who has projected the entire railway system of Upper India; and it is consequent on his indefatigable and untiring exertions that all obstacles to the completion of the line between Kotree and Mooltan, or the "missing link," and the Lahore and Peshawur extension have at last been removed. When these two lines are completed, Mr. Andrew will have working under his direction the greatest length of lines under any one head in India; and if steady and persistent labour are worthy of reward he will well deserve this distinction.

But his attention is not directed solely to the furtherance of these projects. He appears to be ever watchful of the interests of the whole railway system of India. A few days before the last mail left London some remarks appeared in the City article of the Times disparaging the principle of a Government guarantee. Without Government guarantees we should, however, have no railways in India at all. India herself has no spare capital for the execution of these works, and England will not at present supplement her poverty without a guarantee. Mr. W. P. Andrew has just sent a letter to the Times, explaining the nature of the guarantee which the Secretary of State has given to the shareholders of Indian guaranteed railways, and how it differs in its character from the guarantees of colonial and foreign railways:—

I have been a party, says Mr. Andrew, to no less than four contracts with the Secretary of State for India in Council, conferring the advantages of the guarantee of the Government of India on the several undertakings with which I am connected, and in no instance has there been for a moment the slightest cavil as to the amount of interest due from Government, or a day's delay in the payment of the amount. Even during the height of the mutiny the good faith and punctuality for which the Government of India has ever been distinguished were as manifest as in ordinary times. There is no similarity whatever between the Indian railway guarantees and the guarantees by foreign and colonial Governments, except that all of them have one character in common, namely, that they are in the nature of assistance or contribution by the State to private enterprise. In all essential particulars these guarantees are dissimilar.

He describes also what appear to him the great advantages to the shareholders, and the perfect fairness to the State, which constitute the main features of the contracts entered into by the Government with the Indian Railways:—

The guarantee of the East India Government is not on any particular sum, but on any sum which the railway may cost; nor is there any condition attached limiting the time for the completion of the line. The case is the very reverse with all foreign and colonial guarantees, in which a limit to the cost is placed, and a limit to the period of completion. These are very important points of difference. Foreign and colonial Governments exercise only a very general control over the construction of the railway, and take no responsibility in the expenditure or in the execution of the engineering works; so that disputes often arise after a long period upon points affecting very seriously the interests of the company. But the control which the East India Government exercises in these matters is very stringent, and not a step can be taken or a shilling expended without their special sanction. With reference to the Indian guarantee I would beg the favour of your allowing me to give, in as few words as possible, what I believe is accepted, both by Government on the one hand and the companies on the other, as the intent and meaning of the reciprocal engagements entered into. The guarantee of a minimum rate of interest on the capital is for ninety-nine years, with lease of the land necessary for the railway and works for a like period, free of charge. On the opening of a line all net profits exceeding the rate of interest guaranteed are to be divided, one-half of the surplus going to the shareholders, and the other half to the Government, in liquidation of the interest advanced. When all the interest advanced by Government has been repaid, the entire surplus profit goes to the shareholder. The Government reserve a right to regulate the trains and fares, and as soon as the dividend exceeds 10 per cent., to lower fares, but not so as to reduce the profit below that rate. The Government also reserve power, after the first twenty-five or fifty years to purchase a line at a price equal to the average market value of its shares for the three preceding years. On the other hand, a railway company has the power, at any time after a line or any portion of it has been three months in work, to require the Government to take the railway off their hands at six months' notice, and repay the whole of the capital expended. The companies cannot borrow on mortgage, but the debentures of the railways have these words on the face of each bond:—"Payment of principal and interest is guaranteed by the Secretary of State for India in Council," and this is authenticated by the signature of the Under-Secretary of State. The guarantee of the Indian Government is only second to that of the Imperial Government. Its security rests on the revenues of India, but to preserve them the whole force of the empire would be used. When we lose India it will be high time for the English landlord to put his house in order.

Mr. Andrew, we are informed, is still actively advocating his grand scheme of a railway through the Euphrates Valley, and we have something to say on the subject, but we must defer it to another occasion.—Calcutta Englishman.

THE LATEST NEWS FROM BURMAH.

The merchants of Burmah are crying out against the imposition of another anna to the duty on grain, and when the mail left were about to hold public meetings on the subject. The T. A. Gibb at Rangoon had nearly completed her cargo of rice, and would shortly sail for False Point, where her arrival will no doubt yield a welcome addition to the stock of food being gathered up for the suffering and apathetic Orvalas.

A commercial crisis has supervened at Rangoon, which appears to have largely affected the native traders. The courts are represented as overwhelmed with suits, arising out of the efforts made by insolvents to secure certain of the creditors to the prejudice of the general body. This has led, as a matter of course, to much scandal, the only remedy for which would seem to be the extension of the provisions of the Insolvent Act to British Burmah. But this would, of course, involve a modification of the judicial system which now prevails in these provinces. The administration of justice in Rangoon is contrasted unfavourably with that at Maulmain; the recorder, Dr. Clarke, is accused of allowing the work to fall into arrears, and of being unequal to the post he fills. His announcement, at the Phayre entertainment, that he would probably leave in a shorter time than many of his hearers expected was received by the local press with an ironical exultation. At Shway-ghien it is said that some Chinese explorers have discovered a deposit of gold, and that some of them make from 20 to 30 dols. per diem by their washings.

The news from Mandalay is somewhat more important than usual. The King is represented by one correspondent as anxious to remove the export duties on cotton, jaggery, &c., and by another as so resolutely determined to maintain his present system of monopoly as to have imposed a duty on pickled tea; on an article, that is, which he had up to the present allowed to escape the greed of his subordinates. The rebellions of his sons and nephews would seem to have replenished his treasury to a large extent. Their outlawry has resulted in an addition of from 25 to 30 lakhs per annum to the royal income, derived from forfeited stipends, pensions, allowances, &c. The state of the country is, however, such as to cause society in Upper, as well as Lower Burmah a very great amount of anxiety. The Myneoon Mengtha has safely joined his Shan allies, and with their help has succeeded in raising a body of some 10,000 or 12,000 men, with which force he is said to be rapidly approaching the capital. To heighten the king's troubles, it is said that the Padyne Mengtha, the son of the murdered war Prince, has also escaped, and that he, too, has raised an army. The King, however, still believes in his fate, and instead of abandoning his suicidal policy towards the English he endeavours to propitiate the Government by conferring on Captain Sladen the order of the Tsaiyay. Colonel Fyche, it is rumoured, will in June pay a visit to Mandalay in the Kwantung. He has advised the King of his coming, but meanwhile the course of events is rendering it somewhat doubtful whether the plan will ever be carried out, for three hundred men of H.M.'s 2-23rd have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to take up the duty of guarding the British agent at Mandalay. Last year the King degraded one of his principal officers named Yan Myoza, a man who is said to possess a larger share of intelligence than usually falls to the share of a Burmese official. The necessities of the times, however, would seem to have compelled the King to take Yan Myoza into favour again; and rumour has it that, under this man's advice, he has declined to enter into any treaty engagements with the English, because he wishes to secure the protection and friendship of the Emperor of the French!—Maulmain Times.

FIRST PAYMENT ON ACCOUNT OF THE BANDA AND KIRWEE PRIZE MONEY.

His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to authorise the immediate issue of a first payment on account of the Banda and Kirwee prize money, at the rate of Rs. (500) five hundred per share. The Banda and Kirwee prize money is payable to the Commander-in-Chief, Lord Clyde, and Head Quarters Staff who were in the field between the 19th April and 6th June, 1858, and to the troops of the Saugor and Nerbudda Field Force who were under the immediate orders of Major General Sir G. R. Whitlock, K.C.B., between those dates. All bills and abstracts of individual claimants, of corps, or of departments, are to be prepared in duplicate according to the annexed forms 1 and 2, and submitted without delay to the General Prize Committee of the Presidency to which the regiment to which the claimant belonged at the time was attached, or to which the claimant's appointment appertained. In order to enable the payments to claimants in England to be commenced at the earliest practicable date, it is absolutely necessary that all claims of persons in this country should be submitted at once. The rolls of claimants payable in England will be prepared on the 15th of May, and will include all entitled to share whose claims to payment in India have not been included in bills and abstracts received up to that date. Commanding officers and others are, therefore, required to send in on receipt of this order bills and abstracts, to include the names of all entitled to share who may be serving under them in India. Prize money being admissible only in the actual rank in which service was performed, with the exception noted, promotion with back rank gives no title to extra shares. Bills when passed will be returned to the drawers for presentation for payment to the nearest circle pay office. The amounts passed on abstracts on account of men serving with batteries of Royal Artillery and British Cavalry and Infantry regiments will be paid by the battery commanding officer or regimental paymaster, and charged in his next general statement of accounts. The shares due to the estates of deceased officers will be passed to executors and others upon presentation of probates and letters of administration.

Officers and soldiers who may have volunteered or exchanged into regiments or batteries now serving in this country will submit their claims through their present commanding officer. Pensioners, discharged soldiers, and others, residing in India, who have ceased to be borne upon the strength of the army, will apply to the nearest Station Prize Committee, whose duty it will be to investigate and transmit the claims (agreeably to forms 3 and 4) to the General Prize Committee, preserving a careful record of the same. Claims advanced by agents or others for the shares of absent officers must be supported by powers of attorney. As far as it can at present be ascertained, the troops noted below served in the Saugor and Nerbudda Field Force within the qualifying dates:—

MISCELLANEOUS.

NATIVE BARBARITIES.—In the last police report of the North-Western Provinces attention is drawn to the kidnapping of children for the purposes of prostitution, marriage, or slavery, carried on by regular agents in those parts of the Agra district which border on Bhurtpore, Dholepore, and other feudatory States. Captain Knyvett and his subordinates are watching the crime, but these States give no assistance, and unless they do so it will be difficult to check it. The Ajmere police complain of a change in what they call the "international" punchayet rules under which the six native States surrounding the district are no longer held responsible for criminals who may be tracked into them, but the State in which the crime took place, irrespective of tracks, is called upon for satisfaction. The result is that our police have not only to watch their own criminals, but have to protect every foot of an extensive and open border. In the same report we are glad to see an attempt has been made by the Azimgurh police to put down the monstrous crime of eunuch making. The respectable Mussulmans will not consider it a crime so long as their present filthy zenana system continues. The Hindoos do condemn it to some extent. There are two places in Azimgurh where the system is carried on. Boys before being taken to them are severely beaten, to make them not only submit, but deceive any who might make inquiries on the road. The Friend of India, in noticing these facts, says:—"The police are on the alert, but will be able to do little to check either this, slavery, or hereditary prostitution, till education and Christianity teach the people to help."

THE BENGAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE addressed the Bengal Government on the 13th instant objecting to the Lieutenant Governor's recent exemption from attendance at Court of certain Bengalee gentlemen under Section 22, Act VIII. of 1859, which declares that "the Government may, at its discretion, exempt from personal attendance at Court any person whose rank in the opinion of Government entitles him to the privilege of exemption." The Chamber pointed out that this privilege is unknown in any other part of her Majesty's dominions, that it violates one of the first principles of justice, that it is expedient in India only where it has been hereditary in native families, and that it should be carefully watched. Of the seven gentlemen referred to in this case one is a merchant and another a vakeel. In reply the Bengal office assigns the reason that the gentlemen are, or have been members of the local Legislative Council. The Lieutenant Governor claims the privilege for all past as well as present members, and concludes with a sneer worthy of the officer who signs the letter, "A. Eden," and almost his last act before leaving India. "The Lieutenant Governor desires me, in conclusion, to thank the committee for the interest and trouble they have taken in a matter which had no apparent connection with the commercial interests of Bengal, and regarding which, therefore, it did not occur to the Lieutenant Governor to consult them." The right of the Chamber was unquestionable and their duty plain, for a merchant was one of the seven. Henceforth, if a party to the most ordinary commercial suit he may insist on his privilege and so defeat the ends of justice, or, by disregarding it as so honourable a man as Baboo Ramgopal Ghose would doubtless do, he must throw contempt on the very barbarous honour.

MR. MUTU COOMARA SWAMA, a Hindoo barrister and member of the Ceylon Legislature, delivered an address to the Bethune Society on Thursday, in which, according to the Englishman, he gave a running account of what he saw at Benares, contrasting it with Rome. He recalled an interview which he had with Victor Cousin when that savan dwelt on the importance of a great Sanscrit College being established on the banks of the Ganges. He said the wish of this great man was accomplished in the existence of the Benares College, than which few grander educational establishments exist in all India. He gave his co-religionists good advice as the benefit of travelling and of following practical professions and trades. No nation has been great without some of its members leading a seafaring life. Even the Japanese and the somnolent Turks have thrown off their lethargy and have become captains of ships. When could this be said, he asked, of the Hindus? The lecturer was loudly cheered; but that will be all.

BRIGADE COMMANDS.—There will be three brigade commands shortly vacant, which are likely to be filled up as follows:—The first on the list comes Colonel Crawford Chamberlain, Commandant C. I. Horse; the next, Colonel Nuthall, Commanding 3rd N. I.; and Colonel Donald Stewart, Assistant Adjutant-General of the Army. The selections are good, and we believe all are officers of considerable standing in the army.—Lahore Chronicle.

COLONEL PROBYN, the well-known commandant of the 11th Bengal Cavalry, has been thanked by Government for his zeal and success in establishing a stud farm for the corps in the Montgomery district. Land to the extent of 3,400 acres was leased to the regiment, and of this 600 acres were brought under the plough the first year and 1,000 this year with the aid of well and canal water. Experiments were made in the cultivation of oats, flax, American and Egyptian cotton—all unknown in the district; and seed was freely distributed to the surrounding zemindars. Oats thrive in the soil and yield a far more abundant green crop than wheat. In this stage it is given as "kusece" with great advantage to the stud animals. The zemindars already appreciate its value as food for their cattle and are clamorous for more seed. The American cotton yielded an excellent crop. Suspicious at first the zemindars are now the best of neighbours. The stud consisted of three stallions, forty-one brood mares, and forty-eight colts and fillies last year. The number of the brood mares is to be raised to three hundred. At the beginning of next year the stud will supply to the regiment the first batch of remounts—probably about fourteen horses; and in a few years will furnish annually from sixty to seventy well-bred and serviceable remounts, at a cost not exceeding Rs. 200. Other regiments may send foals to the stud farm on paying a proportion of the cost. Colonel T. Wright now commands the regiment and Captain Buller superintends the farm.

THE RETIREMENT OF THE HON. MR. TREVOR from the bench of the High Court will be a loss which it will be difficult to replace. Honest, painstaking, and industrious, his decisions have commanded an amount of respect not always accorded to the judgments of a civilian judge. Mr. Trevor had the compliment paid him of being appointed to officiate as Chief Justice during the absence of Sir Barnes Peacock, a compliment which even his opponents admitted was well deserved. He has the satisfaction also of knowing that, whether on the bench of the Sudder Court or in his place in the new High Court, no man in Bengal has done more to raise the standard of Mofussil justice or relieve the judicial branch of the service from the reproach of being the refuge for all the incapables. He will be succeeded by the Hon. Mr. C. P. Hobhouse, late Judge of Midnapore, and at present president of the Famine Relief Fund Committee. Mr. Hobhouse was exceedingly popular as a Zillah Judge, and if he wins the same reputation in the High Court that he won in the Mofussil his appointment to the bench will give the court an accession of strength.—Englishman.

UNRELIABILITY OF INDIAN ACCOUNTS.—In compliance with a recommendation of the Calcutta Chamber of Commerce in 1865, and with the fresh demands which Mr. Massey's Budget has given rise to, the Government of India has commenced the publication of quarterly returns of the revenue and expenditure of the empire. The statement now published brings the accounts down to 31st October, 1866. After analysing and commenting on the statement, the Englishman concludes with the following generalisation:—"The general conclusions to be drawn from the statement under comment would seem to be a confirmation of Mr. Massey's assertion of the unreliability of Indian accounts, and the necessity for accompanying these statements with such general explanations as shall render criticism possible. At present any endeavour to subject the figures given to the test of comparison is apparently a mere groping in the dark."

MADAME BISHOP'S CONCERT AT LUCKNOW.—Madame Anna Bishop and Mr. Charles Lascelles made their first appearance before a Lucknow audience on Monday evening, under the distinguished patronage of Mr.

Strachey, Chief Commissioner. A rich treat was expected, and the anticipations of the public were fully realised.—Oudh Gazette, April 3.

MR. HUTTON.—We regret to have received the announcement of the death, from a severe attack of fever, of Mr. Hutton, Inspector of Public Instruction on the frontier circle. Circumstances of peculiar melancholy have attended the event, and we are sure that those he leaves behind will receive the sympathies of friends and relatives.

THE LICENSE TAX.

Unfair, unjust, obnoxious, abominable, iniquitous, and the host of opprobrious adjectives and phrases which have been justly applied to the newly imposed license tax, having done their work with the powers that be in India, that is, to all appearance, no effectual work at all, the inhabitants of Madras are about to follow the example of those of Calcutta, and to forward to Sir Stafford Northcote, the Secretary of State, a petition praying for the removal of the impost. The following, we believe, is the text of the proposed petition:—

The respectful petition of the undersigned inhabitants of Madras

SHEWETH,—1. That your petitioners view with deep concern the imposition of the license tax by the Legislative Council of India.
